PREFACE

In the years 1926-1929, there were published by me in the Indian Antiquary and the Journal of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society some articles under the general title of 'Vedic Studies.' As it has been thought that it would be more convenient to students if these articles were collected together and printed in the form of a book, I have done so here with the kind permission of the editors of those journals. Four articles however are new, and slight alterations have been made here and there in some of the others.

Owing to unexpected delays, the printing had to be done at a time when I was unable to read the proofs with the care which such work demands. In consequence, there is a fairly large number of typographical errors in the book; and their number would undoubtedly have been larger had it not been for the kindness of Mr. S. Sitaramayya and some other friends who obligingly took on themselves the task of reading some of the proofs. Such of the errors as I have noticed are corrected in the Errata given on the next page: some of them are due to the diacritical marks breaking off in the course of printing, and may not be found in all copies.

As is indicated by the title itself, I am in this book following the path trodden by the eminent German scholars Pischel and Geldner in their Vedische Studien which consists of articles devoted to the interpretation of obscure or misunderstood Vedic words. Like them (see op. cit., I, xxx), I have endeavoured to avoid reading un-Indian meanings into the R̥gveda, and, as far as possible, to elucidate the meaning of R̥gvedic passages by means of other RV passages. I venture to believe that I have adhered to this principle more closely than the above-named scholars; and this, as also the difference of personal outlook, will perhaps explain why my interpretations of some words (e.g. dán, padbhîh, admasád, nirekâ) differ from those given by them.

The abbreviations used to denote Vedic texts are the same as, or very similar to, those used by Bloomfield in his Vedic Concordance and explained on pp. xvi—xxii of the Introduction of that book.

VEDIC STUDIES

nitya

This is a very familiar word that occurs about thirty-eight times in the RV and very frequently in the other Vedic texts and in later literature. The commentators, Indian as well as European, are at one in interpreting this word as (1) svīya, sahaja, own, and (2) dhruva, lasting, constant, perpetual, uninterrupted, imperishable, eternal, etc. In assuming the second of the above two meanings for this word in the RV, the commentators have been no doubt guided by the circumstance that the word nitya has that meaning in later texts. But as a matter of fact, this latter meaning is not appropriate and does not yield good sense in a number of passages—for instance, in 1, 66, 1 : āyūr ná prāṇó nityo ná sūnúḥ and 1, 185, 2 : nityam ná sūnúm pitrór upásthe dyāvā rākṣatam prthivī no ábhvāt where nityaḥ sūnúḥ is explained by Sāyaṇa as dhruvaḥ ātmajaḥ, and by Ludwig as ‘ein überlebender Sohn’ (1, 66, 1) and ‘lebender Sohn’; in 1, 166, 2 : nityam ná sūnúm mādhu bíbhṛata úpa krīṇanti krīṇā vidátheṣu ghṛīṣvayaḥ where nityam sūnúm is translated by Ludwig as ‘einen nicht absterbenden Sohn’; in AV. 7, 109 : kāḥ pṛṣṇīm dhenúm vāruṇena dattām átharvane sudúghām nityavatsām, Śāṅkh. GS. 3, 2, 5 : enām śīśuḥ krandaty ā kumāra enām dhenuḥ krandatu nitya-vatsā and ibid. 3, 2, 8 : āsyandantam dhenavo nitya-vatsāḥ where the expression nitya-vatsā dhenuḥ is explained as ‘cow with constant calf’ by Whitney (AV. Translation) and ‘unceasingly fertile cow’ (SBE. 29, 93) and ‘immer fruchtbare Kuh’ and ‘beständig fruchtbare Kuh’ by Oldenberg (Ind. Stud. 15, 71); and in 10, 39, 14 : ny āmṛkṣāma yósaṇām ná márye nityam ná sūnúm tánayam dádhanāḥ where nitya is found as the tertium comparationis in a simile.

The other meaning 'own' is still less appropriate here ; and it therefore becomes clear that in these and other similar passages the word nítya has a meaning different from the two mentioned above.

What this meaning is, can be found out with the help of 1, 66, 1 ; 1, 166, 2 and 10, 39, 14, all which verses contain similes with nítya as tertium comparationis. In the first of these verses it is said that Agni is nítya as a son (sūnú) ; in the second, that honey (mádhu) is nítya as a son (sūnú) ; and in the third, that a hymn of praise (stóma) is nítya as a son (sūnú). A comparison therefore of the adjectives which these words—sūnú, mádhu, stóma and agní—receive in the RV, will show what characteristics are common to the things denoted by them and will thus determine the sense of nítya.

Of these words, sūnú receives the following adjectives,—trayayāyya, príyá, márjya, viṣṭvan, śúci, suśéva, hṛ́dya and nítya ; and mádhu, the following,—ádhiḡartya, áśnāpinaddha, kāmya, górjika, ghṛ́ta, cāru, tridhātu, divyá, daívyā, pakvá, párisikta, púṣkare níṣikta, prátibhṛta, príyá, madirá, vāraṇá, sāraghá, sukṣáya, sutá, sonyá, spārhá and nítya ; while stóma has the following adjectives—úkṣitoti, agriyá, ántama, ántara, ápūrvya, ámanda, amṛ́ta, uruvyác, étaśa, éva, kāmya, krátumān, gīyámāna, gír (?), dṛ́śika, dyutádyāman, dyumnín, dhanasá, nāmascān, nāvajāta, nāvya, nūtana, purutāma, pūtá, pūrvyá, préṣṭha, mádhumattama, madhyamá, mánasā, vayámāna, mandín, mahát, ratnadhātama, rudríya, (?), vānivan, vájāyan, vāhiṣṭha, vidúṣa árdhya, sámtama, śasyámāna, śukrá, śúci, śūśá, śūṣyà, satrājít, sadhú, sidhíá, sucṛktí (?), haviṣmān, hṛ́dā taṣṭá, hṛ́dispṛk, and also nítya.

It will be seen that the only adjective (besides nítya) common to the three words sūnú, mádhu and stóma is príyá (in the case of stóma, we find instead of príyá its superlative form préṣṭha) and the only characteristic that is common to the things denoted by these words is priyatva. priyá is used as an epithet of agní also in 1, 143, 1; 5, 23, 3; and 6, 1, 6, while Agni, further, is called priyānām prēṣṭhaḥ once and purupriyāḥ many times. Thus the only adjective (beside nitya whose meaning we are engaged in finding out) and the only characteristic that are common to the above-mentioned four words and the things denoted by them, are priya and *priyatva*¹; which makes it probable that nitya means priyá in the above passages. The probability, in this instance, is converted into certainty by the parallelism of priyá and nitya in 1, 91, 6c: priyástotro vānaspátīḥ and and 9, 12, 7a: nityástotro vānaspátīḥ.

nityā thus means priya, dear, pleasing, beloved, favourite. It has this meaning in the following passages:

1, 73, 4: tām tvā náro dáma ā nityam iddhám
ágne sácanta kṣitíṣu dhruvāsu | ádhi dyumnám ní dadhur bhūry asmin
bhāvā viśvāyur dharúṇo rayīṇām ||

“Men have worshipped in their stable dwellings, O Agni, thee that art dear and flaming; they have placed much splendour in him. Do thou become the bearer of riches, the vivifier of all.” Compare the many passages where Agni is called priyá, namely, 1, 26, 7; 1, 75, 4; 1, 91, 3; 1, 128, 7-8; 1, 143, 1; 2, 4, 3; 5, 1, 9; 5, 23, 3; 6, 1, 6; 6, 2, 7; 6, 16, 42; 6, 48, 1; 7, 16, 1; 8, 84, 1; and also 6, 15, 6 (priyām-priyam); 1, 186, 3 and 8, 84, 1 (prēṣṭham) and 8, 103, 10 (priyānām prēṣṭham); compare also the passages where he receives the epithet purupriyá (see Grassmann, s.v.) and mandrá (see ibid., s.v.).

7, 1, 2: tām agním áste vásavo ny ṛṇvan
supraticúkṣam ávase kútaś cit |
dakṣāyyo yó dáma āsa nityaḥ ||

¹ This seems to have been felt by Grassman also who in 1, 66, 1, has translated nityo ná sūnūḥ as ‘wie eigener Sohn, lieb.’ Sayana too, similarly explains nityam ná sūnūm in 1, 166, 2, as nityam aurasam priyam putram iva.

“ The bright ones, for their protection from everything, set him down in the dwelling, Agni, beautiful to look at, who sat down in the house, dear and capable.” The verse occurs in the first hymn of the seventh Maṇḍala whose authorship is ascribed to the Vasiṣṭhas; and as the word vásiṣṭha is the superlative of the word vásu, Sāyaṇa is perhaps right in saying that the word vásavaḥ here refers to the Vasiṣṭhas.

3, 25, 5 : *ágne apām sám idhyase duroṇé
nityaḥ sūno sahaso jātavedaḥ |
sadhásthāni maháyamāna ūtí ||*

“ Thou, the glorifier of dwelling-houses with thy protection, the beloved, art kindled in the abode of the waters, O Agni Jātavedas, son of strength.”

5, 1, 7 : *prá nú tyám vípram adhvaréṣu sādhum agnim hótāram īlate námobhiḥ |
ā yás tatāna ródasī ṛténa
nityam mṛjanti vājīnam ghr̥téna ||*

“ They worship him with adorations, Agni, the wise, the hotṛ, the ornament of the sacrifices, who extended the two worlds according to divine ordinance. They adorn (him), the beloved (like a) race-horse, with ghee.”

10, 12, 2 : *devó devān paribhūr ṛténa vāhā no havyām prathamás cikitvān | dhūmáketuḥ samídhā bhāṛjīko
mandró hótā nityo vācā yājīyān ||*

“ The god (sc. Agni) encompasses the gods; bear thou, (O Agni), our offering (to the gods) according to divine ordinance, thou that art knowing, the first, smoke-bannered and with brightness as thy ornament (when kindled) with fuel, the pleasing beloved hotṛ that worshippest (the gods) better (than human hotṛs) with thy voice.” Compare 6, 1, 6 : *saparyényaḥ sá priyó vikṣv
agnír hótā mandró ní śasādā yājīyān | tám tvā vayám dáma ā didivāmsam úpa jñubādho námasā sadema and*

1, 26, 7: priyó no astu viśpátir hótā mandró vārcnyah where the expression priyó mandró hótā corresponds to nityo mandró hótā in this verse. Compare also 1, 44, 3:
adyā dūtām vṛṇīmahe vāsum agnīm purupriyām | dhūmā-
ketum bhāṛjikām vyūṣṭiṣu yajñānām adhvaraśrīyam ||

1, 66, 1: rayir ná citrā sūro ná saṁdīg
āyūr ná prāṇó nityo ná sūnūh ||

“(Agni), brilliant like wealth, (effulgent) like the sun in appearance, vivifier like the prāṇa (the life-breath), dear like a son.” Compare 1, 69, 5: putró ná jātó ranvó duroné “pleasing in the house like a son that is born.”

3, 15, 2: tvām no asyā uśāso vyūṣṭau
tvām sūra údite bodhi gopāh | jānmeva nityam tánayam juṣasva
stómam me agne tanvā sujāta ||

“Become our protector when this dawn dawns and the sun rises; cherish, O Agni well-born of thy own self, this (dear) praise of mine as a father (cherishes) his dear son.” I follow Sāyaṇa in understanding jānman as father in spite of its being accented on the root-syllable; compare 7, 54, 2: pitēva putrān prāti no juṣasva and 10, 22, 3: pitā putrām iva priyām. Compare also 5, 42, 2 and 10, 119, 4 putrām iva priyām. To nityam stómam here corresponds priyām bráhma in 1, 75, 2; 5, 42, 2; 5, 85, 1; priyām mánma in 6, 68, 9; 10, 54, 6; 10, 96, 11; 2, 41, 18; priyā manīṣā in 6, 67, 2; présthā matih in 7, 88, 1; présthā suṣṭulih in 4, 43, 1; présthām námaḥ in 7, 36, 5; and présthah stómah in 7, 34, 14; mandrā gih in 7, 18, 3 and mandrā hṛdāḥ in 8, 43, 31.

10, 39, 14: etām vām stómam aśvinav akarmā- takṣāma bhṛgavo ná rátham | ny àmrkṣāma yóṣaṇām ná márye
nityam ná sūnūm tánayam dādhanāḥ ||

“We have made this praise for you, O Aśvins; we have cut them (into shape) as Bhṛguś a chariot.

Holding it (carefully) as (parents do) a dear son, we have polished and embellished it as (one adorns) a woman for a young man."

1, 185, 2: *bhūrim dvē ácarantī cārantam padvāntam gárbbham apádi dadhāte | nītyam ná sūnúm pitrór upásthe
dyāvā rákṣatam prthivī no ábhvāt ||*

"The two, unmoving and footless, bear much offspring that has feet and moves. Like a dear son in the lap of his parents—protect us, O Heaven and Earth, from the evil being." There is an anacoluthon in the second half-verse; the meaning is, 'O Heaven and Earth, protect us from the evil being and give us shelter as parents shelter a dear son in their lap and ward off from him all harm.' Compare 6, 75, 4: mā téva putráṁ bibhṛtām upásthe | ápa śátrūn vidhyatām samvidāné.

7, 1, 21: *tvám agne suhávo raṇvāsamḍṛk sudītī sūnō sahaso didīhi | mā tvé sácā tánaye nītya ā dhan
mā vīró asmán náryo ví dāsīt ||*

"Thou, O Agni, art easy to invoke and of pleasing appearance; shine with bright gleams, O son of strength. Let not evil befall our dear son (when he is) with thee; may we not want a valorous son."

1, 166, 2 *nītyam ná sūnúm mādhu bíbhrata úpa krīḷanti krīḷā vidátheṣu ghṛṣṣvayaḥ | nákṣanti rudrá āvasā namasvīnam
ná mardhanti svátavaso haviṣkṛtam ||*

"Carrying honey that is dear as a son, the swift terrible (Maruts) bound forward in battles. The sons of Rudra come with protection to the adorer; they, strong of themselves, do not injure him that offers oblations (to them)." The 'honey' (mādhu) that the Maruts are here represented as carrying is without doubt the same with which they besprinkle the earth; compare 5, 54, 8:

pr̥ivanty útsam yád ināso áscaran vy ùdanti pr̥thivīm mādhuo ándhasa. mādhu receives the epithet priyá in eight passages; see Grassmann, s. v. priyám (n.); cp. also kāmyam mādhu in 9, 72, 2. With the first pada, nityam ná sunūm mādhu bibhrata úpa, compare nityam ná sunūm tánayam dādhanah in 10, 39, 14 explained above.

7, 1, 12 : *yám aśvī nityam upayāti yajñám
prajāvantam svapatyám kṣáyam nah |
svājanmanā śéśasā vāvṛdhānám ||*

This verse is obscure; I understand it as a continuation of the preceding verse¹, 'May we not sit down in the empty dwelling of men; may we not sit round thee without son, without offspring; (may we sit) in houses full of children, O thou that makest houses to prosper' and translate: "(May we sit down in) our dear dwelling with good offspring, with children, which is prospering with issue born of us, which is the seat of sacrifices, and to which (Agni), who has horses, goes." I follow Sāyaṇa in taking yajñám as an adjective of kṣáyam and meaning yajñāśraya. There seems to be no doubt that yajñá is an adjective here of kṣáya, and that being so, it can be best interpreted here as yajñāśraya or yajanīya. The words yajñá and kṣáya occur together again in 1, 132, 3, which, too, is obscure. As regards aśvī, Oldenberg's observations (RV. Noten, II, p. 4) that it refers to a human and not to a god do not seem to me to be convincing; and I still think that it refers to a god, to wit, Agni. Compare 5, 6, 1 (explained below) which describes Agni as 'the home to which the swift horses go,' that is, as the treasure-house of horses; compare also 5, 6, 2.

8, 31, 5 : *yá dāmpatī sámanasā sunutá á ca dhāvataḥ |
dévāso nityayāśírā ||*

māśéśaso 'vīratā pári tvā |
prajāvatīṣu dūryāsu durya ||*

“The husband and wife, O gods, who thinking alike, press and wash (Soma and mix) with pleasing admixture.” The admixture referred to is that of milk, sour milk (dadhi) or barley; compare 9, 101, 8: sám u priyā́ anūṣata gā́vo mādāya ghṛ̥ṣvayaḥ where the admixture of milk, gāvaḥ, receives the epithet priyā́.

4, 4, 7: séd agne astu subhágah sudā́nur
yás tvā́ nítvena havíṣā yá ukthaiḥ | píprīṣati svá ā́yuṣi duroṇé
vísuvéd asmai sudínā́ sāsad iṣṭíḥ ||

“May he, O Agni, be fortunate and rich who wishes to sacrifice to thee with pleasing oblations and hymns in his house through his life. Let all (days) be fortunate days for him—such is the prayer.” The meaning of sudā́nu is not clear: Oldenberg translates it (SBE., 46, p. 331) as ‘blessed with good rain,’ Grassmann (Ueber.) as ‘reich an Gut’ and Geldner (Glossar) as ‘reich-beschenkt.’ There is no doubt that the two last-mentioned meanings express very nearly what the poet must have had in his mind; and I have therefore, in default of a more accurate knowledge of the meaning of the word, here rendered it as ‘rich.’ With regard to nítvena havíṣā, compare priyám havíḥ in 10, 86, 12-13, priyátamam havíḥ in 9, 34, 5 and júṣṭam havíḥ in 3, 59, 5.

1, 66, 5: durókaśociḥ krátur ná nítvo
jāyēva yónāv úram víśvasmai ||

“(Agni), of unaccustomed brilliance, dear like the ideal, like a wife in the house, ready for everything.”

8, 75, 6: tásmai nūnám abhidyave vācā́ virūpa nítaya |
vṛ̥ṣṇe codaśvá suṣṭutím ||

“Send forth now, O Virūpa, a well-made (hymn of) praise with thy dear pleasing voice towards the strong (Agni), the heavenly (?).” Regarding nítayā vāk here, compare mandrá vāk in 8, 100, 41.

9, 12, 7 : nityastotro vānaspátir

dhīnām antāḥ sabardúghaḥ |

hinvānó mānuṣā yugā ||

“(Soma), the lord of the forest, fond of praises, who milks nectar amidst the praise-hymns and stimulates the generations of men.” As mentioned above, to nityastotro vānaspátir here corresponds priyastotro vānaspátir in 1, 91, 6.

5, 6, 1 : agnīm tām manye yó vásur

ástam yám yánti dhenávaḥ |

ástam árvanta āśávóstaṁ nityāso vājína

īṣaṁ stotṛbhya ā bhara ||

“I praise that Agni who is a Vasu, to whom the milch-cows go home, the swift horses go home, the dear patrons go home; bring food (nourishment) to thy praisers.” The word vājínaḥ in the fourth pāda which I have translated as ‘patrons’ denotes the rich men who institute sacrifices, the yajamānāḥ as Sāyaṇa has correctly explained and not priests (Grassmann, RV. Ueber) or race-horses as Ludwig and Oldenberg (SBE., 46, p. 379) think. This is shown clearly by the following verse, só agnir yó vásur grṇé sám yám āyánti dhenávaḥ | sám árvanto raghudrúvaḥ sám sujātāsaḥ sūrúya īṣaṁ stotṛbhya ā bhara which is parallel to the preceding one and where the fourth pāda mentions explicitly the sujātāsaḥ sūrúyaḥ.

1, 71, 1 : úpa prá jinvann usatir usántam

pátim ná nityam jánayaḥ sánílāḥ |

svásāraḥ śyāvīm áruṣīm ajuṣrañ

citrām ucchántim uśásam ná gāvah ||

“The loving (women) have stimulated (to activity) their lover as wives in the same bed (literally, in the same nest) stimulate (to amorous activity) their dear husband. The sisters have cherished the Dark and the Bright as the cows have cherished the brightly dawning Dawn.” The ‘loving women,’ usatir, denote in all probability, the prayers that are addressed to Agni—who is referred to here by the word uśántam—and that are supposed to arouse him to activity, so that Agni will bring the gods to the sacrifice, carry offerings to them, etc.; see Bergaigne II, p. 68. The import of the second half-verse is obscure; see however Oldenberg, SBE., 46, p. 75 f. and RV. Noten I, p. 73. With regard to nítym pátim compare júṣtam pátim in 9, 97, 22; ād īm āyan váram ā vāvasānā júṣtam pátim kaláše gāva índum where I believe, differing from Grassmann (s.v. vās), that the word vāvasānāḥ should be derived from the root vas (to wish, to desire; vaśa kántau) and be interpreted in the same sense as uśatīḥ in this passage and in 1, 62, 11. Compare also 1, 62, 11 and the verse that follows here, 1, 140, 7.

1, 140, 7 : sá samstíro viṣṭírah sám grbhāyati
jānānn evá jānatīr nítya ā śaye | púnar vardhante ápi yanti devyām
anyád vārpaḥ pitróḥ kṛnvate sácā ||

“ He (sc. Agni) clasps (the plants, etc.) that have been laid together and have been laid out. Being intimate with them that are intimate with him, and being their dear (lover), he lies with them. They grow up again and attain to godhead; they together give another form to their parents (that is, to Heaven and Earth). ”

1, 141, 2 : prkṣó vápuḥ pitumān nítya ā śaye dvitíyam ā sapṭásivāsu mātṛṣu | tṛtíyam asya vṛṣabhásya doháse
dáśa pramatim janayanta yóṣaṇaḥ ||

“ The beloved (Agni), strong, rich in food, rests in the brilliant (sun); secondly, in the seven auspicious mothers; thirdly the ten women (that is, the ten fingers) have engendered him who looks after (us), in order to milk this bull.” I have followed here the suggestion of Grassmann and PW. about reading sapṭá śivāsu and dáśa pramatim in the text though the text as it stands—sapṭásivāsu (seven-fold auspicious) and dáśapramatim

(having ten to care for him; cared for by ten)—is not unintelligible. The words dvitīyam and tṛtīyam seem to indicate that the first pada refers to the first 'birth' of Agni as the sun that shines in the sky. It is therefore possible to understand vápuḥ, brilliant, as referring to the bright sky (dyoḥ) and to translate "The beloved Agni, strong, rich in food, entered in the brilliant sky." With reference to the sun being 'rich in food,' compare Chan. Up. 3, 1, 1: asau vā ādityo devamadhu and also the first ten khaṇḍas of that chapter. In the first pāda, the author of the Padapāṭha has decomposed nitya ā śaye into nityaḥ ā śaye; and the translation given above follows this view. But the words dvitīyam ā saptáśivāsu mātṛṣu that follow seem to indicate that nitya too should be regarded as a locative so that the padaccheda would be nitye ā śaye. The meaning in this case would be: "The brilliant (Agni), strong, rich in food, has entered in his own (place), that is, is in the sky"; see Macdonell's Vedic Mythology, p. 92 and the passages referred to therein.

10, 31, 4: nityaś cākanyāt svápatir dāmūnā

'May we be lords of prosperity in horse-herds and chariots and of beloved wealth. The two, (Indra and Varuṇa) helping us newly with their protection—may riches come to us (together, like) a team of horses." There is an anacoluthon in the second half-verse where the nominative dual tā has no predicate. With respect to nityasya rāyāḥ, compare priyām vāsu in 4, 8, 3 and 7, 32, 15, etc., vāmām vāsu in 6, 19, 5 and spārham vāsu in 2, 23, 9, etc., spṛhayāyyo rayīḥ and puruspr̥ham rayīm (see Grassmann, s. v. spṛhayāyya and puruspr̥h).

"O Pūṣan, brilliant, immortal, our dear wealth (namely), our kine, has gone away somewhere, to some meadow; be our gracious helper and most liberal in the winning of the wealth (that is, graciously recover them for us)." The prayer is addressed to Pūṣan, who is the recoverer of lost goods; see Macdonell's Ved. Mythology, p. 36. With nityam rékṇaḥ here, compare priyām rékṇaḥ in 10, 132, 3.

7, 1, 17 : tvé agna āhāvanāni bhūrī-

"We, O Agni, being prosperous, offer to thee many pleasing oblations, bringing (to thee) both kinds of offerings." The meaning of the last pāda is obscure; see Oldenberg, RV. Noten, II, p. 4. Regarding nityā āhāvanāni, compare nityena havīṣā in 4, 4, 7 explained above.

1, 148, 5: nā yām ripávo ná riṣanyávo

“Whom, while in the womb, enemies that want to injure and can injure, do not injure. The blind, not seeing, did not harm; his dear well-wishers protected him with watchfulness.” pretārah, which I have rendered as ‘well-wishers,’ literally means ‘lovers, pleasers.’ It is preferable to construe abhikhyā, literally, with sight, that is, with forethought, with watchfulness, with arakṣan rather than with andhā apaśyā ná dabhan (as Grassmann in RV. Ueber, Ludwig and Oldenberg, SBE. 46, p. 173 have done); for the translation ‘The blind, not seeing, did not injure him with their look’ hardly yields good sense. nityāḥ pretārah means the dear well-wishers of Agni (who is the deity of this verse), that is, the priests who are dear to Agni and to whom Agni is dear. Compare 1, 26, 7: priyó no astu viśpátir hótā mandró váreṇyah | priyāḥ svagnáyo vayám.

yām trāyase dáma ā nityahotā |

“Efficacious, O Agni, and winners (of wealth) are the prayers of us’ whom thou, the dear hotṛ in the house protectest. He, the red-horsed, is holy and has much food: may everything pleasing happen to him (the sacrificer, yajamāna) every day.” In the light of the foregoing, I have taken nityahotā (with accent on nitya)

¹Is it possible, however, that there is a word asme derived from the radix a—meaning this (idam)? The correlation of yāt in this verse and in verse 8, 63, 12 would seem to show that this is the case with the word asme in these verses. Likewise, the asme in verses 1, 24, 7; 1, 71, 2; 1, 102, 2; 8, 51, 10 and 10, 61, 25 seems to be of this character.

as a karmadhāraya compound; it is, however, also possible to regard it as a bahuvrīhi compound meaning 'he to whom the priest, hotṛ, is dear'; compare priyāḥ svagnāyo vayām in 1, 26, 7 cited above; compare also the following passage:

Maitr. Sam. 1, 1, 12: nityahotāram tvā kave dyumantaḥ sam idhīmahi |

The corresponding passage in the other Yajus-samhitās reads vīṭihotraṁ tvā kave dyumāntam sām idhīmahi | ágne bṛhāntam adhvaré where vīṭihotraṁ means 'to whom the hotra, the office of the hotṛ, is dear'; compare Uvāta on VS. 2, 4: vīṭiḥ abhilāṣaḥ hotṛ-karmaṇi yasya saḥ vīṭihotraḥ. I therefore take nityahotāram here as a bahuvrīhi and translate: "We, the bright, kindle, O wise one, thee to whom the hotṛ is dear." Or is the word hotṛ here used in the abstract sense of hotra or hotṛtva—bhāva-pradhāno nirdeśaḥ? If so, nityahotāram would be the exact equivalent of vīṭihotraṁ.

Śāṅkh. GS. 3, 2, 5: enām śiśuḥ krandaty ā kumāra enām dhenuḥ krandatu nitya-vatsā |

"The child, the young one, cries near it; may the milch-cow to whom the calf is dear, low near it." The milch-cow lowing to her calf is a familiar figure of comparison even in the RV; compare 9, 12, 2: abhī viprā anūṣata gāvo vatsām ná mātāraḥ | īndram 'the priests call out to Indra as mother-cows low to their calves'; 2, 2, 2: abhī tvā náktīr uṣāso vavāśirégne vatsām ná svāsareṣu dhenāvaḥ 'to thee, O Agni, they called out at nights and at dawns as the milch-cows low to their calves in evenings'; 8, 88, 1: abhī vatsām ná svāsareṣu dhenāva īndram girbhīr navāmahe 'we call out to Indra with our hymns of praise as milch-cows low to their calves in evenings'; 6, 45, 25; 8, 95, 1; etc.

Ibid., 3, 2; 8: enām śiśuḥ krandaty ā kumāra āsyandantām dhenavo nitya-vatsāḥ |

“The child, the young one cries to it; may milch-cows to whom the calf is dear, pour forth (milk from their udders) near it.” Oldenberg has here interpreted the verb syandantam in the sense of ‘flocking’ (SBE., 29, p. 93); but the reference here is to the return home of milch-cows after grazing in the pastures, eager to rejoin their calves and therefore lowing to them (this idea is expressed in Śāṅkh. GS. 3, 2, 5, explained above, by the word krandatu), and, as the Indian poets express it, with udders oozing milk; compare Raghuvamśa, 1, 84: (anindyā Nandinī nāma dhenur āvavṛte vanāt) bhuvam koṣṇena kuṇḍodhnī medhyenāvabhṛthād api | prāsravabhivarṣanti vatsāloka-pravartinā || and Harṣacarita (Nirṇayasāgara edition, p. 80): divasa-vihṛti-pratyāgataṁ prasnuta-stanaṁ dhenu-vargam udgata-kṣīram. Compare also 2, 34, 8: dhenūr nā śīśve svāsareṣu pinvate jānāya rātāhaviṣe mahim iṣam ‘they (sc. the Maruts) ooze with copious food for every man who has offered them oblations as a milch-cow oozes milk for her calf in evenings’; 10, 75, 4: abhī tvā sindho śīsum in nā mātāro vāsrā arṣanti pāyascva dhenāvah ‘they (the rivers) run towards thee, O Sindhu, as milch-cows, lowing, and with (oozing) milk, run to their calves’; 9, 94, 2: dhīyah pinvānāḥ svāsare nā gāva ṛtāyāntīr abhī vāvaśra indum ‘the hymns of praise, following ṛta, lowed to Soma as cows overflowing (with milk) low (to their calves) in the evening’; 9, 68, 1: ūsiṣyadanta gāva ā nā dhenāvah | barhiṣādo vacanāvanta ūdhabhiḥ parisrūtam usriyā nirṇijam dhire; and 9, 77, 1: abhim ṛtasya sudūghā ghrtaścūto vāsrā arṣanti pāyascva dhenāvah; and 10, 31, 11: prā kṛṣṇāya rūśad apinvatódhaḥ.

AV. 7, 109 (104), 1: kāḥ pṛṣṇīm dhenūm vāruṇena dattām ātharvane sudūghām nityavatsām | bṛhaspatinā sakhyām juṣāṇo yathāvaśām tanvāḥ kalpayāti ||

“Who, enjoying companionship with Bṛhaspati shall at his will make use of the spotted milch-cow, well-milking, fond of her calf, given by Varuṇa to Atharvan?" I understand tanvāḥ here as equivalent to ātmanah so that tanvāḥ kalpayāti means ātmana upakalpayati, 'makes ready for one's own use, that is, makes use of.' Whitney translates "Who, enjoying companionship with Brhaspati, shall shape its body at his will—the spotted milch-cow, well-milking," etc., which is unintelligible to me.

AV. 9, 4, 21 : ayám pípāna indra íd
rayím dadhātu cetanīm |
ayám.dherúm sudúghām nítavatsām
vásam duhām vipascítam paró diváh ||

"Let this burly one, a very Indra, bestow conspicuous wealth; let this (one) (bestow) a well-milking cow, fond of (her) calf; let him yield inspired will from beyond the sky."

This closes the list of passages where nítva has the meaning priya: it has the meaning svīya, sahaja, 'own,' in the passages that follow:

RV 7, 4, 7: pariśádyam hy áranasya rékṇo
nítasya rāyáh pátayah syāma |
ná śéšo agne anyájātam asty
ácetānasya mǎ pathó ví dukṣah ||

This verse is not quite clear; but I believe that Yāska's interpretation of it (Nirukta, 3, 2) and of the verse that follows, is on the whole correct. I therefore translate, following him, "The wealth left by a stranger is to be avoided; may we be lords of our own wealth. There is no (such thing as) offspring that is begot by another. Do not foul the paths for me that am ignorant." As pointed out by Yāska, the 'wealth' mentioned in the first half-verse means 'son'; compare śeṣah in the second half-verse and in the verses that precede and follow this. The last pāda means, "Do not, hiding the right path, point out a wrong path to me who am already ignorant; do not misguide me by saying that another's son can be my son."

8, 56, 2: dāśa mūhyam pautakratāḥ

“Whom the worshipful (gods) caught hold of in his own place, carried with praises, and holding him and speeding like the horses of a chariot led him in the sacrifice.” The reference here is to the original carrying off of Agni from his place in the highest heavens by Mātariśvan, Vivasvat, Bhṛgu, the devas, etc.; compare 10, 46, 9: dyāvā yám agním pṛthivī jāniṣṭām āpas tvāṣṭā bhṛgavo yám sáhobhiḥ | ilényam prathamām mātariśvā devās tatakṣur mánave yájatram and also Macdonell's Vedic Mythology, p. 71. The word yajñīyāḥ refers to the deities above-named.

"He, O Varuṇa, who being thy own dear friend and comrade, has committed evil towards you,—may we not, being sinful feel (thy might), O mighty one. Grant, O thou that art wise, protection (literally, cover) to thy praiser." The yāḥ beginning the first half-verse has apparently no antecedent in correlation with it; but there does not seem to be any doubt that in reality it has for antecedent the plural vayam that is to be supplied in the third pāda; the meaning therefore is: "Though, O Varuṇa, I, being thy own dear friend and comrade, have sinned against thee, do not, O mighty one, make me suffer for it, but graciously become, thou that art wise (and therefore knowest that I am not solely responsible for such sins) the shelter and protector of me that am now praying to you." Compare in this connection the following two verses likewise addressed by Vasiṣṭha to Varuṇa—7, 87, 7 : yó mṛḷáyati cakruṣe cid āgaḥ 'who (Varuṇa) is beneficent and gracious even to one that has committed sins against him' and 7, 86, 6 : nā sá svó dáakṣo varuṇa dhrútiḥ sá súra manyúr vibhidako ácittiḥ | ásti jyáyan kámyasa uparé svápnaś canéd ánṛtasya prayotā "It is not my own impulse, O Varuṇa; it is predestination, drink, anger, dice, or ignorance (that has led me to sin); there is the elder close to the younger (who has to bear the responsibility, either for having prompted the sin or for not having prevented its commission); even sleep is the promoter of acts against the Law (ṛta)."

3, 53, 24: imā indra bharatāśya putrā
apapitvām cikitur nā prapitvām | hinvānty āśvam āraṇam nā nītyam
jyāvājam pāri ṇayanty ājaú ||

This verse is the last of a quartet of verses known as vasiṣṭhādveṣiṇyaḥ as they have been written, it is said, in disparagement of the Vasiṣṭhas. It is clear that the verse speaks of the stupidity of the Bharatas; but, for the rest, its exact sense has not yet been made out: see Oldenberg, RI. Noten I, p. 256. I translate tentatively as follows: "These sons of Bharata, O Indra, know neither the time for resting nor that for going. They ride their own horse as if it were another's; in battle, they carry round ceremoniously the (bow) strengthened with bow-string." 'Riding their own horse as if it were another's' means, not so much 'so ungeschickt und dem Tier ungewohnt wie ein fremder Jockey' (Geldner in I'ed. St. 2, p. 160, n. 5) as 'using the horse unsparingly as if it were another's; not taking proper care of the horse'; for, it is natural on the part of the owner of the horse to use it carefully and not to beat it cruelly or make it strain its powers and go beyond its strength, while it is as natural for one who is not the owner to pay no attention to the horse or its capacity but to make it go as fast as it can be made by blows and other similar means to go. Compare the saying current in the Kannaḍa country, biṭṭi kudure āvarike cabbe, 'another's horse, and a rod cut from the avarike (cassia auriculata, Lin.; a shrub that is found almost everywhere; the rods cut from it are regarded as unusually tough) shrub

(to beat it with so as to make it go faster)' and the English proverb 'Set a beggar on horseback and he will ride it to death'. In the fourth pāda, the European interpreters have understood the word jyāvāja as referring to a horse and meaning 'strong (swift) as bow-string. This may perhaps be looked upon as an ordinary figure of speech in European languages in which things or persons are commonly described as being as tough or as strong as 'whipcord' or 'wire', as being 'wiry', etc.; but, I do not know of any instance in Indian literature where the horse is described to be as strong (or as swift) as bow-string. The idea in fact is, I believe, quite unknown and wholly foreign not only to Sanskrit literature but to other Indian literatures as well. I believe therefore that Sāyaṇa is right in regarding the word as an epithet of dhanus understood here. The verb pari-ñī does not mean simply 'to lead round; to carry round' a thing or person but to do so ceremoniously (hence, pari-ñī means also 'to marry' as in the ceremony the bride is led by hand thrice ceremoniously round the fire). The sense therefore of the fourth pāda is 'These stupid Bharatas, instead of using a bow, that is strung and ready for use, in battle to shoot arrows with, carry it ceremoniously in procession'! Compare the first pāda of the preceding verse, ná sāyakasya cikite janāsaḥ 'an arrow was not thought of, O men (by these Bharatas when they brought the strung bow to the battle-field).'

This closes the list of passages in the RV in which the word nitya occurs. It will have been noticed that I have interpreted this word either as (1) svīya, sahaja, 'own' or as (2) priya, 'dear' and that such interpretation has everywhere yielded good sense. It is however true that the meaning (3) dhruva also (which the word nitya has in the Brahmanas and in later literature) is not inappropriate in some of the above passages, for instance, in 4, 4, 7; 4, 41, 10; 9, 12, 7; 1, 73, 4 and 7, 1, 2; but I have felt it unnecessary to adopt that meaning for the RV inasmuch as it is quite necessary to make use of the first two meanings in the RV and these two meanings are enough to explain all the passages (in the RV) in which the word nitya occurs. The assumption of the third meaning dhruva also for the RV would, in these circumstances, mean a needless multiplication of meanings.

As regards the first two meanings, too, it must be observed that in some passages it is difficult to choose between the two as either will do equally well in them. Thus, for instance, one can also interpret nityam kṣāyam naḥ in 7, 1, 12 as 'our own house', nityena haviṣā in 4, 4, 7 as 'by (his) own oblation', nityayā vācā in 8, 75, 6 as 'with (thy) own voice', nityād rāyāḥ in 5, 8, 2 as 'from (his) desirable wealth' and nityam sūdaḥ in 9, 92, 3 as 'beloved seat'. In such passages, I have preferred one of them to the other and chosen what seemed to me, considering the context, to be the better of the two meanings. I believe, however, that the poet must have had both meanings in his mind when he 'wrote' such passages, and that the more correct course to follow would be to make use of both of them together in the explanation—a course that is occasionally followed by Indian commentators.³

I can not say how the (third) meaning dhruva came to attach itself to the word *nitya*⁴; but it is easy to understand how the (second) meaning priya has developed from that of svīya, sahaja. What is one's 'own', is, in this world, generally, 'dear' to one, which explains how nitya originally meaning svīya, sahaja came to have the secondary meaning priya also.

It is remarkable that the converse also is true: what is 'dear' to one will generally be acquired and made one's 'own' or at least, will be the object of endeavours to acquire and make one's 'own'. Hence it has also come about that the word priya itself which primarily means 'dear, pleasing, agreeable,' etc., has the secondary meaning 'own'.

The number of passages in the Vedas where priya has the sense 'own' is indeed considerable; but, so far, in two or three passages only have the Vedic interpreters recognised that priya=own. One such passage is 1, 82, 2: ákṣann amīmadanta hy āva priyā adhūṣata ⁴It is however of interest to note in this connection the analogy of the words rata and nirata. Both these words signify 'fond of, taking pleasure in' primarily, but they have also the secondary meaning 'engaged in; always or incessantly engaged in'. tapo-rata or tapo-nirata thus means 'fond of tapas, taking pleasure in performing tapas' and also 'engaged in tapas, always or incessantly engaged in performing tapas'; similarly dharma-nirata, dhyāna-nirata, yajñādhyana-nirata mean 'fond of dharma, of dhyāna, of yajña and adhyayana' and also 'unceasingly or always engaged in the practice of dharma, of dhyāna, of sacrifice and study.' These words are thus synonyms of tapo-nitya, dharma-nitya, dhyāna-nitya and yajñādhyayana-nitya which too have the above two meanings.

It seems to me therefore that, as in the case of rata and nirata, so in the case of nitya also, the meaning 'always, unceasing' is a secondary meaning derived from that of 'dear'. One to whom the practice of tapas or the performance of sacrifice is pleasing will naturally endeavour to devote as much time as possible to such pleasing work; and hence the development of the secondary meaning 'always, unceasingly' from that of 'dear'.

Max Müller, in SBE. 32, p. 215, gives another explanation of how nitya came to signify 'always, unceasingly'; this explanation however seems to me to be unsatisfactory.

where Sayana explains priyāḥ as svakīyas tanuḥ avadhū-ata akampayan; Ludwig, too, translates priyāḥ here as 'sich' while Grassmann (RV. Ueber.) and Oldenberg (RV. Noten, I, p. 83) adhere to the meaning 'dear'.
Another passage is 1, 114, 7: mā naḥ priyās tanvō rudra vriṣaḥ (with which should be compared the parallel passage from AV. 11, 2, 29: svām tanvām rudra mā vriṣo naḥ) where Sayana adheres to the meaning 'dear', but which has been correctly explained by Bergaigne (III, 152) as 'nos propres corps', by Ludwig as 'unsere eigenen leiber' and by Max Müller (SBE. 32, p. 423) as 'our own bodies'. Max Müller has also (op. cit., p. 425) added the following note: "Priya, dear, used like Gk. philos, in the sense of our own.
See Bergaigne III, 152". With these exceptions,⁵ the word priya is everywhere explained as 'dear,' 'agreeable,'
'pleasant,' etc., by the exegetists, though, as said above, in a considerable number of passages, the word priya is used, not in that sense at all, but in that of 'own'. This is specially the case in the passages which contain compounds with priya as a component word:

8, 27, 19: *yád adyá sūrya udyati prīyakṣatrā ṛtām dadhá |
yán nimrúci prabúdhi viśvavedaso
yád vā madhyāmdine diváh ||*

"Whether you uphold ṛta, O ye that are independent, when the sun rises to-day, or when he goes down, or at midday or at daybreak (literally, at the time of awaking from sleep), O ye that possess all wealth." The hymn in which this verse occurs is addressed to the Viśve

⁵ Further, Oldenberg has suggested (SBE., 46, p. 62) that priyā may have the sense 'own', in 1, 67, 6. Not only in 1, 67, 6 but in 3, 5, 5; 3, 7, 7 and 4, 5, 8 does priyā in my opinion, mean 'own.' The sense of these passages, however, is obscure and I have therefore been unable to include them in those that follow, where priyā = 'own'.

devāḥ or All-Gods to whom therefore the vocatives priyakṣatrāḥ and viśvavedasaḥ refer. priyakṣatrāḥ here does not mean 'whose rule is agreeable (freundlich herrschend; PW, Grassmann, Ludwig)'; but priya here==own, sva, and priyakṣatrāḥ=svakṣatrāḥ, 'ruling themselves, independent'. Compare 5, 48, 1: kād u priyāya dhāmne manāmahe svākṣatrāya svāyaśase mahé vayām which is likewise addressed to the Viśve devāḥ who are here called svākṣatrāḥ; compare also 1, 165, 5 where the Maruts are described as svākṣatrāḥ. priyakṣatra is thus a synonym of svākṣatra, svarāj, svāpati.

8, 71, 2: nahí manyúḥ paúruṣeya íše hí vaḥ priyajāta |
tvám íd asi kṣápāvān ||

"The anger of man, O (Agni) born of thyself, has no power over you; thou indeed art the ruler of the earth." priyajāta here does not mean 'als freund geborener' (Ludwig) or 'erwünscht geboren' (Grassmann), but is equivalent to svajāta, 'born of his own self', an epithet that is frequently applied to Agni; compare agne tanvā sujāta in 3, 15, 2; compare also the epithet tanūnapāt, 'son of self' used of Agni.

10, 150, 3: tvām u jātāvedasam viśvāvāram gr̥ṇe dhiyā |
ágne devāñ ā vaha naḥ priyāvratān
mṛṇīkāya priyāvratān ||

"I praise thee, Jātavedas, that hast all desirable things, with hymn. Bring to us, O Agni, the gods, whose are the ordinances—for grace, (those) whose are the ordinances." priyāvratān=svavratān, those whose are the ordinances; that is, either (1) those who follow their own ordinances (cp. 3, 7, 7: devā devānam ānu hí vratā gūḥ 'the gods followed the ordinances of the gods') and not those of others; that is to say, those who are independent, sovereign; or what comes to the same thing, (2) those from whom come the divine ordinances which are followed in the universe; compare

1, 164, 50 : yajñēna yajñām ayajanta devās tāni dhármanī prathamāny asan ; 3, 56, 1 : ná tā minanti mayīno ná dhīra vratā devānam prathamā dhruvāni ; 1, 36, 5 : tvé tīṣṭva sámgatāni vratā dhruvā yāni devā ákṛuvata, and the expression daivāni vratāni (see Grassmann, s.v. vrata).

1, 140, 1 : *vediśáde priyádhāmāya sudyúte dhāsim iva prá bharā yónim agnáye | vāstreṇeva vāsayā mánmanā súcim
jyotiratham śukrávarṇam tamohānam ||*

“ Offer, like food, a place for Agni, who sits on the altar, whose are the laws and who shines well. Adorn with the hymn, as if with an ornament, (Agni), the bright, the destroyer of darkness, the brilliant-coloured, who has a chariot of splendour ’. priyádhāmāya = svadhāmne = svavratāya in either of the meanings given above. Compare 3, 21, 2 where Agni is addressed as svádharmāni ‘following his own laws’ ; regarding the second sense, compare the epithet vratapāḥ (see Grassmann, s. v.) that is applied to Agni ; compare also 7, 6, 2 : agnér vratāni pūrvyā mahāni ; 2, 8, 3 : yásya (sc. agner) vratām ná miyate ; 1, 69, 7 : nákiṣ ṭa (agneḥ) etā vratā minanti ; and 6, 7, 5 : vaiśvānara túva tāni vratāni mahāny agne nákir ā dadharṣa. In the second pāda the word iva has really the force of ca and dhāsim iva yonim prabhara means dhāsim yonim ca prabhara.

There can be no doubt that the word priyádhāman has this same meaning in AV. 17, 1, 10 also : tvām na indrotibhiḥ śivābhiḥ śántamo bhava | āróhamṣ tridivām divó grṇānāḥ sómapīṭaye priyádhāmā svastāye . . .
“ Do thou, O Indra, be most beneficent to us with propitious aids—(thou) ascending to the triple heaven of the heaven, praised (that is, invoked) for drinking the Soma and for well-being, sovereign . . . ”

TS. 1, 3, 8, 1 : révatīr yajñápatiṁ priyadhā viśata !
The Maitr. Sam. (1, 2, 15 ; p. 25, l. 7) and the Kāth. Sam. (3, 6 ; p. 25, l. 13) read revati predhā yajñāpatiṁ

āviśa, while the Vāj. Sam. (6, 11) reads révati yájamane priyám dhā āviśa. It seems clear therefore that priya has become shortened to pre in predhā and that the anuvāra in priyāmdhā is an intruder.⁶ The word itself is formed from priya with the suffix dhā (see Whitney's Grammar, § 1104). priyadhā here is equivalent to svadhā, and I translate: "O ye that have riches, enter into the sacrificer according to your wont". The commentator Bhaṭṭabhāskara takes rēvatīḥ as an epithet of paśvavaya-vāḥ while Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara interpret revati as referring to vāk.

priya, uncompounded, has the meaning sva, 'own', in the following passages:—

1, 114, 7: *mā no mahāntam utā mā no arbhakām mā na úkṣantam utā mā na ukṣitām |
mā no vadhīḥ pitāram mótā mātāram
priyā mā nas tanvò rudra ririṣaḥ ||*

"Do not injure our great or our small ones, our growing or our grown ones, our father or our mother, or our own selves, O Rudra".

1, 154, 5: *tād asya priyám abhī pātho aśyām nāro yātra devayāvo mādanti | urukramāsyā sá hí bāndhur itthā
viṣṇoḥ padé paramé mādharma útsaḥ ||*

"May I attain the abode, where pious people rejoice, of him whose steps are broad. He is thus our relation; there is a spring of honey in the supreme abode of Viṣṇu". priyam pāthiḥ here has the same meaning as priyam dhāma in the passages given below ; it means the own abode of Viṣṇu, viṣṇoḥ paramām padām as the fourth pada expresses it, the Viṣṇuloka of later times.

1, 162, 2 : *yān nirṇijā rékṇasā prāvṛtasya rātīm gr̥bhitām mukható náyanti | súprāñ ajó mémyad viśvārūpa
indrāpūṣṇoḥ priyām ápy eti páthah ||*

“When they lead (it) in front of the offering covered with wealth and jewels (that is, of the sacrificial horse), the goat of all forms, bleating, goes directly forward to the own abode of Indra and Pūṣan”.

10, 15, 5 : *úpahūtāḥ pitáraḥ somyāso barhiṣyèṣu nidhīṣu priyéṣu |
tá ā gamantu tá ihá śruvantv
ádhi bruvantu tè'vantv asmān ||*

“The Soma-deserving fathers are called (to appear and seat themselves) in their own seats on the barhis. May they come here, hear us, speak assuringly to us and protect us.” This verse, as also the two preceding verses are addressed to the barhiṣadaḥ pitaraḥ, the ‘pitṛs that sit on the barhis’; hence the prayer to them to take their own seats on the barhis.

9, 55, 2 : *índo yáthā táva stávo yáthā te jātām ándhasaḥ |
ní barhíṣi priyé sadaḥ ||*

“O Indu, according to the praise addressed to thee (that is, the prayer) and to what has happened to thy juice, seat thyself on thy own barhis (that is, on thy own seat on the barhis)”.

8, 13, 24 : *tām imahe puruṣtutām
yahvām pratnābhiv ūtibhiḥ |
ní barhíṣi priyé sadad ádha dvitā ||*

“We pray to him who is often-praised, who is active with protection extending from old time; may he seat himself on his own seat on the barhis”.

1, 85, 7 : tè'vardhanta svátavaso mahitvanā
nākaṁ tasthūr urú cakrive sādah | viṣṇur yád dhāvad vṛṣaṇaṁ madacyútaṁ
váyo ná sīdann ádhi barhīṣi priyé ||

“They that are naturally mighty grew with their might; they went to heaven and made a large seat. When Viṣṇu ran to the strong, intoxicating (Soma), they seated themselves in their own barhis like birds (in their nests).”

1, 189, 4 : pāhí no agne pāyúbhīr ájasrair
utá priyé sádana ā śusukvān |
mā te bhayám jaritāraṁ yaviṣṭha
nūnám vidan mā parám sahasvāḥ ||

“O Agni, do thou, shining in thy own abode, protect us with unwearied protections; O thou that art strong, the youngest, may not (thy) praiser suffer from any fear of thee or from any other fear.” The expression priyé sádana ā śusukvān here corresponds exactly to dīdivāṁsaṁ své dāme, 2, 2, 11; dīdivim (vārdhamānaṁ) své dāme, 1, 1, 8; gopā ṛtasya dīdihi své dāme, 3, 10, 2; svā ā yás túbhyaṁ dāma ā vibhāti, 1, 71, 6; yó dīdāya sámiddhaḥ své duroṇé, 7, 12, 1; and dīdyan mārtyeṣv ā | své kṣāye śucivrata in 10, 118, 1.

10, 13, 4 : devébhyaḥ kām avṛṇīta mṛtyúṁ prajāyai kām amṛtaṁ nāvṛṇīta | bṛhaspátim yajñám akr̥vata ṛṣim
priyám yamás tanvām prārireṇīcit ||

“He held back death from the gods; he did not hold back immortality from men; he made Bṛhaspati the sacrifice and the ṛṣi; Yama let our own body (or self) remain”.

9, 73, 2 : samyák samyāñco mahiṣā aheṣata sīndhor ūrmāv ádhi venā avīviṣan | mádhōr dhārābhīr janáyanto arkám it
priyám índrasya tanvām avīvṛdhan ||

“The beautiful strong ones have moved well forward ; the loving ones have moved in the wave of the sea ; with the streams of mead producing a song. they have made Indra's own body grow.”

10, 132, 5 : *asmin sv ètác chàkapūta éno hité mitré nígatān hanti vīrān |
avór vā yád dhāt tanúṣv
ávaḥ priyāsu yajñíyāsv árvā ||*

“Śakapūta kills the brave men that have committed this sin in respect of this well-disposed Mitra when the courser placed his strength in the own worshipful bodies of these two (sc. of Mitra and Varuṇa)”. The meaning of this verse is not clear and widely-divergent explanations are given of it by Sāyaṇa and Ludwig. It is difficult to say who is denoted by the term arvā (courser) in pāda d and if the word śakapūta is really a proper name.

2, 20, 6 : *sá ha śrutá índro nāma devá ūrdhvó bhuvan mánuṣe dasmátamah |
áva priyám arśasānāsya sāhvāñ
chíro bharad dāsásya svadhāvān ||*

“He, the god known by the name of Indra, of most wonderful might, raised himself aloft high over man ; he, the mighty conqueror, brought down the own head of the evil-doing dāsa.”

8, 12, 32 : *yád asya dhāmani priyé samīcīnāso ásvaran |
nābhā yajñásya dokānā prādhvaré ||*

“When the united ones (priests?) made a sound (song?) in his own abode, in the navel of the sacrifice, by milking in the sacrifice.”

6, 67, 9 : *prá yád vām mitrāvaruṇā spūrdhān priyā dhāma yuvádhītā minānti |
ná yé devāsa óhasā ná mártā
áyajñasāco ápyo ná putráḥ ||*

“When they, O Mitra and Varuṇa, become jealous of you and violate the own ordinances laid down by you—they, who are by repute no gods and no mortals, who, like the sons of Apī, are no performers of sacrifice.” The second half-verse is not clear; in the first half-verse, the expression priyā dhāma yuvādhītā ‘the own ordinances laid down by you,’ is equivalent to ‘your own ordinances; the ordinances laid down by you in person’.

3, 55, 10 : *viṣṇur gopāḥ paramām pāti pāthah priyā dhāmāny amṛtā dādhānah | agnīṣ tā viśvā bhūvanāni veda
mahād devānām asuratvām ékam ||*

“Viṣṇu, the protector, rules over the supreme realm, supporting his own immortal abodes; Agni knows all those worlds. The asura-hood (might?) of the gods is alone great.”

4, 5, 4 : *prā tāñ agnīr babhasat tigmājambhas tāpiṣṭhena śociṣā yāḥ surādhāḥ | prā yé minānti vāruṇasya dhāma
priyā mitrāsya cétato dhruvāni ||*

“May Agni, who has sharp jaws and who makes good gifts, eat up with his hottest flames those who violate the own immutable ordinances of Varuṇa and of Mitra who observes (or, who knows).”

1, 87, 6 : *śriyāse kām bhānúbhiḥ sām mimikṣire té raśmībhis tá ṛkvabhiḥ sukhādāyah |
té vāśīmanta iṣmīṇo ābhīravo
vidré priyāsya mārutasya dhāmnaḥ ||*

“For their glory, they (sc. the Maruts) united themselves with bright reins and brilliant (ornaments): they, with beautiful khadis and axes, impetuous, fearless, knew of their own Marut troop”. The meaning of the fourth pada is not clear as the word dhāma used in it is ambiguous.

9, 12, 8 : abhī priyā divās padā sómo hinvānó arṣati |
vīprasya dhārayā kavīh ||

“The wise Soma being impelled flows swiftly with (his) stream (and with the hymn of praise) of the priest to his own places in heaven”.

9, 38, 6 : eṣā syā pītāye suto hārīr arṣati dharmasīh |
krāndan yonim abhī priyām ||

“This strong, yellow (Soma), that is expressed for being drunk, rushes crying to his own place.”

4, 45, 3 : mādhvaḥ pibatam madhupébhir āsābhir
utā priyām mādhone yuñjāthām rátham |
ā vartanīm mādhunā jinvathaḥ pathó
dýtim vahethe mādhumantam āśvinā ||

6, 51, 1 : úd u tyác cákṣur máhi mitráyor āñ éti priyām váruṇayor ádabdam | ṛtasya śuci darsatām ánīkam
rukmo ná divá úditā vy ádyaut ||

“This great own eye of Mitra and Varuṇa, which cannot be deceived, arises; the pure and beautiful face of ṛta has blazed forth in rising like a brilliant jewel in the sky”.

4, 52, 7 : ā dyām tanoṣi raśmībhir
ántarikṣam urú priyām |
úṣaḥ śukréṇa śocīṣā ||

“Thou extendest the heaven with thy rays and also thy own broad sky with thy radiant effulgence, O Uṣas’ . The sky, antarikṣa, is called “Uṣas’ own” probably because Uṣas is an antarikṣa-sthāniya-devatā and the antarikṣa thus belongs to her.

1, 124, 4 : úpo aharṣi śundhyúvo ná vákṣo
nodhā ivāvīr akṛta priyāṇi | admasān ná sasatō bodháyanti
śaśvattamāgāt púnar eyúṣīnām ||

“ The breast (that is, the upper body) of Uṣas has come to view like that of a resplendent (young) woman ; she has made manifest her own (greatness) like nodhas : waking the sleepers like the hotṛ, she has come again, the most frequent comer of those that come again”. After priyāṇi, own, I supply the word mahimnaḥ following 7, 75, 1 : vy úṣā āvo divijā ṛtēnāviṣkṛvānā mahimānam āgāt. The same word, or, if a neuter noun be deemed necessary, the word mahitvam or mahitvanam, it seems to me, should be supplied also in 4, 4, 5 : āviṣ kṛṇuṣva daivyāny agne (daivyāni=daivyāni mahitvāni ; daivyāni vīryāni ; Sāyaṇa supplies tejāṁsi) and 2, 23, 14 : āviṣ tát kṛṣva yád āsat ta ukthyām (yat=yat mahitvam ; yad vīryam ; Sāyaṇa has yad vīryam). nodhas still remains an obscure word and its meaning is unknown.

priya means ‘own’ in the following passages also : TS. 5, 1, 5, 2 : chāndāṁsi khálu vā agnēḥ priyā tanūḥ | priyāyaivainam tanúvā páridadhāti “ the chandāṁsi, indeed, are the own body (self) of Agni ; he covers him with his own body (self) ” ; ibid., 5, 1, 6, 2 : eṣā vā agnēḥ priyā tanúr yád ajā priyāyaivainam tanúvā sáṁsi jati “ this namely, the she-goat, is verily the own body (self) of Agni ; he unites him with his own body (self) ” ; ibid., 5, 7, 3, 4 : eṣā khálu vā agnēḥ priyā tanúr yád vaiśvānarāḥ | priyāyām evainam tanúvām prātiṣṭhāpayati “ this, namely, Vaiśvanara, is verily Agni’s own body ; he establishes him in his own body ” (compare vaiśvānara iti va agnēḥ priyam dhāma “Vaiśvanara is Agni’s own body” in Tāṇḍya Br. 14, 2, 3 ; and Ait. Br. 3, 8, 6-7) ; TS. 5, 3, 10, 3 : etád vā agnēḥ priyām dhāma yád ghṛtām priyēṇaivainam dhāmnā sāmardhayati “ this namely, ghee, is verily the own form of Agni ; he makes him thrive with his own form"; KS. 20, 1: agner vā eṣā vaiśvānarasya priyā tanūr yat śikataḥ "this, namely, sand, is verily the own body of Agni"; ibid., 21, 3: priyayaivainam tanvā samardhayati "he makes him thrive with his own body (form)".

Likewise, it means 'own' in VS. 2, 17: agnēḥ priyam pātho 'pitam "Go to the own abode of Agni"; in VS. 8, 50: agnēḥ, indrasya, viśveṣāṃ devānām, priyam pātho 'pihi "Go to the own abode of Agni, Indra, Viśvedevas" (compare svam pātho apītha 'go to your own abode' in ĀŚS. 1, 11, 8); and AV. 2, 34, 2: pramuñcānto bhūvanasya réto gātūm dhatta yājamānāya devāḥ | upākṛtaṃ śāsamānam yád āsthāt priyam devānām āpy etu pāthaḥ "Do ye, releasing the seed of being, show the way to the sacrificer, O gods; what, brought hither and immolated, stood up, living, let it go to the own abode of the gods (compare TS. 3, 1, 4, 3: upākṛtañ śāsamānam yád āsthāḥ jīvām devānām āpy etu pāthaḥ and TS. 5, 1, 11, 4: ásvo ghytēna tmānyā sámakta úpa devāñ rtuśāḥ pātha etu). And similarly priya means 'own' in TS. 1, 5, 3, 2-3: saptá te agne samídhaḥ saptá jihvāḥ saptá ṛṣayaḥ saptá dhāma priyāni and in ibid., 1, 5, 4, 4: saptá sapta vai saptadhāgnēḥ priyās tanúvaḥ.

In the same way there can be no doubt that priya generally means 'own' in the expression priyam dhāma which occurs fairly frequently in the Yajus-samhitās and Brāhmaṇas and is interpreted by Böhtlingk and Roth (s.v. dhāma) as 'gewohnte Heimath, Lieblingsstätte, Lieblings-sache, Liebhaberei, Lieblings-name,-preise, -person' and by Geldner (Glossar, s.v. dhāma) as 'das liebe Wesen, die liebe Persönlichkeit, Lieblingsname, die liebe Person,' etc.; thus:

"Pratardana, son of Divodāsa, went to Indra's own abode by means of battle and valour. Indra said to him,

'Pratardana, I grant thee a boon.' " Indrasya priyam dhāma here does not mean 'Freundschaft, Gunst, Liebe' of Indra (as Geldner would have it) or 'gewohnte Heimath' of Indra (PW), but 'Indra's own abode', the domain that he rules over and that is known as Indraloka or svarga in later literature which Pratardana won through his valour in battle (see Macdonell in Vedic Index, s.v. Pratardana). The allusion here is to the well-known belief of the Indian writers that those who die in battle fighting valiantly go to heaven; compare Manu, 7, 89: āhaveṣu mitho 'nyonyam jighāmsanto mahīkṣitaḥ | yudhya-mānāḥ param śaktyā svargam yānti aparāṇmukhāḥ, and Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra, 10, 3 (p. 365): vedeṣv apy anu-śrūyate—samāpta-dakṣiṇānām yajñānām avabhr̥theṣu sā te gatiḥ yā sūrāṇām iti yān yajñasaṅghais tapasā ca viprāḥ svargaiṣiṇaḥ pātracayaś ca yānti | kṣaṇena tān apy apiyānti sūrāḥ prāṇān suyuddheṣu parityajantaḥ.

Ait. Br. 6, 20, 9-10: etena vai vasiṣṭha indrasya priyam dhāmopāgacchat | sa paramam lokam ajayat | upendrasya priyam dhāma (Aufrecht's edition reads lokam here which is incorrect) gacchati jayati paramam lokam ya evam veda ||

"By means of this (sūkta; hymn of praise), verily, Vasiṣṭha attained the own abode of Indra, he won the highest world; he who knows this goes to Indra's own abode, wins the highest world."

And similarly, in ibid., 5, 2, 5: etena vai gr̥tsamada indrasya priyam dhāmopāgacchat; 5, 2, 12: gayāḥ plāto viśveṣām devānām priyam dhāmopāgacchat; 1, 21, 6: etābhīr hāṣvīnoḥ kakṣīvān priyam dhāmopāgacchat; TS. 5, 2, 1, 6: etēna vai vatsapr̥tīr bhalandanō 'gnēḥ priyam dhāmācārundaha; ibid. 5, 2, 3, 4: etēna vai viśvāmitro 'gnēḥ priyam dhāmācārunddha; and in ibid., 5, 3, 11, 3: agnēḥ priyam dhāma, ṛtūnām priyam dhāma, I take priya in the sense of 'own' and dhāma in the sense of 'abode.' With regard to the latter word, the meaning of ‘Persönlichkeit, Wesen, Form’, suggested by Geldner is however not unsuitable in these passages which can be translated as “By means of this (hymn of praise) Gr̥tsamada attained verily the own personality of Indra”, etc.; for, in similar passages in later literature that describe the virtue of hymns of praise (stotra) or of mantras, we read not only that the author of the hymn of praise and the others that made use of the stotra or mantra in question (compare upa agneḥ, indrasya, priyam dhāma gacchati ya evam veda in the above passages) attain the world of the particular deity (sāyujyam gacchati, salokatām āpnoti) that is addressed by the stotra or mantra but also that they become such deity itself (sarūpatām āpnoti). Compare for instance, Lalitāsahasra-nāmastotra (Nirṇaya-sāgara ed., v. 289 ff.): pratimāsam paurṇamāsyām ebhir nāmasahasrakaiḥ | rātrau yaś cakra-rājasthām arcayet paradevatām || sa eva lalitārūpas tadrūpā lalitā svayam | na tayoṛ vidyate bhedo bhedakṛt pāpakṛd bhavet ||; Avyaktopaniṣat, Kh. 7: ya imām vidyām adhīte dehānte tamasaḥ param dhāma prāpnuyāt | yatra virāt nṛsimho’vabhāsate tatsvarūpa-dhyānaparā munaya ākalpānte tasminn eva liyante; Tripurātāpinī Upaniṣat, 4: om namaś śivāyeti yājuṣamantropāsako rudratvam prāpnoti; and Rāmarahasyopaniṣat, Ch. 5: rāmamantrāṇām kṛtapuraścaraṇo rāmacandro bhavati.

priya means ‘own’ in the other passages too given in PW. Thus, VS. 1, 31: dhāma nāmāsi priyam devānām “Thou art the gods’ own form and name”; ibid., 2, 6: priyēṇa dhāmnā priyam sāda āsīda “Sit in thy own seat in thy own form”; priyā dhāmāni and priyā pāthāmsi in VS. 21, 46 ff. mean ‘own abodes, own domains’; Śata. Br. 3, 4, 2, 5: te devā juṣṭās tanūḥ priyāni dhāmāni sārddham samavadadire “The gods took together portions from their own selves, from their own powers”; ibid., 10, 1, 3, 11: etad dhāsyā priyam dhāma yad yaviṣṭha iti “This is indeed his own name, that of ‘youngest’”; and ibid., 2, 3, 4, 24: āhutayo vā asya priyam dhāma “The oblations are indeed the own essence of him"; priyēnai-vainam dhāmnā samardhayati, samsparsayati, pratyeti, etc.) "With his own body (or form, or nature, etc.) he makes him thrive (covers him, etc.)."

The word svā, which, like nītya, primarily means 'own,' seems likewise to be used in the sense of priya in some passages. Instances of such usage are:

2, 5, 7 : svāḥ svāya dhāyase
kṛnutām ṛtvīg ṛtvījam |
stóman yaज्ञām cād áram
vanēmā rarimā vayám ||

"May the beloved (Agni), the priest, for the sake of dear food, make ready the (human) priest; may he then control the praise and sacrifice; we have offered (oblations)". The sense of this verse is obscure and 1, 31, 13 where the words dhāyase, vanoṣi and mantram occur, scarcely helps here. But sva seems to mean 'dear, beloved' here; compare the passages given above where Agni is called 'dear'. Regarding svam dhāyaḥ compare 10, 112, 4: priyēbhir yāhi priyām ánnam áccha and note the repetition of the word priya here similar to that of sva in the above verse. Compare also 1, 58, 2: ā svám ádma yuvámāno ajārah . . atasēsu tiṣṭhati where too perhaps sva means 'dear'.

3, 31, 21 : ádediṣṭa vṛtrahā gópatir gā antāḥ kṛṣṇāñ aruṣaír dhāmabhir gāt |
prá sūnṛtā diśámāna ṛténa
dúraś ca víśvā avṛṇod ápa svāḥ ||

"The destroyer of Vṛtra, the lord of cows, has given cows; with his bright troops he penetrated into the dark ones. Bestowing riches rightly, he has opened all the dear doors." To interpret the last pada as 'he has opened all his own doors' hardly yields any sense; I therefore take svaḥ here as equivalent to priyāḥ. Compare 1, 142, 6: pāvakāsaḥ puruṣpīho dvāro devír asaścātaḥ; 7, 17, 2: utá dvāra usatír ví śrayantām and 10, 70, 5 : ví śrayadhvam uśatīr dvārah where the doors are called 'much-beloved, dear'. The 'dear' doors are, evidently, those that give access to the chamber or other receptacle that contains wealth (compare, rāyo durah in 1, 68, 10 : ví rāya aurṇod dúrah purukṣúh); and the epithet 'dear' seems to be transferred to the doors from the wealth which as we know is often described in the RV. as being 'dear'; compare 4, 41, 10 given above and the passages cited in connection therewith.

10, 120, 8 : *imā bráhma brháddivo vivakt-indrāya śūṣām agriyāh svarṣāh |
 mahó gotrásya kṣayati svarājo
 dúraś ca víśvā avṛṇod ápa svāh ||*

"These mighty hymns Brhaddiva speaks out for Indra. He, the foremost, the winner of light, is the lord of the mighty and independent stone; he has opened all the dear doors". By the 'mighty and independent stone' is here meant the Vajra or thunderbolt of Indra with which he opens the doors of the receptacle containing riches and which is elsewhere called adri, parvata and aśman: compare 4, 22, 1 : yó (sc. indrah) áśmānam śávasā bíbhrad éti; 6, 22, 6 : manojúvā svatavaḥ párvata-tena | ácyutā cid vilítā svojo rujāh; and 1, 51, 3 : saséna cid vimadāyāvaho vástv ājāv ádriṁ vāvasānásya nartāyan. The epithet svarāj, 'independent,' indicates perhaps that the Vajra is irresistible and overcomes all.

8, 70, 11 : *anyávrataṁ ámānuṣam áyajvānam ádevayum |
 áva svāh sákhā dudhuvīta párvataḥ
 sughnāya dásyum párvataḥ ||*

"May the dear friend Parvata shake off him who follows another's ordinance, who is not human, who does not sacrifice, who is impious; and may Parvata (shake off) the Dasyu for swift death (?)".

3, 31, 10: saṁpáśyamānā amadann abhí svām
páyah prasnáśya rétaso dúghānāḥ |
ví ródasī atapad ghóṣa eṣām
jāté niṣṭhām ádadhur góṣu vīrān ||

“Seeing and milking the milk of the old one’s semen, they (the Aṅgirasas) gladdened the dear (Indra). Their shout warmed the two worlds; they placed him the foremost in what is born (that is, in the creation); they placed heroes amidst the kine (or, in the kine)”. I understand this verse as referring to the winning of the sun which also is one of the exploits of Indra in association with the Aṅgirasas; see Macdonell’s Vedic Mythology, pp. 61 and 143. The ‘old one,’ pratna, is Dyaus or Heaven and his ‘seed,’ retah, is the sun; compare 8, 6, 30: ād ít prasnáśya rétaso jyótiṣ paśyanti vāsarām; 1, 100, 3: divó ná yásya rétaso dúghānāḥ; 5, 17, 3: divó ná yásya rétasā bṛhác chócanty arcáyah; and 10, 37, 1: divás putráya sūryāya śamsata. The second pāda therefore means, ‘making the sun appear’. In the first pāda, the word svam has been interpreted by Geldner (Kommentar, p. 51), following Sāyaṇa, as svakīyam godhanam and the verb abhi amadan in the sense of ‘rejoicing’ (Glossar; sich freuen über). The combination abhi mad is however met with in another verse of the RV, namely, in 1, 51, 1: abhí tyám meṣām puruhūtám ṛgmīyam índraṁ gīrbhír madata where it has the sense, not of ‘rejoicing’ but of ‘gladdening’. I believe that this is the sense here also, and that amadann abhi svam means ‘they gladdened the dear (Indra),’ that is to say, that they praised him; compare 1, 62, 5: grṇānó āṅgirobhir dasma ví var uśāsā sūryeṇa góbhír ándhaḥ. Compare also 1, 142, 4; 5, 5, 3; 8, 50, 3; and 8, 98, 4 where the epithet priya is used of Indra. In the last pāda, the expression ‘they placed heroes in the kine (or, amidst the kine)’ is not very intelligible to me; Oldenberg (RI. Noten 1, p. 241) suggests that it means that 'they exerted themselves in such a way that the heroes were no more cut off from the possession of cows.'

AV. 6, 83, 4: *vīhī svām āhutiṁ juṣāṇó mānasā
svāhā mānasā yád idám juhómi |*

"Consume the dear oblation, enjoying with the mind, hail, as now I make oblation with the mind."

AV. 3, 19, 3: *nīcaīḥ padyantām ádhare bhavantu
yé naḥ sūrīm maghávānam pṛtanyān | kṣiṇāmi bráhmanāmítrān
ún nayāmi svān ahám ||*

"Downward let them fall, let them become inferior, who may fight against our liberal patron. With my incantation, I destroy the enemies; I raise those that are dear (to me)." Though the interpretation of svān as '(my) own people' is not unsuited here, the contrast between amitrān and svān shows that the latter word has here the sense of 'those that are dear to me; those whom I like; friends.'

AV. 7, 77, 5: *taptó vām gharmó nakṣatu sváhotā
prá vām adhvaryúś caratu páyasvān | mádhvō dugdháśyāśvinā tanāyā
vītām pātām páyasa úsríyāyāḥ ||*

"The gharma is heated for you; let the dear hotr approach; let the adhvaryu, rich in milk, move forward. Eat ye, O Ásvins, of this milked sweet; drink ye of this cow's milk." The word tanāyāḥ is obscure and I have followed Ludwig here in translating it as 'this.' Regarding sváhotā, compare what has been said above under nityahotā. Compare also 7, 73, 2: *ny ù priyó mānuṣaḥ sādī
hótā nāsatyā yó yájate vándate ca | aśnītām mádhvo aśvinā upākā á vām voce vidátheṣu práyasvān* where the expressions priyo hotā, aśnītām madhvo aśvinā, and prayasvān are parallel to svahotā, madhvō aśvinā vītām, and prayasvān (for, this is the correct reading, found, as is noted by Whitney in his Translation, in the Kauśika-sūtra and the Vaitāna-sūtra and also in Sāyaṇa's commentary, and not payasvān) in the above verse.

10, 21, 1 : āgnīm ná svāvṛktibhir hótāraṁ tvā vṛṇīmahe |
yajñāya stīrṇābarhiṣe ví vo máde
śīrām pāvakāsociṣaṁ vívakṣase ||

“As Agni, we, with pleasingly-cut (hymns of praise), choose thee hotṛ for the sacrifice where the barhis is spread—thee that art burning and that hast clear light.” Compare priyā taṣṭāni, pleasingly-cut, pleasingly-fashioned (limbs) in 10, 86, 5 and the verses 1, 130, 6; 5, 2, 11; 5, 29, 15; 5, 73, 10; etc., which speak of hymns being ‘cut’ or ‘fashioned’ into shape. Concerning the refrain, ví vo máde . . . vívakṣase, which is not here translated, see Oldenberg, RV. Noten II, p. 221 and the literature referred to therein.

utāyām indra yás táva ||

“Drink of these (Somas that are mixed) with pleasing milk; and what is with Tugrya and that which is here, O Indra, are thine.” svádhainavānām is equivalent to priyadhainavānām: the reference is to the milk which is added to the Soma juice. Compare 9, 101, 8 : sám u priyā anūṣata gāvo mādāya ghīṣvayaḥ | sómāsaḥ kṛṇvate pathāḥ pāvamānāsa indavaḥ; compare also 9, 32, 5 : abhī gāvo anūṣata yóṣā jārām iva priyām; 9, 1, 9 : abhī mām āghnyā utá śrīṇānti dhcnávaḥ śísum | sómam indrāya pātave; 9, 9, 1 : pári priyā divāḥ kavír vāyāmsi naptyòr hitāḥ | suvānó yāti kavíkratuḥ.

In the above translations, I have assumed that the words svāvṛkti, svádhainava and svádhṛti have really the word sva as a component, in which case priyāvṛkti, priyadhainava and priyadhṛti are the best equivalents for them. I do not however feel certain that this assumption is correct; or rather, I feel inclined to believe that the word sva is not really a component of these words at all. We know that in Sanskrit there exist a number of words beginning really with su- but having a variant form beginning with sva-. As examples of such, I may cite the following from PW—svagupta, svagr̥hītanāman, svadhā, svadhita, svadhiti, svastha, svabrahmanyā, svabhadra, svavāsini, and svarāṣṭra (proper name of a people), svapura (name of a town), svabhūmi (proper name), and svareṇu (proper name) all which have also forms beginning with su- instead of sva-. The word sujana occurs in the form svajana in Ind. Spr. (II), 6672, svajana-durjanyoh, and it is remarked in PW ‘nicht selten werden svajana und sujana mit einander verwechselt.’ Similarly, the PW gives references to passages where the word svaprakāśa has the meaning ‘clear,’ that is, of suprakāśa. In the RV itself, we have the form svadhā, nectar, instead of sudhā and the form svāyaśastaram in 8, 60, 11 where the SV reads suyaśastaram. I am inclined to think that the words svāvṛkti, svādhainava, and svādhyti also belong to this class and that they are but variants of the words svṛktī, sudhainava and sudhyti. Of these latter, the word svṛktī occurs frequently in the RV. It is derived from the root ṛc in PW but I believe that it really comes from the root vrj ‘to cut’ (compare the word vrkta-barhis) and that the meaning is ‘well cut, well-fashioned’; see what has been said above under 10, 21, 1. I would therefore translate the passages 10, 21, 1; 8, 32, 20; and VS. 22, 19 as follows: “As Agni, we with well-fashioned (hymns) choose thee hotṛ for the sacrifice,” etc.; “Drink of these Somas that are well mixed with good milk,” etc.; and “Here steadiness; here good steadiness, hail!”. With regard to the VS passage, the commentator Uvāṭa, I may here observe, has paraphrased svadhyti by sādhu-dhyti which seems to show that he too regarded it as a variant of sudhyti.

Wackernagel, in his Altindische Grammatik II, § 33b (p. 81), refers to the frequently-expressed opinion, the best exposition of which is by Zubaty' in KZ, 31, p. 52ff., that su- in compounds has, in addition to itself, an ablaut form sva-, and observes that the examples adduced by Zubaty' namely, svadhā-sudhā, svadhiti-sudhiti, and svadhita-sudhita are too few in number to justify such an opinion. The number of examples, however, is not, as he thinks, restricted to the three mentioned here ; for we have already met with two more examples above—svāvṛkti-suvṛktī, svāyaśastara-suyaśastara and we shall meet with some more presently. And, secondly, the statement that 'su- has in addition to itself an ablaut form sva- in compounds' gives but a partial and incorrect representation of the real fact, namely, that in Sanskrit, and in the Vedic language also, there occur a certain number of words beginning with su- that have got variant forms beginning with sva- or, alternatively, that there occur a certain number of words beginning with sva- that have got variant forms beginning with su-. This does not mean that the first word in all such compounds is in reality su and that the form beginning with sva- is a variant of this; for there occur some compounds in which the first word is really sva and in whose case the form beginning with su- is a variant of such original form with sva-. Compare Tait. Up. 2, 7 : asad vā idam agra āsīt | tato vai sad ajāyata | tad ātmānaṁ svayam akuruta | tasmāt tat sukṛtam ucyata iti ; the word sukṛta here stands patently for svakṛta and is thus a variant of it ; compare Śaṅkara's commentary thereon : sukṛtaṁ svayam-kartr ucyate and Śaṅkarānanda's scholium, sukṛtaṁ svārthe 'yam soḥ prayogaḥ | svena saṁskṛtavat svakṛtam. Compare also Muṇḍ. Up. 1, 2, 1 : eṣa vaḥ paṇthāḥ sukṛtasya loke (Śaṅkara : sukṛtasya svayam nirvartitasya karmaṇo loke) ; ibid., 1, 2, 6 : eṣa vaḥ puṇyaḥ sukṛto brahmalokaḥ and also ibid., 1, 2, 10 : nākasya pṛṣṭhe te sukṛte 'nubhūtvā imāṁ lokāṁ hīnataraṁ vā viśanti where too in all probability sukṛtaḥ=svakṛtaḥ: and Kaṭīa Up. 1, 3, 1: ṛtaṁ pibantau sukṛtasya loke chāyāṁ praviṣṭau parama parārdhe where Śaṅkara has explained sukṛtasya as svayam kṛtasya karmanah. It must therefore be understood that in the case of compounds that occur in two forms, one beginning with su- and the other with sva-, the original form may be either the one beginning with su- or the one beginning with sva-. And as a corollary, it has also to be admitted that in the case of compounds that occur in one form only, either beginning with su- or beginning with sva-, it is possible that such form beginning with su- or sva- may not be the original form of the word at all, but only a variant of the original form beginning with sva- or su- as the case may be.

In other words, when we meet with compounds with su- or sva-, it is desirable to investigate first if such compound occurs in both forms or in one form only. In the latter case, one should further find out which of the two words, su and sva, gives the better meaning for the compound in connection with the passage where it occurs and determine accordingly the original form of the word and its meaning and also whether the word occurs in the given passage in its original form or in a variant form. The same thing has to be done in the former case also; but if, as sometimes happens, both the words su and sva are found to give the better meaning, each in its own context, one should postulate two original forms, beginning with su and sva respectively, and interpret the words accordingly: if, on the other hand, one only of the two words, su and sva, is found to give a good meaning (or the better meaning) in all the passages (where the compound occurs in either form), one should postulate one original form (beginning with su- or sva- as the case may be) and regard the other form (beginning with sva- or su- as the case may be) as a variant of it and interpret the passages accordingly.

The bearing of the foregoing remarks may perhaps be better understood from a consideration of some compounds beginning with sva- and su-. The words svákṣatra-sukṣatrá both occur in the RV; and the originality of the form svákṣatra is proved by the occurrence of the parallel word priyakṣatra; see above. One has therefore to consider if the word sukṣatrá, in the passages where it occurs, gives a better meaning when one regards it as occurring in its original form and therefore interprets it as 'having excellent dominion' (śobhanam kṣatram yasya) or when it is regarded as a variant of the word svakṣatra and therefore interpreted as 'whose is dominion' (svam kṣatram yasya), that is, 'ruling over others; sovereign.' Considering that the word sukṣatrá is used almost exclusively as an epithet of various gods, and that in their case, the meaning 'sovereign; ruling over others' is more appropriate and forceful than that of 'having excellent dominion,' I feel inclined to give preference to the latter of the above meanings and thus to regard sukṣatrá as a variant of the original form svákṣatra, which, too, be it noted, is used almost exclusively as an epithet of various gods. On the other hand, in the case of the words suścandrā-sváścandra both occurring in the RV, I consider that the interpretation 'well-shining' is, in every passage, to be preferred to that of 'shining of itself,' 'self-shining'; and I therefore regard sváścandra in 1, 52, 9, the only passage where it occurs, as equivalent to suścandrā and as meaning 'well-shining.' As regards the words suhóṭṛ (RV)—sváhoṭṛ (AV), the occurrence of the word nítياهوṭṛ (see p. 14 above) seems to show that the latter form (in AV. 7, 77, 5) is original and should be interpreted in the same way as nítياهوṭṛ, while the juxtaposition of the word svadhvará in 8, 103, 12: yáh suhótā svadhvaráh seems to show that here the interpretation "good hoṭṛ" gives the better meaning. I therefore regard both words as being in their original forms. Of the pair sváyaśastara, 'renowned of one's self' (RV)—súyaśastara 'having much renown' (SV), it is obvious that the latter is the better meaning. I believe therefore that sváyaśastara in the RV is a variant of súyaśastara and means the same as that word, and likewise that the word sváyaśas occurring frequently in the RV, is a variant of, and has the same meaning as, súyaśas. Similarly, of the pair sugopá (having a good protector; well-protected)—svágopa (protected by one's self; self-protected), both occurring in the RV, the former meaning seems to be obviously better than the latter; and I therefore think it preferable to interpret svágopa in 10, 31, 10 (the only passage where the word occurs): vyáthir avyathíḥ kṛṇuta svágopā, as 'well-protected' and to regard it as a variant of the word sugopa; while, of the pair suyúj ('well-yoked') -svayúj ('yoking itself; yoked of its own self') both occurring in the RV, it is equally obvious that the latter meaning suits the context better than the former which is, when compared with it, a weak and colourless epithet. I therefore look upon the word suyúj (in the RV passages where it occurs) as a variant of, and having the same meaning as, svayúj. Compare the epithet manoyúj, which, like suyúj, is applied to hymns, horses, and chariots; and compare specially 1, 121, 12: tvám indra náryo yāñ ávo nṛṇ tīṣṭhā vātasya suyújo váhiṣṭhān | yám te kāvyá uśánā mandīnam dād vṛtrahānam pāryam tatakṣa vājram [with 1, 51, 10: tákṣad yát ta uśánā sáhasā sáho ví ródasī majmánā bādhate sávah | ā tvā vātasya nṛmaṇo manoyúja ā pūryamāṇam avahann abhí śrávah and 5, 31, 10: vātasya yuktān suyújaś cid áśvān with 4, 48, 4: váhantu tvā manoyújo yuktāso navatír náva váyo where the word suyuj in the former pair of verses is obviously parallel to the word manoyuj in the latter pair thus indicating clearly that suyuj is equivalent to svayuj. Compare also the verse 3, 58, 3: suyúgbhir áśvaiḥ suvṛtā ráthena dásrāv imám śṛṇutam ślókam ádreḥ with the verse 5, 75, 6: ā vām narā manoyújo 'śvāsah prūṣitápsavah | váyo vahantu pítáye sahá sumnébhir áśvinā and with the verse 1, 119, 4:

yuvām bhujyūm bhurāmāṇam vibhir gatām sváyuktibhir niváhantā pitṛbhya ā and note that the epithets suyúj, manoyúj and sváyukti are parallelly applied to the bird-horses of the Aśvins indicating that they express the same idea. The horses (birds) of Vāyu (Vāta) and of the Aśvins yoke themselves to the chariot when their masters think ⁷ of setting forth in it, and are hence manoyújah as well as svayújah.

This is not however the occasion for investigating exhaustively the nature and meaning of all the Vedic compounds beginning with sva- and su-. The foregoing observations will, I believe, have shown the necessity of such an investigation; and I therefore close this digression and return to our subject.

svá has the sense of priyá in the derivative svadhā also which in the instrumental case means not only 'according to one's own nature or wont' but also 'willingly, with gladness, with pleasure,' nach eigenem Gefallen, gern, aus eigener Lust (Grassmann), Neigung (Geldner, Glossar).

Like nityá and svá, the word nijá, too, means primarily 'own'; and like these two words, it too seems to have the meaning priyá in the following passage: AV. 3, 5, 2: máyi kṣatrām paṇamane máyi dhārayatād rayīm | ahám rāṣṭrásyābhivargé nijó bhūyāsam uttamáh "In me maintain dominion, paṇa amulet, in me maintain wealth; may I, in the sphere of (my) kingdom, be beloved, supreme".

júṣṭa like priyá, originally means 'pleasing, agreeable, dear' and like priyá, has, seemingly, the meaning 'own' in the following passages:

Śata. Br. 3, 4, 2, 5: te devā juṣṭās tanūḥ priyāṇi dhāmāni sārdham samavadadire | This passage has already been cited above (see p. 35) and explained as “ The gods put together portions from their own selves, from their own powers ”. Note the parallelism of the word jūṣṭāḥ with the word priyāṇi that follows.

‘ I fly (for protection), like the hawk to its own nest, to the giver of wealth, the irresistible, adoring with the best chants Indra who in battle is to be invoked by his praisers.’ jūṣṭā vasatīḥ is here equivalent to svā vasatīḥ; compare 1, 25, 4 : pārā hí me vímanyavaḥ pátanti vása-iṣṭaye | váyo ná vasatīr úpa; 9, 71, 6 : śyenó ná yónim sádanam eṣati.

“ Quicken his ears for hearing; make him find pleasure in (our) own direction; may Indra the mighty, showering gifts, make for us good crossings and safety.” The expression ‘ make him find pleasure in our own direction,’ means, probably, ‘ make him find pleasure with us, in our sacrifice ’; compare 8, 12, 17 : yád vā śakra parāvāti samudré údhi mándase | asmākam ít suté raṇā sám indubhīḥ. The ‘ good crossings ’ desired are no doubt across evils, duritā, and enemies, dviṣaḥ. Instead of prá díśam, I read pradíśam: see Oldenberg, Vedaforschung, p. 110.

1, 182, 6 : ávavidddham taugryám apsv àntár
anārambhaṇé támasi právidddham | cátasro nāvo jáṭhalasya jūṣṭā
úd aśvibhyām iṣitāḥ pārayanti ||

“ The four own ships of Jaṭhala impelled by the Áśvins, bring over safely the son of Tugra who was abandoned in the midst of the waters and who was stuck in bottomless darkness." I take jaṭhala here as a proper name: the person referred to is perhaps the same as the Jāthara mentioned in 1, 112, 17, in a hymn likewise addressed to the Aśvins. The four ships that brought over Tugra's son to safety are perhaps the same as the four birds that are said to have carried him in 8, 74, 14 : mām caivāra āśavaḥ śaviṣṭhasya dravitnāvaḥ | surāthāso abhi prāyo vākṣan vāyo nā tūgryam.

Likewise, jūṣṭa seems to have this meaning of 'own' in the formula amuṣmai tvā jūṣṭam prokṣāmi (nirvapāmi, etc.; see Concordance); the meaning seems to be "I sprinkle thee that art the own (portion) of such-and-such."

Similarly, the word vāmā also, meaning primarily 'dear, pleasing', etc., seems to have the meaning 'own' in the following passages:

10, 140, 3 : *ūrjo napāj jātavedaḥ suśastībhir māndasva dhītībhir hitāḥ | tvé iṣaḥ sām dadhur bhūrivarpasā
citrótayo vāmājātāḥ ||*

"O Jātavedas son of vigour, rejoice thou, beneficent, with the hymns containing fine praises. They put in you manifold nourishments, they whose help is wonderful, who are born of own self". vāmājātāḥ here, like priyājāta in 8, 71, 2 above, seems to be equivalent to svājātāḥ.

T.S. 1, 5, 1, 1 : devāsurāḥ sāmyattā āsan | té devā vijayām upayānto 'gnāu vāmām vāsu sām nyadadhata | idām u no bhaviṣyati | yādi no jesyāntīti |

"The gods and asuras prepared to fight. The gods, setting out for the battle, deposited their own wealth with Agni (thinking), 'this will be ours in case they vanquish us'".

Tait. Br. 1, 1, 2, 3 : yāḥ purā bhadrāḥ sām pāpiyān syāt | sā pūnarvasvor agnīm ādadhata | pūnar cvainam vāmām vāsūpāvartate | bhadro bhavati |

“ He who having been formerly prosperous (literally, splendid or glorious) is now worse off, should establish the fires in Punarvasu (nakṣatra). (His) own glory (i.e., wealth) will again come back to him and he will become glorious (prosperous).” vāmaṁ vasu here seems clearly to be equivalent to svakīyaṁ vasu.

In the case of these words also, priyá, svá, júṣṭa and vāmá, I have to repeat the observation made above with regard to nitya—namely, that in some passages, either of the meanings, ‘ dear ’ and ‘ own ’, is suitable, and that, though in the translations given above, I have chosen in such instances what seemed to me the better of the two, a combination of the two meanings would perhaps better represent the idea which the poet had in his mind when he used these words.

The use of the word nitya in the sense of ‘ dear ’ (priya) is not confined to Vedic literature but is occasionally met with in later literature also. Thus, it is said in the Mahābhārata (1, 169, 14) of Ghaṭotkaca—

anuraktaś ca tān āsīt Pāṇḍavān sa Ghaṭotkacaḥ |
teṣāṁ ca dayito nityam ātmanityo babhūva ha ||

“ That Ghaṭotkaca loved the sons of Pāṇḍu and he was always dear to them, as dear as their own self”. nitya in ātmanitya signifies, it seems to me, ‘ dear ’ and the word ātmanitya means therefore ‘ dear as the ātmā or own self ’ and not ‘ im Selbst haftend, an s Herz gewachsen ’ as suggested in the PW (s.v.); for the word nitya has no connection with ‘ haften ’ or ‘ wachsen.’

Similarly it is not unlikely that the word nitya at the end of some compounds (like araṇya-nitya, dharma-nitya, tapo-nitya, satya-nitya, adhyātmajñāna-nityatvam in Bh. Gītā 13, 11) has the signification ‘ dear ’. In Bh. Gītā 13, 11 especially (adhyātmajñānanityatvam tattva-jñānārthadarśanam | etaj jñānam iti proktam) the words etaj jñānam in the third pāda make it very probable that nitya here means ‘ dear ’.

Likewise there is no doubt that nitya means 'dear' in the compound strīnitya that occurs in Kathāsaritsāgara 45. 183: nissnekena kim etena sva-priyās tyajatā bahih | itīva nidrā strīnityasyaikasyāpy asya nāyayan || "As if thinking, 'Of what use to me is this (Sūryaprabha) who is without love and has left his wives outside', Sleep did not visit him who was fond of women, though he was alone". Compare in this connection the epithet strī-lampāṭa that is applied to Sūryaprabha in ibid. 47. 101-102.

Amongst the words nitya, svā, nijā, vāmā, and jūṣṭa that have been mentioned in the preceding article as signifying both (1) own, svīya, and (2) dear, pleasing, etc., priya, should be included the word śunā also.

This word is enumerated by the author of the Nighaṇṭu amongst the synonyms of sukha, happiness; and this meaning sukha or the derived meaning sukhakara is repeated by Sāyaṇa in the course of his commentary on all the RV passages where the word occurs. In 3, 30, 22, however, he has in addition explained śunam as śūnam utsāhena pravṛddham, thus connecting the word with the verb śū or śvay, 'to swell.' This derivation is given in the PW by Roth who explains the word as (adv.) glücklich, mit Erfolg, zum Gedeihen; (n.) Erfolg, Gedeihen' and by Grassmann who explains it as '(1) Wachstum, Gedeihen; (2) Gedeihen, Wohlergehen, Glück, Segen; (3) (adv.) zum Gedeihen, zum Wohlergehen, zum Segen.' Geldner, on the other hand, has suggested (RV. Glossar) that the word is related to śivam, and has explained it as 'Heil, zum Heil (svastaye).' And this suggestion seems to have found favour with Hillebrandt who has translated śunam as 'zum Heil' in Lieder des Rgveda, p. 106. Later, however, Geldner himself has translated (RV. Uebersetzung) the word in this passage by 'gedeihlich, zum Gedeihen' and in 3, 30, 22 by 'mit Erfolg' and seems therefore to have abandoned his suggestion and gone back to the meanings proposed by Roth.

None of the above-mentioned meanings, however, suits the context in a passage of the Maitr. Saṁ. (1, 4, 11 ; p. 60, l. 3f.) which reads as follows :

na vai tad vidma yadi brāhmaṇā vā smo 'brāhmaṇā vā | yadi tasya va ṛṣeḥ smo 'nyasya vā yasya brūmahe | yasya ha tv eva bruvāno yajate tam tad iṣṭam āgacchati netaram upanamati | tat pravare pravaryamāṇe brūyāt | devāḥ pitarah pitaro devā yo 'smi sa san yaje | yo 'smi sa san karomi | śunam ma iṣṭam śunam śāntam śunam kṛtam bhūyāt | iti tad ya eva kaś ca sa san yajate tam tad iṣṭam āgacchati netaram upanamati ||

The mantra devāḥ pitarah occurring in this passage is found in the Ait. Br., Tait. Br., and Kāthaka-saṁhitā also, but in a slightly different form, namely, as devāḥ pitarah pitaro devā yo 'smi sa san yaje yasyāsmi na tam antar emi svam ma iṣṭam svam dattam svam pūrtam svam śrāntam svam hutam in Tait. Br. 3, 7, 5, 4 and Āp. Śr. Sūtra 4, 9, 6 and as devāḥ pitarah pitaro devā yo 'smi sa san yaje tad vaḥ prabravīmi tasya me vitta svam ma iṣṭam astu śunam śāntam svam kṛtam in KS. 4, 14. The word śunam in the MS reading of the mantra is thus parallel to the word svam in the TB reading of it, and is obviously equivalent to it. The above passage from the MS therefore means: "We do not know whether we are Brāhmaṇas or not Brāhmaṇas, whether we are (the descendants) of the ṛṣi whom we name or of another. But (the fruit of) the sacrifice goes to (the descendant of) him who is named and to no other. Therefore when the lineage (pravara) is being proclaimed (?), he should recite: 'O Gods, O Fathers, O Fathers,

O Gods, it is I, whoever I may be (that is, whosoever descendant I may be), that sacrifice; it is I, whoever I may be, that perform. Let (this) sacrifice of mine be (my) own, (this) work (my) own, (this) act (my) own.' In this way, whoever he be who sacrifices, (the fruit of) the sacrifice goes to him and to no other."

Similarly, it is equally obvious that śunam=svam (with which it is parallelly used) in the KS reading of the mantra: devāḥ pitarāḥ pitaro devā yo 'smi sa san yaje tad vaḥ prabravīmi tasya me vitta svam ma iṣtam astu śunam śāntam svam kṛtam "O Gods, O Fathers, O Fathers, O Gods, it is I, whoever I may be, that sacrifice; this I declare unto you; bear witness to this on my behalf. Let (this) sacrifice be (my) own, (this) performance (my) own, (this) work (my) own."

On the other hand, this meaning svam, 'own' is unsuited to the word śunām in the passages of the RV and other texts where the word occurs. And I therefore infer, from the analogy of the words priyá, vāmá and júṣṭa or nitya, svá and nijá, that mean both 'dear' and 'own,' that śuná, too, has these two meanings, and that it has, in the passages referred to, the meaning priya, 'dear, pleasing, agreeable.' This meaning priya, as I shall now show, suits the context well and yields good sense in these passages.

Śāṅkh. GS. 2, 10, 6: agniḥ śraddhām ca medhām cā
'vinipātām smṛtiṁ ca me |
īlīto jātavedā ayam
śunam naḥ samprayacchatu ||

"May Agni bestow faith and intelligence, not falling off (unforgetfulness?) and memory on me. May this Agni Jātavedas, praised (by us) bestow pleasing things on us." Compare the similar use of priya and vāma in TS. 4, 7, 3, 1: priyám ca me 'nukāmás ca me (yajñéna kalpantām); RV. 4, 30, 24: vāmám-vāmam ta ādure devó dadātv aryamá | vāmám pūṣá vāmám

10, 126, 7: śunām asmābhyam ūtāye

“ May the men (give) pleasure with the plough and oxen; may Bhaga with the ploughshares and the lord of the plough with the Maruts (give) pleasure. May Parjanya, impelling the seed (to sprout and grow) delight us; may Śuna and Sira confer grain on us.” One has to supply the word kṛnotu, dadātu or similar word after śunam in the first half-verse. Note the parallelism of dhinotu in the second half-verse with śunam (kṛnotu or dadātu) in the second.

RV. 4, 57, 8: śunām naḥ phālā ví kṛṣantu bhūmim
śunām kīnāśā abhī yantu vāhaiḥ | śunām parjanya mādhunā pāyobhiḥ
śunāsirā śunām asmāsu dhattam ||

“ May our ploughshares plough the land pleasingly; may the ploughers proceed pleasingly with the draught-animals. May Parjanya with waters and honey do us favour; may Śuna and Sira confer pleasing things (favours) on us.” The word śunam in the first half-verse is used adverbially and denotes ‘pleasingly; in a pleasing manner; well,’ while in the second half-verse, it is a substantive as in the above passages. In the third pāda one has to supply a word like kṛnotu or dadhātu on the analogy of the fourth pāda. Compare also 4, 2, 8: priyām vā tvā kṛnāvate haviṣmān and the phrase rāṇam dhāḥ and rāṇam kṛdhi in 8, 96, 16: vibhumādbhyo bhūvanebhyo rāṇam dhāḥ and 10, 112, 10: rāṇam kṛdhi ranakṛt satyaśuṣma.

“Pleasingly (i.e., well) may the draught-animals, the men, (and) the plough plough; may the straps be tied well; well may the goad be applied (i.e., may the ploughing of the draught-animals, men and the plough, the tying of the straps, and the application of the goad, all bring pleasing results to us).”

10, 102, 8: śunám aṣṭrāvy àcarat kapardī
varatrāyām dārvā náhyamānaḥ | nṛmṇāni kṛṇvān bahāve jánāya
gāḥ paspaśānās táviṣīr adhatta ||

“Being goaded, he (i.e., the bull), who was wearing cowries and who was hitched in the strap (i.e., harness) with the wood, moved pleasingly (i.e., well). Performing valiant deeds before many people, he put on mettle when he saw the bulls.”

The hymn to which this verse belongs has been much discussed by the exegetists and been interpreted in many ways; for literature connected with it, see Oldenberg, RV. Noten II, p. 318. I agree with him and Geldner (Ved. Studien 2) in their opinion that it deals with the story of a Brāhmaṇa couple and a chariot-race.

The subject of acarat in pāda a above is the bull, vṛṣabha, that is mentioned in the previous verse as running—áramhata pádyābhiḥ kakúdmān. And hence I interpret kapardī as ‘wearing cowries’ instead of as ‘wearing a braid, zottig’ (Roth, Geldner, Oldenberg, etc.) as this latter epithet is unintelligible to me in connection with a bull. The custom, on the other hand, of ornamenting bulls and oxen with strings of cowries fastened round the neck is fairly wide-spread in India, and I conceive that this must have been the case with Mudgala's bull also. dāru in the second pada refers, of course, to the drughana or block of wood mentioned in the next verse.

It has been suggested by Oldenberg (l.c.), perhaps with a view to get over the difficulty caused by the word kapardī (which he interprets as 'wearing a braid, zottig'), that the subject of acarat is not the bull but Mudgala. This does not seem to be correct; for I believe with Geldner that Mudgala was too old to take part in a chariot-race and that the chariot was in fact ridden by Indrasenā with Keśinī as charioteer; see the article on Indrasenā that follows below.

4, 3, 11: ṛténādrim vy āsan bhidāntaḥ
sām āṅgirasō navanta góbhiḥ | śunām nāraḥ pāri śadann uśāsam
āvīḥ svār abhavaḥ jāté agnau ||

" Properly did they burst open the rock, shattering it. The Aṅgirasas lowed with the cows. Pleasingly (i.e., with pleasing results; well) did the men worship the Dawn; the sun made himself manifest when Agni was born." The explanation of pariśadan as 'umlagerten' by Roth, Grassmann and Geldner (RV. Uebersetzung) seems to me to be hardly satisfactory; and I prefer to follow Bhaṭṭabhaskara who has paraphrased pariśadyam in TB. 3, 1, 2, 9 as parita upāsyam (cf. also Mahīdhara on VS. 5, 32) and regard pariśadan here as equivalent to paryupāsāmcakrirc. Compare 7, 76, 6: prāti tvā stómair iḷate vāsiṣṭhā uṣarbúdhah subhage tuṣṭuvāmsah | gāvām netrī vājapatni na ucchóṣah sujāte prathamā jarasva; 7, 78, 2: prāti śīm agnīr jarate sāmiddhah prāti víprāso matíbhīr grṇāntaḥ | uśā yāti jyótiṣā bādhamānā víśvā támāmsi duritāpa devī; 7, 80, 1: prāti stómebhīr uśāsam vāsiṣṭhā gīrbhīr víprāsaḥ prathamā abudhran. The expression 'the men worshipped the Dawn' indicates that the Dawn showed herself at that time when Agni was born, that is, was kindled before daybreak. The kindling of Agni, the coming of the Dawn and the rising of the sun are referred to in other verses also of the RV, for instance in 7, 72, 4: ví céd ucchānty aśvinā uṣāsaḥ prā vām bráhmāṇi kārāvo bharante | ūrdhvām bhānūm savitā devó aśred bṛhád agnāyaḥ samídhe jarante; 7, 77, 1-3: úpo ruruce yuvatír ná yóṣā víśvam jīvām prasuvāntī carāyai | ábhūd agnīḥ samídhe mānuṣāṇām ákar jyótir bádhamānā támāṁsi || víśvam pratīcī sapráthā úd asthād rúṣad vāso líbhratī súkrām aśvait | hīraṇyavarṇā sudṛśīkasamdr̥g gāvām mātā netry áhnām aroci || devānām cákṣuḥ subhágā váhantī śvetām náyantī sudṛśīkam áśvam | uṣā adarśi; 7, 78, 2-3: prāti śīm agnír jarate sámiddhaḥ prāti víprāso matíbhīr gr̥ñantaḥ | uṣā yāti jyótiṣā bádhamānā víśvā támāṁsi duritāpa devī || etā u tyāḥ práty adṛśran purástāj jyótir yácchantīr uṣāso vibhātīḥ | ájījanan sūryam yajñām agnīm apācīnam támo agād ájuṣtam: 1, 113, 9: úṣo yád agnīm samídhe cakārtha ví yád āvas cákṣasā sūryasya. But while these passages represent Agni as showing himself (as being born) after the Dawn, the verse 4, 3, 11 makes out that Agni was born first and the Dawn afterwards; compare also 7, 9, 3: citrá-bhānur uṣāsām bhāty ágre.

AV. 3, 15, 4: imām agne śarāṇīm mīmṛṣo no yām ádhvānam ágāma dūrām | śunām no astu prapaṇó vikrayás ca pratipaṇáh phalīnam mā kṛnotu | idām havyām samvidānaú juṣethām śunām no astu caritām útthitam ca ||

‘Sprinkle, O Agni, this our path, this road which we have followed from a distance. May our bargain and sale be pleasing (i.e., turn out favourable); may the barter make me abounding in fruit (i.e., may the barter be fruitful to me). Do ye two enjoy this oblation in concord. May our transaction and trading be pleasing (i.e., favourable).’ śarāṇi=road, path, and not himsā, offence or Verdruss; see Apte. Accordingly I take the verb mṛṣ in the sense of 'to sprinkle,' a meaning which the author of the Dhātupāṭha assigns to it, but of its use in which no example has been up to now met with. The expression 'sprinkle this our path' means probably 'make our path smooth and easy to travel'; compare the expressions tānūnapat pathā ṛtasya yānan mādhvā samañjān svadayā sujihva in RV. 10, 110, 2; ā no dadhikrāḥ pathyām anaktu in 7, 44, 5; and madhavadya devo devabhyo devayānān patho anaktu in TB. 3, 6, 2, 1.

Compare also śagmāso āśvāḥ in RV. 7, 97, 6: tām śagmāso aruśāso āśvā býhaspātim sahavāho vahanti and śagmā hāri in 8, 2, 27: éhā hāri brahmayújā śagmā vakṣataḥ sákhāyam.

'On thee, O goddess Sarasvatī, depends all longevity. Delight thou with (the priests) who have pleasure in offering sacrifices; confer children on us.'

'The exegetists have explained the word śunáhotreṣu in all the above three verses' as a proper noun (Sāyaṇa does so in 2, 41, 14 and 2, 41, 17 only; in 2, 18, 6 he interprets śunahotreṣu as sukhena hūyate somo yebhir iti śunahotrāḥ pātraviśeṣāḥ)—an explanation for which there does not seem to be any necessity. For, just as the word śunapṛṣṭha is equivalent to vītapṛṣṭha, in the same way does the word śunahotra (śunam hotre yasya) seem to be equivalent to the word vītihotra (vītiḥ hotre yasya) 'he who has pleasure in sacrifices,' i.e., 'he who takes delight in offering sacrifices to the gods,' which occurs in 1, 84, 18: kó mānsate vītihotraḥ sudevāḥ and 2, 38, 1: áthābhajad vītihotram svastai with the signification of 'priest'. This meaning, 'priest' suits śunahotra also in the above verses, and there is thus no necessity to regard it as a proper name.

from the above, meaning 'to cause unpleasantness or discomfort.'

The word śuna that forms part of abhiśunataro in T. Br. 1, 7, 1, 6 : tau samalabhetam | so 'smaḥ abhiśunataro bhavat means, as explained by the commentator Bhaṭṭa-bhaskara, balena abhivṛddhaḥ and is clearly derived from the root śū, śvay 'to swell.' It is thus quite a different word and unconnected with śuna meaning 'dear ; own.'

śuna thus signifies originally, as I hope is clear from the foregoing, priya, 'dear, agreeable,' etc., and secondarily, 'own'. The meaning sukha assigned to it by the author of the Nighaṇṭu seems to be but an approximate equivalent of the original priya, and, like all approximations, not quite accurate.

indrasenā

The word indrasenā occurs in one place only, in stanza 3 (út sma vāto vahati vāso asyā áthiratham yád ájayat sahásram | rathir abhūn mudgalānī gáviṣṭau bhare kṛtām vy aced indrasenā) of RV. 10, 102. This hymn is obscure and the most diverse views have been held about it. According to Yāska (Virukta 9. 23-24,) the hymn refers to a battle or race, while according to Śaṅguruśiṣya (p. 158 of the Sarvānukramanī, Macdonell's edition), it refers to the pursuit by Mudgala of some thieves who had stolen his oxen.

Bergaigne (II. 280 ff.), however, thought that the hymn depicts liturgical symbolism, Henry, (JA. 1895, II, 516 ff.), that it describes the phenomena that occur on earth and in the sky during a thunder-storm, and Bloomfield (ZDMG. 48, 541 ff.), that it refers to heavenly, that is, meteorological events. This is the opinion of Profs. Macdonell (Vedic Index, II, 167) and Keith (JRAS. 1911, 1005, n. 1) also. Geldner (Ved. St. 2. 1 ff.), Pischel (ibid., 1. 124), von Bradke (ZDMG. 46, 445 ff.), Schröder (Mysterium und Mimus 347), and Oldenberg (RV. Noten, II, 318), on the other hand, opined that it is an ākhyāna or itihāsa hymn, and that it describes a chariot-race in which Mudgala's wife took prominent part. For literature connected therewith see Oldenberg, l.c.

According to the last-named scholars (Geldner and others), indrāsena is a proper name denoting the wife of a human being, of Mudgala, and is the equivalent of the word Mudgalānī that is used in stanzas 2 and 6 of the hymn. According to the first-named scholars (Bergaigne and others), on the other hand, indrāsena denotes the wife of Indra. This 'wife' is, in the opinion of Bergaigne, the prayer addressed to Indra ('la prière à Indra dans son union avec Soma'), and in the opinion of Bloomfield,¹ Macdonell and Keith,² his bolt (vajra).³

In JRAS. 1910. 1328 ff., the late Mr. F. E. Pargiter attempted to throw some light on this hymn with the help of certain details contained in the Purāṇas about Mudgala, who is, according to the Nirukta (9 2. 3. 3.) and the Sarvānukramaṇī, the son of Bhṛmyaśva and the author of this hymn. With the help of these details, Mr. Pargiter constructed the following genealogy:

² This is the opinion of Sāyaṇa also.

³ Referring to Vaitāna-sūtra 15. 3; Gop. Br. 2. 2. 9; Āpa. ŚS. 11. 3. 14; and TA. 3. 9. 1; sēnēndrasya dhēnā Bīhaspāteḥ . . . , Bloomfield has shown at length, in pp. 549-552 l. c., that Sena is the wife of Indra and that the Indrasena of stanza 3 is the same as this Senā.

Bhṛmyaśva

Mudgala

Brahmiṣṭha=Indrasenā

Vadhryaśva=Menakā

Divodāsa

And from this genealogy, he arrived at the following conclusions respecting the persons named in the hymn:

1. Mudgala was a rājā of the North Pañcāla dynasty and yet might also be regarded as a ṛṣi.

2. Mudgalānī, whose name is not mentioned, was obviously Mudgala's wife, as is generally agreed.

3. Indrasenā was the daughter-in-law of Mudgala, being the wife or rather the queen of his son Brahmiṣṭha.

4. Vadhri, in stanza 12, seems to refer to Indrasenā's son and Mudgala's grandson Vadhryaśva.

5. Keśī, mentioned in stanza 6, was the sārathi or charioteer who drove Mudgalānī in the race.

Mr. Pargiter was therefore disposed to interpret the hymn in accordance with the above conclusions.

In the note referred to above, Mr. Pargiter collected the information given by the Purāṇas about Mudgala only and did not bring out anything new about Indrasenā, although Geldner had long ago pointed out that her name occurred in the Mahābhārata (Calcutta ed., 3. 113. 22; 4. 21. 11) where she is described as Nārāyaṇī and as the wife of Mudgala. In the Kumbakonam edition of the Mahābhārata, these stanzas are found on p. 186 of the Vanaparvan (Ch. 114; 23, 24) and p. 47 of the Virāṭaparvan (Ch. 24; 19-22). In both these places, this text has Nālāyaṇī instead of its doublet form Nārāyaṇī; and it thus indicates that Indrasena the wife of Mudgala was the daughter of Nala. She must therefore be identified with the Indrasenā who, we read in the Nalopākhyāna,⁴ was born to Nala of Damayanti.

This inference is confirmed by the following story found in chapters 212 and 213 of the Ādiparvan (p. 359 ff.), where it is related by Vyāsa to King Drupada with the object of overcoming his repugnance to the marriage of his daughter with five men (the five Pāṇḍava brothers):

“Kṛṣṇā, the daughter of Drupada, was, in her former birth, known as Indrasenā. She was then the daughter of Nala and was married to the ṛṣi Maudgalya⁵ who was old and mere skin and bones, who was reeking with a smell which was other than pleasant, whose hair had become white and the skin furrowed with wrinkles, who was afflicted with leprosy, whose skin and nails were peeling off, who was repulsive to look at and who was extremely irritable, harsh, jealous and fanciful.⁶ The blameless Indrasenā used to serve her husband faithfully and to eat what was left of his food (uc-chiṣṭa) after he had eaten. One day, the thumb of Maudgalya came off when he was eating his food; and Indrasenā, when she sat down to the remnants, unconcernedly threw it away and consumed the food left without any feeling of disgust. Her husband was much pleased at this act of wifely devotion, said that he would grant her a boon, and asked her often what she desired. Indrasenā, being thus frequently urged, begged of the ṛṣi that he should sport with her, first dividing himself into five persons, and later becoming one again.

“The ṛṣi, owing to the power of his austerities and his yoga, accordingly sported with Indrasenā for many years, now making himself into five men and again as one man, in Indraloka, Meru and other places. Indrasenā thus came to the forefront of pativratās in the same way as Arundhatī and Sītā; and she attained a greater distinction in this respect than even her mother Damayantī.⁷

“While the ṛṣi Maudgalya thus played with Indrasenā, many years elapsed and he became weary of sensual pleasures. He therefore resolved to abandon this luxurious course of life and to practise austerities in a retired place. On this resolve being communicated to Indrasenā, she prostrated herself before the ṛṣi and earnestly besought him not to leave her as her craving for sensual pleasures was still unsatisfied. The ṛṣi grew wroth at this bold and impudent request and uttered a curse that she should be born as the daughter of Drupada, the king of the Pañcālas, and have five husbands.

“Grieving at this curse, and with her craving for sensual pleasure unsatisfied, Indrasenā, too, repaired to a forest and practised austerities in order to please Śiva. That god, being pleased with the austerities, showed himself to Indrasenā and conferred a boon on her that she would, in her next birth, have five husbands.”

It should be noted that the wording of the text, Damayantyāś ca mātus sā viśeṣam yayau, informs us in an unmistakable way that Indrasenā,⁸ who is described as

⁷ eka-patnī tathā bhūtvā sadaivāgre yaśasvinī ||

Ibid; Ch. 212; 25.

⁸ The text, I may here note, calls Maudgalya's wife Mahendrasenā in one place (1. 212. 17).

Nālāyanī and as the wife of Maudgalya, was the daughter of Damayantī.

This story is very interesting and confirms the correctness of Geldner's interpretation of RV. X. 102 in several respects :

1. Thus, it is clear from the above story that Indrasenā, mentioned in stanza 2, is the same as the Mudgalānī mentioned in stanzas 2 and 6, and that she is the wife of the Mudgala mentioned in stanzas 5 and 9 and not his daughter-in-law as Mr. Pargiter would believe.

Mr. Pargiter seems to have been misled here by the use of the word Mudgala instead of the more correct form Maudgalya. Such laxity however in the matter of adding patronymic suffixes is fairly common not only in the epics and Purāṇas, but in the RV also. See for example, ZDMG. 42, p. 204 ff. where Oldenberg has shown that the word vasiṣṭha is used in the RV to denote not only the original Vasiṣṭha but his descendant as well.

As regards the word Mudgala itself, we have already seen above that the Mahābhārata in one place (III. 114. 24) uses that word to denote Mudgala's son (who, in I. 212, 213 is called Maudgalya). Similarly, it relates in the Vanaparvan (Ch. 261) the story of a Mudgala (whether the same as Indrasenā's husband or a different person, there is no means of saying) who was offered, because of his zeal in giving gifts, the privilege of going to heaven in his mortal body (saśarīra-svarga) but refused to avail himself of it. In this story, the hero is called Mudgala (in III. 260. 38 ; 261. 3, 11, 14, etc.) and Maudgalya (in III. 261. 6, 14, 25, 33 etc.) indifferently. And in the Bhāgavata, X. 21. 34, the word Mudgala is used of the father of Divodāsa, i.e., to denote Vadhryaśva, the grandson of the original Mudgala.

There is thus no doubt that the Mudgala mentioned in stanzas 5 and 9 of RV. X. 102 is identical with the Mudgala of Mahābhārata III. 114. 24, with the Maudgalya of ibid. I. 212-213 and with the Brahmiṣṭha⁹ (son of Mudgala) of Mr. Pargiter's genealogical table.

2. The story also supports the opinion of Geldner (p. 1) and Oldenberg (p. 318, n. 2) that Mudgala was a Brahmana against those of Henry and Pargiter who believed that he was a king.

3. The story gives, as can be seen above, a graphic description of the decrepitude of Indrasenā's husband Mudgala, a point about which Bloomfield and Oldenberg were inclined to be sceptical.

Mudgala's decrepitude is thus well-attested and may be regarded as a certain fact. It is not however quite so certain that it was this decrepitude which, as Geldner would believe, prevented him from riding the chariot himself in the race and led him to substitute his wife Indrasenā in his stead. A passage¹⁰ of the Kāthaka-saṁhitā (X. 5; Vol. 1, p. 130) which relates the story of a chariot-race between Vāmadeva and Kusidāyī shows that it was not unusual for women to take part in such ⁹ I am, however, very doubtful that Mudgala's son was named Brahmiṣṭha. From the footnotes given by Mr. Pargiter on p. 1329 loc. cit., it can be seen that, out of eight Purāṇas which he has used to construct the genealogy in question, only two contain the word brahmiṣṭha. In both these places, it is preferable to look upon this term as a common noun (=the best of Brāhmaṇas; a brahmarṣi) rather than as a proper name. The corrupt text of the Harivaṁśa, too, which uses the word brahmarṣi in this context favours this view.

Ludwig has, in his Rgveda-übersetzung (III, 171), set down a table where he has shown Vadhryaśva, the father of Divodāsa, as the son of Devavān, - a view accepted by Macdonell (Vedic Index, 1, 376). Though there is not much evidence in favour of this view, too, I have here provisionally adopted it for lack of a better-attested genealogy.

races. Indrasenā too, who was the daughter of Nala, a noted charioteer,¹¹ must naturally have known more of chariots and their driving and of races than her husband the Brāhmaṇa ṛṣi. These facts offer, in my opinion, sufficient explanation as to why Mudgala did not himself ride in the race but sent his wife Indrasenā instead as rider.

4. In interpreting stanza 6 of the hymn, Geldner has followed Sāyaṇa in thinking that Mudgalānī (i.e., the wife of Mudgala ; Indrasenā) was both the rider (rathīḥ) as well as the charioteer (sārathiḥ) in the race. He has therefore accepted (p. 8) Sāyaṇa's dictum¹² that the word keśī in that stanza stands really for the feminine form keśinī and means 'having beautiful hair'. Further on, however, Sāyaṇa has given another explanation¹³ according to which Keśinī was the charioteer. I am disposed to think that this last explanation is correct and that this Keśinī is, perhaps, identical with the Keśinī who, in the Nalopākhyāna,¹⁴ was employed by Damayantī to observe and report to her the actions of Bāhuka (i.e., Nala), and to carry messages to him.

5. Regarding Geldner's interpretation of stanza 11 of the hymn, an interpretation which is not acceptable to Bloomfield, Oldenberg and Pargiter, the story related above shows that the sense which Geldner attached to the first half of that stanza is quite correct, so correct as to be surprising when one bears in mind that Geldner did not know of the above Mahābhārata story. He has there rightly interpreted the sentence parivṛkteva patividyam ānaṭ and has remarked that after winning the race and thus pleasing the old Mudgala, the net advantage gained by Indrasenā was not much to speak of, and that, on the whole, she was rather disappointed than otherwise. The correctness of this opinion is fully borne out by the above story which relates, as we have already seen, how Maudgalya was pleased with his wife, offered her a boon, sported with her as she desired, but left her before her desires were satisfied and thus disappointed her.

6. In the light of what has been said above, Mr. Pargiter's opinion that vádhrī in stanza 12 refers to Indrasenā's son seems to be untenable.

The above story is not found in Ganapat Krishnaji's edition of the Mahābhārata, with Nīlakaṇṭha's commentary, published in Bombay, but seems to occur in some editions of Northern India. It is followed in the Kumbakonam edition (Ch. 214) by another story,¹⁵ known as Pañcendropākhyāna ('Story of the five Indras') which is found in the Bombay edition (Ch. 197) and is as follows :

The gods (devāḥ) were once engaged in celebrating a sacrifice of many years' duration in the Naimiśa forest. Once they saw a golden lotus floating in the Gaṅgā river ; and Indra, being curious about its origin, went up the bank of the river until he came to a place where a most beautiful and radiant woman was standing in the water weeping and letting fall tears into the river which at once turned into golden lotuses. Seeing this, Indra was struck with wonder and asked her who she was and why she was weeping. She replied, " If you follow unfortunate me, you will know who I am and why I am weeping." She then led the way, Indra following, to the summit of a mountain where Indra saw a handsome youth playing a game with a radiantly beautiful woman. As this youth took no notice of Indra but continued to play, Indra became angry and said, " Know, O man, that I am Indra and that this universe is mine and obeys my will." The youth who was no other than Śiva, then made Indra enter into a cave where he saw four others like himself who had all formerly been Indras. Śiva then said, "You will all five be born human beings and do work on behalf of the gods; this woman too will be born one and will be your wife." The former Indras then prayed that in that case their fathers should be gods while Indra entreated that a son born to him may be allowed to take his place, and work with the other four, on the earth.

This story, too, was related by Vyāsa to Drupada; and Vyāsa, after relating the story, added that the five sons of Pāṇḍu were the five Indras and his daughter Kṛṣṇā, that woman.¹⁶

This story corroborates, though in a very unexpected way, the opinion expressed by Bergaigne and Bloomfield that the word indrāsenā denotes the wife of Indra, while the Indrasenopākhyāna that precedes it in the Kumbakonam edition shows that the opinion of Geldner (and others), that indrāsenā denotes Mudgala's wife, is justified. The two Mahābhārata stories together thus show that Bergaigne (partially) and Geldner were both correct in the views that they held regarding the word indrāsenā.

In the course of the above discussion, we have met with the names of two women, Damayantī and Indrasenā, who were regarded as patterns of pativrata. Compare Mahābhārata, III. 114. 22-24 :

*Śāntā cainam paryacaran narendra

These two were related to each other as mother and daughter. It is therefore interesting to find in this connection that Ahalyā (wife of Gautama and mother of Śatananda and others) who is regarded as a pattern of chastity,¹⁷ was the daughter of Vadhryaśva son of Indrasenā (Bhāgavata, IX. 21. 34).

¹⁷ See Apte's Dictionary, s.v. ahalyā.

We can now rewrite Pargiter's genealogical table as follows :

Of these names, all except Bhṛmyaśva, Nala, Damayantī and Menakā are found in the RV.

This is an infrequently used word that occurs in about ten passages in the RV and in about the same number of passages in other Vedic texts. It is enumerated by the author of the Niḡhaṇṭu amongst sukha-nāmāni (3, 6) along with śiva, syona, śam and other words. Sāyaṇa, in his RV commentary explains it mostly as sukha or sukha-kara, but in two places (7, 97, 6; 8, 2, 27) gives the alternative explanation of śakta; Bhaṭṭa-bhāskara explains it as sukha or samartha and as śakti-viśeṣa in his commentary on TS. 1. 8. 22. 2. and TB. 1. 5. 5. 1, while Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara know nothing of śakta or samartha and explain the word as sukha or sukha-kara in their commentaries on VS. 3, 43; 4, 2 and 29, 45.

Roth, in the PW, points out that the word is derived from the root śak 'to be able' and explains it as 'hilfreich, mittheilsam, entgegenkommend, gütig, fromm' while Grassmann has assigned to it the meanings

‘vermögend, stark, kräftig.’ Similarly, Ludwig too translates the word as ‘kräftig, helfend, wirksam, stark’ in his RV. Ueber., while Oldenberg translates it as ‘mighty’ in 1, 143, 8 (SBE. 46), but as ‘Glück’ in Ind. St. 15, 74. Likewise, Geldner, in his RV. Glossar, explains it as ‘Glück bringend, heilsam, erfolgreich, günstig’; but in his RV. Ueber., he has given up this view and, following Grassmann and others, translated the word as ‘tüchtig.’

Now it seems to be plain that the word śagmá is derived from the root śak ‘to be able’; but it is also equally plain that the meaning ‘mighty, kräftig,’ or ‘tüchtig’ does not fit into the context in RV. 7, 54, 3: śagmāyā saṃśádā te sakṣīmāhi raṇvāyā gātumātyā while the meaning śiva or sukha-kara does. Hence it is not probable that śagmá means ‘stark, tüchtig, kräftig or mighty’ as Grassmann and the other scholars mentioned above think. On the other hand, the juxtaposition of the words śiva, syona and śāmyoh in VS. 3, 43: kṣēmāya vaḥ śāntyai prāpadye śivāñ śagmāñ śāmyóḥ śāmyóḥ; 4, 2: dikṣātapāsoś tanūr asi tām tvā śivāñ śagmāñ páridadhe; AV. 19, 8, 2: aṣṭāvimśāni śivāni śagmāni sahá yógañ bhajantu me; 14, 2, 17: ághoracakṣur ápatighnī syonā śagmā susévā; 4, 27, 3: śagmā bhavantu marúto naḥ syonāḥ; and Śāñkh. GS. 3, 5, 1: śagmam śagmam śivam śivam kṣēmāya vaḥ śāntyai prāpadye points to the conclusion that śagmá is a synonym of śiva. The Brāhmaṇa passage, tām tvā śivāñ śāntām śagmāñ sasukhāñ sādhvīm vā, too, cited by Uvaṭa in his commentary¹ on VS. 4, 2 shows that the word was so understood in the time of the Brāhmaṇas; and since this meaning fits well into the context in all the passages in which it is used (as will be shown presently), there is no doubt that the author of the Nighaṇṭu as also Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara are right in explaining the word as śiva, sukha, or sukhakara.

1, 130, 10 : sá no nāvyebhir vṛṣakarmann ukthaiḥ
púrām dartaḥ pāyúbhiḥ pāhi śagmaiḥ | divodāsébhir indra stāvāno
vāvṛdhīthā áhobhir iva dyaúḥ ||

“O thou of strong deeds (praised) with new hymns, protect us with thy auspicious protections, O shatterer of forts. Praised by the Divodāsas (i. e., the descendants of Divodāsa) do thou, O Indra, wax mighty day by day like Dyaus”.

After ukthaiḥ in pāda a, I supply the word stāvānaḥ from c ; compare Sāyaṇa and Geldner, RV. Ueber. The import of pāda d is not clear. Grassmann, Ludwig and Geldner construe áhobhir iva with dyaús and translate the expression as ‘durch Strahlen wie der Himmel’, ‘wie mit [in] den tagen der himel’, and ‘wie der Tag mit der Tageszeiten’ ; so does Sāyaṇa also who explains it as dyauiḥ dyotana-śīla ādityaḥ ahobhiḥ prasiddhaiḥ yathā pravṛddho bhavati. This is not very satisfactory, and I therefore think that it is preferable to construe áhobhiḥ with vāvṛdhīthāḥ and regard dyauiḥ iva only as forming the upamāna. The meaning of the pāda therefore is, ‘O Indra, may thy might increase day by day (so as to equal or surpass) that of Dyaus’. Compare in this connection 4, 21, 1 : ā yātv indraḥ . . vāvṛdhānās tāviṣīr yasya pūrvīr dyaúr ná kṣatráṁ abhībhūti puṣyāt “May Indra come who, developing his many strengths, increase, like Dyaus, in might overcoming those of others.”

The expression śagmaiḥ pāyúbhiḥ in b is equivalent to śivaiḥ pāyúbhiḥ used in 8, 60, 8 : śivébhiḥ pāhi pāyúbhiḥ ; compare also 1, 143, 8 : śivébhir naḥ pāyúbhiḥ pāhi śagmaiḥ and 6, 71, 3 : ádabdhébhiḥ savitaḥ pāyúbhiḥ tvām śivébhir adyá pári pāhi. Compare also the word saúbhagebhiḥ in 1, 112, 25 : dyubhír aktúbhiḥ pári pātam asmān áriṣṭebhir aśvinā saúbhagebhiḥ.

1, 143, 8 : *áprayucchann áprayucchadbhir agne

“Protect us, O Agni, never failing, with watchful, auspicious, beneficent protections. O thou sacrifice, protect our children with unwinking [i.e., always watchful] undeceived heedful (protections).” The meaning of iṣṭe (so, without accent according to the Padapāṭha) in pāda c is not clear. Being unaccented, it must be a vocative of iṣṭi and mean either ‘O thou our wish’ (this is how Oldenberg understands it, SBE. 46, 158 ; see also Sāyaṇa) or ‘O sacrifice.’ I am inclined to think that neither of these two meanings is correct and that the RV poet had something quite different in his mind. iṣṭa is found similarly used in 6, 8, 7 also, ádabdhebhís táva gopābir iṣṭe 'smākam pāhi triṣadhastha sūrín. In both places, Geldner (RV. Ueber. I, 183) is inclined to think that the word used is iṣṭé, short for iṣṭébhiḥ, and that it means ‘dear’ and is an attribute of pāyúbhiḥ or gopābhiḥ.

Regarding śagmām vācam in pāda d, compare śāmtamāni vācāmsi and śāmtamā gīḥ etc. in 6, 32, 1 : śāmtamāni vācāmsy āsā sthāvīrāya takṣam ; 5, 42, 1 : prā śāmtamā váruṇam dīdhiti gīr mitráṁ bhágam áditiṁ nūnām aśyāḥ ; 5, 43,

Compare the epithet śāntamaḥ applied to madaḥ in 9, 104, 3 and to Indra in 8, 53, 5: ā śāntama śāntamābhir abhiṣṭibhiḥ; compare also 1, 171, 3: utá stutó maghāvā śāmbhaviṣṭhaḥ.

6, 75, 8: rathavāhanam havír asya nāma

“havir (—dhāna) is the name of this chariot-carrier (i.e., of the waggon which carries the chariot) in which is placed the weapon and coat of mail of this (warrior). May we with well-disposed mind always place in it the beneficent chariot.” I follow Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara (VS. 29, 45) in regarding havír in pāda a as a contraction of havir-dhāna; see also Geldner, Ved. St., 2, 275. havir-dhāna denotes the waggon which carries the havis or oblation; and the chariot-waggon is so called here because the chariot itself as also the weapon and armour are regarded by the RV poet as forming the oblation which the warrior-sacrificer uses in the battle-sacrifice.

Regarding the expression śagmām rátham in c, compare the epithets sukhá and sukhātama that are applied to rátha in many RV verses (for references see Grassmann, s. v. sukha), and also the epithet sacanás that is applied to it in 1, 116, 18: revád uvāha sacanó rátho vām. Compare also the epithet vāhiṣṭha ‘most

"These are the avengers of great wrong, Mitra, Aryamā and Varuṇa. These undecivable beneficent sons of Aditi grew up in the house of ṛta (Law)". With the expression śagmāsaḥ putrá āditeḥ in pāda d, compare 10, 77, 8: yajñīyāsa ūmā ādityéna nāmnā śāmbhaviṣṭhāḥ and 1, 106, 2: tá ādityā ā galam sarvātātaye bhūtá devā vrtrātúryeṣu śāmbhúvaḥ.

7, 97, 6: *tám śagmāso aruṣāso ásvā

"Him, Brhaspati, whose blue place, draw good bright horses that draw together and that, like the sky, wear brilliant jewels".

Instead of nílavat, the reading nīlavat is found in many MSS in the third pada, whose import, with either reading, is obscure. Sāyaṇa explains padas cd as yasya Brhaspateḥ sahaś cit balam ca bhavati | mīlam nilayo nivāsaḥ | tad-yuktaṁ sadhasthām saha-sthānam ca yasya tam Brhaspatim ity anvayaḥ | kiḍṣā ásvāḥ | nabho na ādityam iva aruṣam ārocāmānam rūpam vasānā dhārayantaḥ. Grassmann translates them as 'dessen śagmāso áśvāḥ = horses that draw the chariot comfortably, i. e., good carriage-horses; compare áśvān . . . váhīyasaḥ in 1, 104, 1 and váhiṣṭhā áśvāḥ in 4, 14, 4 cited above and other verses (for references see Grassmann s. v. váhiṣṭha). Compare also suṣṭhuvāho áśvāḥ in 10, 107, 11: bhojám áśvāḥ suṣṭhuvāho vahanti.

“ The path of the Aṅgirasas is the eastern fire ; the path of the Ādityas is the Gārhapatya fire (i. e., householder's fire); the track of the sacrificial gifts is the southern fire ; do thou, with thy limbs, whole, happy, attain to the greatness of Agni who has been created by Brahman ”.

AV. 19, 8, 2 : *aṣṭāvimśāni śivāni śagmāni

“ The twenty-eight (asterisms) that are beneficent, helpful, may they be brought into association with me. I take refuge with Yoga (acquisition of property) and Kṣema (enjoyment of property) ; with Kṣema and Yoga I take refuge. I bow to Day and Night ”.

Pādas ab mean, ‘ O ye twenty-eight asterisms, may I be brought into your association, which is auspicious, beneficent ’ ; compare with them RV. 7, 54, 3 : vāstoṣ pate śagmāyā saṁsádā te sakṣimāhi raṇvāyā gātumātyā explained above.

śagmā further occurs in TB. 1, 5, 5 : vaiśvānarasya tejasā | ṛtenāsyā nivartaye | satyena parivartaye | tapasā 'syānuvartaye | śivenā 'syopavartaye | śagmenā 'syābhivartaye in a mantra that is recited by the priest when shaving the yajamāna. It is not known exactly what the operations are that are denoted by the words nivartana, parivartana, anuvartana, upavartana and abhivartana here ; but there is no doubt that śagmā like śiva denotes ‘ beneficence ’ or ‘ auspiciousness ’ here.

Śaṅkh. GS. 3, 5, 1 : śagman śagman śivam śivam kṣe-māya vaḥ śāntyai prapadye 'bhayaṁ no astu grāmo mā 'raṇyāya paridadātu viśva-mahāya mā paridehi |

“ Good fortune, good fortune, happiness, happiness ;
I take refuge with you for well-being and peace. May there be security for us ; let the village give me over to the forest. Give me over to the all-great (forest).”

From śagmá is derived the word śagmiya or śagmya, which too denotes ‘beneficent, auspicious’ and occurs in the two following verses :

RV. 3, 31, 1 : *śāsad váhnir duhitúr naptyàm gād
vidvāñ ṛtasya dīdhitim saparyán |
pitā yātra duhitúḥ sékam ṛñján
sám śagmyēna mánasā dadhanvé ||*

The import of this verse is obscure. See Sāyaṇa’s commentary, Oldenberg, RV. Noten, and Geldner, RV. Ueber. I translate mechanically : “To the granddaughter went, instructing, the leader of the sacrifice knowing ṛta (Law), honouring pious thought, where the father, passing semen to the daughter, together ran with beneficent thought.”

AV. 5, 1, 9 : *ardhām ardhēna páyasā prṇakṣy
ardhēna śuṣma vardhase amūva | áviṁ vrdhāma śagmíyam sákhāyam
várūṇam putráṁ ádityā iṣirám | kaviśastāny asmai vápūmṣy
avocāma ródasī satyavácā ||*

This verse too, as also the other verses of this hymn, is obscure ; compare Whitney’s observation (AV. Trans., p. 200), ‘This hymn is intentionally and most successfully obscure’. I reproduce here his (mechanical) translation with some alterations :

“ Half with half milk thou mixest ; with half, O unovercome strength, thou growest. May we magnify the beneficent friend, Varuṇa the vigourous son of Aditi, the sheep. We have spoken for him brilliant (hymns) praised by poets; the two firmaments of true speech”.

svāsara

The attempts so far made to elucidate the meaning of this word are not satisfactory. The author of the Vedic Nighaṇṭu has mentioned this word three times—once (1,9) as a synonym of ahas, day, once, (3, 4) as a synonym of gṛha, dwelling, and once (4, 2) without mentioning any meaning. The deficiency in this last instance is made good by Yāska who has interpreted it as ahas. This meaning ahas is repeated by Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara in their commentaries on VS. 26, 11 and by Devarāja in his commentary on the Nighaṇṭu. Sāyaṇa, on the other hand, has, in his RV commentary, made use not only of the meaning ahas and gṛha (with suitable modifications, as for instance, yāgāhan 9, 94, 2; kulāya 2, 19, 2; goṣṭha 2, 2, 2, etc.) but has in addition interpreted the word as āditya in 5, 62, 2, as mārga in 6, 68, 10, and as śarīra in 1, 34, 7; see Geldner, Ved. Studien, 3, 111.

Roth has assigned to this word the meanings (1) Hürde, Stall; (2) Gewohnter Ort, Wohnplatz, Wohnung, Nistplatz der Vögel; that is to say, he has confined himself to the meaning gṛha and rejected the meaning ahas. This meaning, however, hardly yields good sense in many of the passages where the word occurs; and Geldner has, therefore, in his article on this word (Ved. Studien, 3, 110 ff.), investigated anew its meaning, and starting with the assumption that it means both a place and a time of day (as declared by the author of the Nighaṇṭu), has come to the conclusion that svāsara means (1) Frühtrieb, Morgenweide; the time before samgava when the cows graze freely on the pasture; (2) Frühausflug aus dem Nest, die Morgenatzung with regard to birds; and (3) die Frühmesse, Frühlibation, and, upalakṣaṇena, all the three savanāni or libations'. This interpretation is approved of by Macdonell (see his Vedic Index, s. v. ahan, go, svasara) and apparently by Oldenberg also who translates (RV. Noten I, 260) 3, 60, 6c as 'Diese Weiden bieten sich dir dar.' Hillebrandt, on the other hand, translates (Lieder des RV., p. 80) 5, 62, 2c as 'Ihr macht alle Milchströme des (himmlischen) Stalles strotzen' and seems therefore still to follow Roth in his interpretation of the word.

It seems to me that the translations given above of 3, 60, 6 and 5, 62, 2 by Oldenberg and Hillebrandt are hardly satisfactory. Nor are Geldner's translations (given in his RV. Uebersetzung) of 1, 34, 7cd ('Drei Entfernungen kommt ihr Wagenlenker Ásvin her zu Frühmesse wie der Windhauch zur Frühweide'), 2, 19, 2cd ('dass die Labsale der Flüsse forteilten wie Vögel zu den Futterplätzen') and 3, 60, 6cd ('Dir stehen diese [Soma-] weiden zur Verfügung auf Geheiss der Götter und nach den Satzungen des Menschen') any better: they indicate that the meanings proposed by Geldner for the word svásara are not correct and that they need to be revised.

The reason for such incorrectness, too, is not far to seek. Geldner has begun his exposition (Ved. Studien, 3, 111) with the observations (1) that the verses 2, 34, 8: dhenúr ná śíśve svásareṣu pinvate; 2, 2, 2: abhí tvā náktir uṣáso vavāśiré 'gne vatsám ná svásareṣu dhenávaḥ; 8, 88,

1: abhi vatsām ná svásareṣu dhenáva indram gīrbhīr navāmahe; 9, 94, 2: dhīyaḥ pinvānāḥ svásare ná gāva ṛtāyāntīr abhi vāvaśra indum show that the cows ooze with milk and low for their calves at the time or place of svāsara, and (2) that the the verses 1, 186, 5: śīsum ná pipyūṣīva veti sindhuḥ and 2, 16, 8: dhenūr ná vatsām yāvasasya pipyūṣī show that the milch-cow longs for and returns to her calf when she is pipyuṣī or yavasasya pipyūṣī. These observations are unexceptionable², and when taken into consideration along with the statement in Tait. Br. 1, 4, 9, 2: (tasmāt trir ahnaḥ paśavaḥ prerate | prātaḥ saṁgave sāyam) that the cows went out to graze thrice a day, prātaḥ, saṁgave and sāyam, they point to the conclusion that the cows returned home from the pasture thrice a day oozing with milk and longing and lowing for their calves. Similarly, Geldner's further observation (p. 113) that svasara denotes the time when the cows roam about and freely graze on the pastures (sva-sara), supposing that it is correct, points, when taken in conjunction with the above statement of the Tait. Br., to the conclusion that there are three periods of time in each day which can be denoted by the word svasara and not one period only, that preceding the saṁgava time, as stated by Geldner.

². Except that, as regards the second observation, the word pipyūṣī in 2, 16, 8 has no connection with the word yāvasasya which precedes it and which is to be construed with the verb abhy ā vavṛtsva. The cow moreover does not long for her calf when she is pipyuṣī but becomes pipyuṣī [i.e., oozing with milk] when she remembers and longs for her calf or sees it; compare Kirātārjunīya 4, 10: upārataḥ paścimarātrigocarād apārayantaḥ patitum javena gām | tam utsukāś cakru avakṣaṇatsukam gavām gaṇāḥ prasnutapīvaraudhasaḥ and the commentator's explanation utsukā vatsēṣūtkanṭhitāḥ, prasnutapīvaraudhaso vatsasmaraṇāt sravatpināpināḥ; Raghuvamśa 1, 84: bhuvam koṣṇena kundodhni medhvenābhrythād api | prasravenābhivarṣantī vatsālokapravartinā; Yaśastilakacampu, 2, 184: kvacid vatsckṣana-kṣana-kṣarat-stana-dhenu-dugdha-dhārā-dhāvryamāna-dharāpīṭham.

Now, what are the three times of the day when the cows were driven out to graze? It has been remarked, in this connection, by Macdonell (Vedic Index, s. v. go, note 4) that the exact sense of the above-mentioned passage of the Tait. Br. (1, 4, 9, 2) is obscure and that 'strictly speaking, the cows were driven out from the cattleshed in the morning, spent the heat of the day in the Saṁgavinī, were then driven out during the evening to graze and finally came or were driven home.' That is to say, the cows were, according to him, driven out to graze twice only in the day—in the morning before saṁgava, and in the afternoon after saṁgava, and not thrice. This view seems to me to be untenable, and I am disposed to think that the statement of the Tait. Br. is correct and that the cows were driven out to graze thrice a day—in the morning (prātah), in the saṁgava time (saṁgave), and in the evening (sāyam), that is to say, in the latter part of the night (paścimarātra) before the morning-milking, in the late morning after the morning-milking, and in the afternoon some time after the saṁgava-milking, and that they returned or were driven home from the pasture before the morning-milking, before the saṁgava-milking, and before the evening-milking respectively. Compare also Bhaṭṭabhāskara's comment (p. 235) tasmād ahnas triḥ prerate paśavaś caraṇārtham pratiṣṭhante prātah saṁgave sāyam ca on this passage.

The return home of the milch-cows has been described frequently by the later Sanskrit classical writers from whose writings I reproduce here some passages on this subject :

Yāśastilaka-campū 2, p. 10.

The first of these passages describes the return home of the cows from the paścimarātrigocara, longing (utsuka) for their calves and with their udders oozing milk. paścimarātrigocara means the pasture in which the cows graze in the last part of the night; and hence this verse describes the return home of the cows before the prātardoha.³ The other passages refer to the return home of the milch-cows in the evening and likewise represent these cows as eager to rejoin their calves, lowing to them, and hastening to them (goṣṭham upetya satvaram) with their udders oozing milk (prasnutastanam; prasravena; sraavad audhasam payah).

This eagerness of the cows to join their calves, their lowing to them and their hastening to them with udders oozing milk are features that figure also in innumerable verses of the RV that contain comparisons. Compare for instance 10, 149, 4: vāśréva vatsám sumánā dúhānā pátir iva jāyām abhí no ny ètu; 10, 75, 4: abhí tvā sindho śísuṃ in ná mātáro vāśrā arṣanti páyaseva dhenávaḥ; 1, 38, 8: vāśréva vidyún mimāti vatsám ná mātā siṣakti; 1, 32, 2: vāśrā iva dhenávaḥ syándamānā áñjah samudráṃ áva jagmur ápaḥ; 1, 164, 28: gaúr amimed ánu vatsám miśántam mūrdhānam híni akr̥ṇon mātavā u | sýkvānam gharmám abhí vāvaśānā mimāti māyún páyate páyobhiḥ; 9, 86, 2: árykṣata ráthyāso yáthā pýthak | dhenúr ná vatsám páyasābhí vajrīṇam. In the same way, the lowing of the calves for their mother-cows and the licking of the calves by the cows (see Bhāgavata, 10, 13, 24 cited above) are likewise referred to in many RV verses; compare, in respect of the former, 1, 164, 9: ámimed vatsó ánu gām apaśyat; 9, 94, 4: tám vāvaśānám matáyah śacante; 10, 1, 2: prá mātýbhyo ádhi kánikradad gāḥ and in respect of the latter, 3, 41, 5: rihánti śávasas pátim | índram vatsám ná mātáraḥ; 3, 55, 13: anyásyā vatsám rihatí mimāya;

The passages cited above describe the return home of the milch-cows in the early morning (before the prātar-doha) and in the evening (before the sāyam-doha) only. I do not know of any which describes their return home at the saṃgava time⁴ (before the saṃgava milking)⁵ ; but it can not be doubted that, at that time too, the milch-cows would be eager to rejoin their calves and would hasten to them, lowing and with their udders oozing milk. The oozing of milk from the cows' udders is thus not the characteristic of a place, but of a time—the time when the milch-cows return home⁶ from the pasture and are milked. This, as we have seen above, takes place three times a day—prātaḥ, samgata and sāyam or roughly, in the three sandhya or savana times. It is these three times of the day that are denoted by the word svāsara.

svāsara is thus approximately equivalent to sandhya, and in the plural, may be said to be a synonym of the word trisandhya or triṣaṇṇa. It is a kālavācakaśabda or word denoting time; and as such, it can be used in sentences to denote the time "when" not only in the locative case, but in the accusative and genitive cases also; see Whitney, §§274c, 300a, and 302b. Compare also Gaedicke (p. 178): "Der Accusativ von Zeitbegriffen besagt, dass der Vorgang während ihrer Dauer, der Genitiv, dass er während eines Theils derselben, der Locativ, dass er zwischen ihren Grenzen, der Instrumental, dass er mit ihrem Eintritt und Verlauf stattfindet. Daher kann die Frage 'wie lange' nur durch den Accusative beantwortet werden, während das 'wann' durch alle vier Casus bestimmt werden kann."

Like the word sandhyā which, though denoting the three sandhyā times, morning, noon and evening, is sometimes used in the sense of 'evening' only (see Apte), the word svāsara too, seems frequently to be used in the sense of 'evening.' This seems to be the case in the verses which refer to the cows oozing milk for their calves or lowing to them. And likewise there seems to be no doubt that svāsara means 'evening' in verses 2, 19, 2 and 2, 34, 5, where it is mentioned in connection with birds (vayaḥ; haṁsāḥ); for it is well-known that birds return to their nests in the evening and this fact is referred to in many passages in the later classical literature also. Compare for instance:

I have no doubt that it is this home-coming of the birds in the evening that is referred to by the above-mentioned RV verses (2, 19, 2; and 2, 34, 5). And similarly, it is my belief that the word svāsara denotes 'evening' in verses 1, 3, 8; 2, 2, 2; etc., where it is mentioned in connection with cows. It is true that (in the language of the poets) the cows return home with milk-oozing udders and low to their calves not only in the evening, but in the other two svāsara times also, namely, in the morning and forenoon. But the paucity of references in the later classical literature to the home-coming of the cows in these two svāsara times, combined with the many references to their home-coming in the evening, makes me think that the RV poets too had this home-coming of the cows at evening in their mind when they used the word svāsara in connection with cows in 1, 3, 8; 2, 2, 2; etc.⁷

I shall now show that the above-mentioned meaning, namely, sandhyā time or evening, fits into the context and yields good sense in all the passages where the word svāsara occurs. I begin with

usrā iva svāsarāṇi ||

“O ye All-Gods, come ye here, conquering the waters (in respect of rapid motion), quick, to the Soma juice, as cows in the evening.” svāsarāṇi=svasareṣu. The comparison usrā iva svāsarāṇi means yathā usrāḥ svasareṣu vatsān prati satvaram gacchanti tathā. This idea of swiftness is expressed, besides, by the epithets tūrṇayaḥ and aptúraḥ. The savana time that is proper to the Viśvedevas is the third or evening savana: compare Ch. Up. 2, 24, 1: ādityānām ca viśveṣām ca devānām tṛtīyasavanam; and though this verse is, in the ritual, (Āś. Śr. Sūtra, 5, 10, 5) prescribed for recitation in connection with the Vaiśvadevagraha of the prātas-savana, it is not improbable that it was originally recited in connection with the evening savana and that the word svāsarāṇi is to be construed with the verb āganta also.

1, 34, 7: trīr no aśvinā yajatā divé-dive pāri tridhātu prthivīm aśāyatam |
tisró nāsatyā rathyā parāvāta
ātméva vātaḥ svāsarāṇi gacchatam ||

⁷I have, therefore, in what follows, translated svāsara as ‘evening’ in these verses. It is, however, open to those who do not share my above-expressed belief to translate the word as ‘sandhyā time.’

“Thrice every day, O ye worshipful Aśvins, do ye come to the threefold earth, to us. O ye Aśvins that ride on chariots, ye go (i.e., pass) through the three distant places at the sandhyā times (as swiftly) as the swift-moving wind.” With regard to the last pāda, compare 1, 79, 1: vāta iva dhrājīmān; 1, 163, 11: tāva cittān vāta iva dhrājīmān; 10, 95, 2: durāpanā vāta ivāhām asmi; 4, 38, 3: rathatūram vātam iva dhrājantam; 7, 33, 8: vātasyeva prajāvo nānyēna; 10, 78, 3: vātāso nā yé dhūnayo jigatnūvaḥ, etc., all which contain comparisons referring to the swiftness of the wind.

2, 2, 2: abhī tvā náktīr uṣāso vavāśiré
'gne vatsām ná svāsareṣu dhenāvaḥ |
divá ivéd aratīr mānuṣā yugā
kṣāpo bhāsi puruvāra saṁyātaḥ ||

“For thee, O Agni, did they low, in the nights and in the mornings, as milch-cows do for their calf in the sandhyā times. Being bright, thou shinest, as in day so in the nights, successively, throughout man's life, O thou that hast many desirable things.”

It is the opinion of Oldenberg (RV. Noten, I. 189) that the words náktīḥ and uṣāsaḥ are in the nominative case and should be regarded as the subject of the verb vavāśire, the verse being translated as: ‘dir haben Nächte und Morgenröten zugebrüllt.’ This is the opinion of Bloomfield also (RV. Repetitions I, p. 162) who refers to 9, 94, 2 (in which I find nothing bearing on this point) in this connection; and Sāyaṇa too has given this as an alternative explanation.

There is however no verse elsewhere in the RV in which the Nights and Dawns are represented as crying after Agni. I prefer therefore to regard náktīḥ and uṣāsaḥ as being in the accusative case and used here in adverbial sense. This is the view of Sāyaṇa also in his first explanation and of Geldner. As subject of the verb vavāśire we have to understand either the priests or the prayers; compare 10, 64, 15: grāvā yātra madhuśūd ucyāte brhād āvivaśanta matibhir maniṣiṇaḥ and 1, 62, 3: sām usriyābhir vāvaśanta nāraḥ where the priests are said to have lowed for the gods and for Indra; and also 8, 44, 25: āgne dhṛtāvratāya te samudrāyeva sīndhavaḥ | giro vāśrāsa irate and 7, 5, 5: tvām agne harīto vāvaśānā girāḥ sacante dhūnayo ghṛtāciḥ where the prayers (girāḥ) are said to low after Agni and run to him. Compare also 9, 63, 21: matī viprāḥ sām asvaran where the priests are said to cry after Soma with prayers.

2, 19, 2: *asyā mandānó mādho vājrahastó
'him indro arṇovṛtam ví vṛścat |
prá yád váyo ná svāsarāṇy ācchā
práyāmsi ca nadīnām cákramanta ||*

“Exhilarated with this sweet juice, Indra, who carries the Vajra in his hand, cut off the dragon who had confined the waters, so that, like birds in the evening, the pleasing (i.e., refreshing) waters of the rivers, too, moved swiftly towards (the sea).”

The reference here is to Indra's well-known exploit of the liberation of the Waters and Cows after slaying the dragon; and I therefore agree with Sāyaṇa in his opinion that the word samudram is to be supplied after ācchā in the second half-verse. Compare the next verse: indro arṇo apām prairayad ahihācchā samudrām; see also Geldner, Ved. Studien, 3, 115, who, in his RV. Uebersetzung, however, construes ācchā with the word svāsarāṇi and translates: ‘die Labsale der Flüsse forteilten wie Vögel zu den Futterplätzen.’^a

It is hard to explain why the word ca has been used in pāda 4. Its use implies that something else, besides the práyāmsi, moved swiftly; and what this something else is, it is difficult to determine; see Oldenberg, RV. Notcn, I, 203. Perhaps it is the arṇāṁsi, torrents, referred to by the word arṇovṛtam in pāda b (compare also the words árṇo apām in the next verse). This is the view of Geldner in Ved. Studien, 3, 52, though in this case, it is difficult to make a distinction between the arṇāṁsi and prayāṁsi. Or perhaps, it is the cows that Indra sets free with the waters or rivers (compare 1, 32, 12: ájayo gā ájayaḥ śūra sómam ávāsṛjaḥ sárlave sapṭá síndhūn and 2, 23, 18: táva śriyé vy àjihīta párvato gávām gotrám udásṛjo yád aṅgiraḥ | índreṇa yujá támasā párvīvṛtam býhaspate nír apām aubjo arṇavām) and that are likewise mentioned in the next verse: índro árṇo apām práirayat ahihācchā samudrām | ájanayat sūryam vidád gā aktúnāhnām vayúnāni sādhat. Compare also 1, 61, 10: índraḥ | gā ná vrāṇā avānīr amuñcat 'Indra set free, like the cows, the rivers that were confined.'

^a He has similarly construed ācchā with svāsarāṇi in Ved. Studien, 3, 52 also where he has translated: ‘wie Vögel zur Morgenatzung, (die Fluten) und der Wonnetrank der Flüsse davoneilten.’

Here too, svásarāṇi=svásareṣu. The point of comparison in the simile váyo ná svásarāṇi 'like birds in the evening,' is swiftness which, though not mentioned, is to be understood here; compare in this respect the verse 1, 3, 8 (explained above) where too the sāmānyadharmā is not mentioned.

I have cited above many passages from classical Sanskrit writers which describe the return of birds to their nests in the evening. One only of these, namely, āvāsotsukapakṣiṇaḥ kalarutam krāmanti vṛkṣālayān . . . mentions that the birds are 'eager,' i.e., hurrying, to return to their nests: the other passages make no mention of this feature. To compensate for this, there are many RV verses that make no mention of evening-time, but refer, expressly or implicitly, to the swift movement of the birds when returning to their nests. Compare, for instance, 6, 3, 5: citrádhrajatir aratīr yó aktór vēr ná druśádvā raghupátmajamhāḥ 'of wonderful speed, shining at night, with swift-flying wings like a bird

that is going to sit on a tree (i.e., that is going to its nest ; compare particularly the words āvāsa and vrkṣalaya in the passage āvāsotsukapakṣiṇaḥ kalarutam . . . cited above)'; 1, 25, 4: pārā hi me vimanyavaḥ pātanti vāsya-iṣṭaye | vāyo ná vasatīr úpa, 'like birds to their nests, my prayers fly swift, seeking good fortune'; 1, 30, 4: ayám u te sám atasi kapotá iva garbhadhīm 'this (Soma juice) is for thee ; thou fliest to it as swiftly as a dove does to its nest'; 1, 33, 2: úpéd a'hám dhanadām ápratītam jūṣṭām ná śyenó vasatīm patāmi 'I fly swiftly to him, the giver of riches, the irresistible, as the falcon flies to its own dwelling-place'; 1, 183, 1: tám yuñjāthām mánaso yó jávīyān trivandhuró vṛṣaṇā yás tricakráḥ | yénopayāthāḥ sukṛto duroṇām tridhātunā patatho vír ná párnaiḥ 'yoke, ye two bulls, that (chariot), which is swifter than thought, has three seats, three wheels and three parts, and on which ye come, ye fly swiftly, to the dwelling of the pious person like a bird that flies with its wings to its dwelling-place'; 10, 115, 3: tám vo vím ná druṣádam . . . máhivratam ná sarájan-tam ádhvanah 'him (sc. Agni), who moves (as swiftly) as a bird that is going to sit on a tree (i.e., that is going to its nest) . . . raising dust over paths like a mighty person.'⁹ Compare also 9, 72, 5: āprāḥ krátūn sám ajair adhvaré matīr vér ná druṣác camvòr āsadaḥ dháriḥ; 9, 61, 21: sámmiślo aruṣó bhava sūpasthābhīr ná dhenúbhiḥ | sídañc chyenó ná yónim ā; 9, 62, 4: āsāvy amśūr mādāyāpsú dáḁṣo giviṣṭhāḥ | śyenó ná yónim āsadaḥ; 9, 71, 6: śyenó ná yónim sádanam dhiyā kṛtām hiranyáyam āsadam devá ēṣati | é riṇanti barhiṣi priyám girā 'svo ná devāñ ápy eti yajñīyah; 9, 82, 1: āsavi sómo

camūśadaḥ* where the idea of swiftness is implied by the comparison with the bird or falcon 'sitting,' i.e., going to sit, in its nest.¹⁰

The comparison vāyo ná svāsarāṇi therefore in the above half-verse (prá yád vāyo ná svāsarāṇy ācchā práyāmsi ca nadīnām cákramanta) means 'as swiftly as birds (fly to their dwelling-places) in the evening.' The idea of swiftness is referred to clearly in other passages also that describe the running forth of the Waters or rivers after their liberation by Indra: compare 3, 32, 6 :
*tvám apó yád dha vṛtrám jaghanvāñ átyāñ iva prāsrjah

10, 111, 9-10 : sṛjāḥ síndhūñr áhinā jagrasānāñ ād id

2, 34, 5 : *índhanvaòhir dhenúbhi rapśádūdhabhir

¹⁰ This idea of swiftness is expressed clearly in other verses and similes ; cf., for instance, 9, 62, 8 : *só ar̥śēndrāya pitāye tiró rómāny avyáyā | sīdan yónā vāneṣv ā ; 9, 62, 16 : pávamānah sūtó

*ā hamsāso nā svāsarāṇi gantana
mādhora mādaya marutaḥ samanyavaḥ ||*

“ With the flaming (?) cows whose udders are full, come, O ye Maruts that are of the same mind, and that have bright spears, by dustless roads for the delight of the sweet (drink), (as swiftly) as swans in the evening.”

The exact meaning of indhanvabhiḥ, which occurs in this one passage only, is not known. The sense of pada a too, is somewhat obscure.

svāsarāṇi in this verse too is equivalent to svasareṣu. The comparison hamsāso nā svāsarāṇi refers, not to the genus bird, like 6, 3, 5 ; 1, 25, 4 ; 1, 183, 1 ; etc., cited above, but to a particular species of birds ; it resembles in this respect the verses 1, 30, 4 : ayām u te sām atasi kapotā iva garbhadhīm and 1, 33, 2 : jūṣṭām nā śyenō vasatīm patami (also cited above) which likewise refer to particular species of birds. The sāmānyadharma, however, is the same, to wit, swiftness, in all these verses.

2, 34, 8 : *yād yuñjāte marūto rukmāvakṣasó
'śvān rátheṣu bhāga ā sudānavah | dhenūr nā śísve svāsareṣu pinvate
jánāya rātāhaviṣe mahīm iṣam ||*

“ When the liberal Maruts, with ornaments on their breasts, yoke their horses in the chariots for the purpose of blessing, they ooze copious refreshments for him who has offered oblations as the milch-cow (does) to her calf in the evenings.”

3, 60, 6 : *indra ṛbhumān vājavān matsvehá no
'smín sāvane śácyā puruṣṭuta |
imāni túbhyaṁ svāsarāṇi yemire
vratā devānām mānuṣas ca dhārmabhiḥ ||*

“ Indra, delight thou now here ardently with the Rbhus and Vaja in this our oblation of the Soma juice, O thou that art much praised. These savana times are set apart for thee according to the ordinance of the gods and the customs of man.” Note the juxtaposition of the sentences, asmín sávane matsva and imāni túbhyaṁ svásarāṇi yemire which too points to the conclusion that svásara denotes the time of savana.

3, 61, 4: *áva syūmeva cinvatī maghōny uṣā yāti svásarasya pátnī | svār jánantī subhágā sudúmsā
āntād divāḥ papratha ā pṛthivyāḥ ||*

“Gathering rays, as it were, comes the liberal Dawn, the ruler of sandhyā. Bringing out the sun, she who is beautiful and has great might, has spread to the end of heaven and of earth.”

The meaning of the expression áva syūmeva cinvatī is obscure. The epithet svásarasya pátnī is appropriate to Uṣas, because she is the deity that presides over the sandhyā time.

5, 62, 2: *tāt sú vām mitrāvaruṇā mahitvām īrmā tasthūṣir áhabhir duduhre | vísavāḥ pinvathaḥ svásarasya dhénā
ānu vām ékaḥ pavir ā vavarta ||*

“This, O Mitra and Varuṇa, is your greatness, (namely), that those who are here were milked day by day. You make all the prayers ooze (i.e., yield favourable results) at sandhyā time; the felly alone revolved after you.”

The signification of īrmā in pāda b is obscure. Regarding pāda c compare 5, 71, 12: vísvasya hí pracctasā vāruṇa mitra rājathaḥ | īsānā pipyatam dhíyah; 9, 19, 2: yuvām hí sthāḥ svarpatī índraś ca soma gópati | īsānā pipyatam dhíyah; 10, 64, 12: tām (dhiyam) pipayata páyaseva dhenúm.

6, 68, 10: *īndrāvaruṇā sutapāv imām sutām sómam pibatam mádyam dhṛtavratā |
yuvó rátho adhvarám devāvītaye
prāti svásaram úpa yāti pītāye ||*

“O Indra and Varuṇa who uphold the ordinances, drink, ye Soma-drinkers, this exhilarating Soma-juice that has been pressed. Your chariot comes towards evening to the sacrifice for the meal of the gods, that you may drink.” This verse is one of those that are prescribed to be recited in the course of the third or evening savana (see Āś. Śr. Sūtra, 5, 5, 19); and hence it is likely that svāsara is used here in the sense of ‘evening.’

8, 88, 1 : tām vo dasmām ṛtīṣāham
vāsoṛ mandānām āndhasaḥ |
abhī vatsām ná svāsareṣu dhenáva
īndram gīrbhīr navāmahe ||

“We cry with our hymns for mighty Indra, the conqueror in battles, who takes delight in the bright food (i.e., the Soma juice), as milch-cows do for their calves in the evenings.”

8, 99, 1 : tvām idā hyó náró 'pīpyan vajrin bhūrṇayaḥ |
sá indra stómaṁvāhasām
ihá śrudhy úpa svāsaram ā gahi ||

“The zealous men (i.e., the priests), O Vajra-bearer, have made thee drink now and yesterday. Hear now, O Indra, the (priests) who bring forward (thy) praises ; come towards the evening.”

9, 94, 2 : dvitā vyūrṇvānn amṛtasya dhāma svarvāde bhūvanāni prathanta | dhīyaḥ pīnvānāḥ svāsare ná gāva
ṛtāyāntīr abhī vāvaśra indum ||

“Opening again widely the abode of immortality, they spread the worlds for the finding of the sun. Oozing milk like cows in the evenings, the holy hymns lowed for Soma.”

AV. 7, 23, 2 : bradhñāḥ samīcīr uśāsah sām airayan |
arepāsah sácetasah
svāsare manyumáttamāś cité góḥ ||

The import of this verse is obscure. I translate, following Whitney: "The bright one, sending out in sandhyā time the beautiful dawns, faultless, like-minded, most furious, in the gathering of the cow."

Śata. Br. 4, 3, 5, 20: ādityebhyaḥ . . . maha svasarasya patibhyaḥ |

"For the Ādityas who are the lords (i.e., presiding deities) of the advanced (i.e., the latest or third) sandhyā time." maha svasarasya means the 'advanced svasara' or 'third svasara'; compare the similar use of mahā- in mahārātra. With regard to the third savana, compare Ch. Up. 2, 34, 1: ādityānām ca viśveṣām ca devānām tṛtīyasavanam (cited above), according to which this savana belongs to the Ādityas and Viśvedevas; compare also Śata. Br. 4, 3, 5, 1: ādityānām tṛtīya-savanam. The Ādityas are therefore here represented as presiding over the third savana, that is, over the third svasara.

The word arati which I have above (p. 92) interpreted as 'bright' occurs in about thirty RV verses and has been differently explained by exegetists. Sāyaṇa has explained it variously as svāmin or īśvara (1, 59, 2; 1, 128, 6; 1, 128, 8; 2, 4, 2; 2, 2, 3; 6, 15, 4; 7, 10, 3; etc.); vyāpta, vistṛta (2, 2, 2; 2, 2, 3); prāpāyitr (1, 58, 7); gantr or abhigantr (6, 3, 5; 6, 7, 1; etc.) and aprīti or aramaṇa (3, 17, 4; 4, 38, 4). Uvāṭa and Mahīdhara have interpreted the word as alamati, paryāptamati in VS. 7, 24 and 15, 32; and the latter has besides suggested the meanings pūrakam, ratir uparatis tadrahitam and ratir uparamas tadrahitam, sadodyamayutam ity arthaḥ for the word aratim. Similarly, Bhattabhāskara too has paraphrased arati by uparatirahita in his commentary on Tait. Br. 2, 5, 4, 4, as does also Sāyaṇa in ibid., 2, 8, 2, 4.

Roth (in PW) has interpreted the word as Diener, Gehülfe, Verwalter, Ordner, administer while Grassmann, differing from him, has said that the word means 'der das Opfer zurichtet, zu Stande bringt.' Oldenberg, in SBE, 45, has explained the word as 'steward.' Bergaigne (Quarante Hymns, V) translates it as 'ministre' and Ludwig and Griffiths as 'messenger.' Geldner, in his Glossar gives the meaning 'Herr' (which Hillebrandt also approves of; Lieder des RV, p. 22), but in his Uebersetzung, has translated the word as 'Lenker,' and 'Rosselenker.' He has also added the following explanatory note (p. 68): "Agni ist der arati der Götter (2, 4, 2), von Himmel und Erde (1, 59, 2; 2, 2, 3; 6, 49, 2; 10, 3, 7), des himmels (2, 2, 2; 10, 3, 2), der Erde (6, 7, 1). In Verbindung mit den Vasu's auch 10, 3, 2; arati ursprünglich wohl der Rosse- und Wagenlenker (der 'hyppelata') and dann der Lenker überhaupt. Für die Bedeutung 'Rosselenker' spricht bes. 4, 38, 4; 8, 19, 1 (devāso devām aratīm dadhanvire) und 2, 4, 2 (aratīr jīrāśvaḥ). Als Bezeichnung des Agni verbindet sich ar. gern mit dūtá und havyavāḥ (3, 17, 4; 6, 15, 4; 7, 10, 3; 8, 19, 21; 10, 46, 4)."

None of these interpretations fits into the context in, for instance, 6, 3, 5: citrádhrajaṭir aratīr yó aktór vér ná druśádvā raghuṇátmajamhāḥ; and hence it is my belief that none of them is correct.

The terms īśvara (Herr), vyāpta, gantṛ, gopāḥ, etc., refer to characteristics that are common to almost all RV deities and can be used as epithets of all such deities, while in fact, the word arati is used of Agni only. This in itself is enough to raise doubts in my mind as to whether arati means īśvara, (Herr), vyāpta, or gantṛ, etc. On the other hand, I believe that the correct signification of the word arati is, in all probability, one that has specific reference to Agni, that in fact, arati means 'he who shines; the bright one; śukra; pāvaka.' I give here below the reasons for such belief.

I. The verse 10, 45, 7 : uśík pāvakó aratíḥ sumedhā mārteṣv agnir amṛto ní dhāyi is in most respects parallel to the verse 1, 60, 4 : uśík pāvakó vásur mānuṣānām vāreṇyo hótā dhāyi vikṣú; and it seems therefore (since aratíḥ cannot mean *vāreṇyaḥ*¹ and sumedhāḥ cannot mean vásuḥ) that aratíḥ is equivalent to vásuḥ or bright.

II. Again, five out of the thirty passages in which the word arati occurs, namely 1, 59, 2 (arati ródasyoḥ); 2, 2, 3 (divás prthivyór aratīm ny èvire); 6, 49, 2 (ádṛptakratum aratīm yuvatyóḥ); 7, 5, 1 (divó aratāye prthivyāḥ); and 10, 3, 7 (divás-prthivyór aratír yuvatyóḥ) say that Agni is the arati of Heaven and Earth. Now what exactly is the relation between Agni on the one hand, and Heaven and Earth on the other, that is referred to by the word arati in these passages? An examination of the RV hymns addressed to Agni discloses that the following relations are mentioned therein:

1. Agni is the generator of Heaven and Earth (1, 96, 4 : viśāṁ gopā janitā ródasyoḥ).
2. He is the son of Heaven and Earth (3, 3, 2 : sá mātṛór abhavat putrá idyaḥ; cf. also 10, 1, 7; 10, 140, 2).
3. He 'glorified' his parents, Heaven and Earth, when he was born (3, 3, 11 : ubhā pitārā mahāyann ajāyatāgnir dyāvāprthivī).
4. He 'renovated' his parents (mātarā), i.e., Heaven and Earth, again and again (3, 5, 7 : pūnaḥ-punar mātārā nāvyaśi kaḥ).

¹ This becomes clear from the context of the other verses where the word arati occurs, and where the meaning vāreṇyaḥ does not give good sense.

5. He 'saw' Heaven and Earth (3, 26, 8: ād id dyāvāprthivī páry apaśyat).
6. He follows, i.e., is like to, Heaven and Earth in point of prkṣa or strength (2, 1, 15: prkṣó yād átra mahinā ví te bhúvad ánu dyāvāprthivī ródasī ubhé).
7. He supported Heaven and Earth (6, 8, 3: vy àstabhnād ródasī mitró ádbhutaḥ).
8. He is prayed to make Heaven and Earth well-inclined (2, 2, 7: prācī dyāvāprthivī bráhmanā kṛdhi).
9. He moves in Heaven and Earth as dūta (3, 3, 2); antār dūtó ródasī dasmá iyate; cp. also 4, 7, 8; 7, 2, 3).
10. He enters into Heaven and Earth (10, 80, 2: agnír mahī ródasī ā viveśa; see also 3, 3, 4; 3, 7, 4; 3, 61, 7) or moves in them (10, 80, 1: agnī ródasī ví carat smamañján), adorning them.
11. He extends Heaven and Earth with his light (6, 1, 11: ā yás tatántha ródasī ví bhāśā; see also 10, 1, 7; 5, 1, 7; 6, 4, 6; 7, 5, 4; 10, 88, 3).
12. He brings Heaven and Earth to the sacrifice and offers oblations to them (6, 16, 24: váso yakṣihā ródasī and 3, 7, 9: mahó devān ródasī éhá vakṣi; see also 6, 12, 1; 6, 11, 4; 6, 15, 15; 3, 15, 5; 10, 11, 9); he offers oblations to them as hotṛ (3, 17, 2: yáthā 'yajo hotṛám agne prthivyā yáthā divó jātavedas cikítvān | evānena havīṣā yakṣi devān) or invokes them as hotṛ (7, 7, 3: hótā | ā mātārā viśvāvāre huvānāḥ).
13. He fills Heaven and Earth with light (6, 48, 6: ā yáh papraú bhānúnā ródasī ubhé; see also

- 1, 69, 1 ; 1, 73, 8 ; 3, 2, 7 ; 3, 3, 10 ; 3, 6, 2 ; 7, 13, 2 ; 10, 140, 2).
14. He surpasses Heaven and Earth in greatness (3, 6, 2 ; ródasī . . utá prá rikthā ádha nú prayajyo).
15. He rolls up Heaven and Earth like two skins (6, 8, 3 : ví cármanīva dhiṣāṇe avartayat).
16. He roars at Heaven and Earth (10, 8, 1 : á ródasī vṛṣabhó roravīti).
17. He gladdens Heaven and Earth with his friendship (10, 88, 2 : tásya devāḥ pṛthivī dyaúr utápo 'raṇayann óṣadhīḥ sakhyé asya).
18. He is known to Heaven and Earth (10, 88, 8 : tám dyaúr veda tám pṛthivī tám āpah).
19. He sits in the lap of Heaven and Earth (7, 6, 6 : vaiśvānaró vāram ā ródasyor āgnīḥ sasāda pitrór upástham).
20. He is the ruler of Heaven and Earth (7, 6, 2 ; hinvānti sám rājyám ródasyoh).
21. He shines upon or illumines Heaven and Earth (3, 15, 3 : agnír dyāvāpṛthivī viśvajanyé ā bhāti devī amṛte amūrah ; see also 1, 143, 2 ; 3, 2, 2 ; 1, 96, 5 ; 2, 2, 5 ; 10, 45, 4 ; 7, 12, 1 ; 6, 3, 7).

The word aratí, in all probability, refers to one of these twenty-one kinds of relations, and that being so, it becomes obvious that the first-mentioned twenty cannot be denoted by it (for none of these fits into the context in the other passages where the word aratí occurs), and that it can refer to the twenty-first only.

aratí thus means 'one who shines or illumines, bright, brilliant, radiant.' It is therefore derived from the same root r or ar 'to shine' (and not from r or ar 'to go' as Sāyaṇa has suggested) as the words aruná and aruṣá and is practically synonymous with these two words and also with pāvaká, śukrá, śúci, vibhāvan, rukṃá, etc., all which words mean 'bright, resplendent, radiant,' and are, like the word arati, used most often as epithets of Agni or Sūrya.

I shall now show that this meaning 'bright, brilliant, radiant' suits the context in all the verses in which arati occurs. Of these 2, 2, 2: abhi tvā náktir uṣáso varāśiré 'gne vatsám ná scásareṣu dhenávaḥ | divá ivéd aratir mānuṣā yugā kṣápo bhasi purucara saṁyátaḥ has already been explained above (p. 92).

1, 59, 2: *mūrdhā divó nābhir agnīḥ pṛthivyā áthābhavad aratī ródasyoḥ |
tām tvā devāso 'janayanta devám
vaiśvānara jyótir íd āryāya ||*

"The head of Heaven and the navel of Earth, Agni became the illuminator of (i.e., shone upon) Heaven and Earth. The gods have engendered thee, the god, as light for the Ārya, O Vaiśvānara."

Regarding the expression arati ródasyoḥ, compare 1, 143, 2: prá dyāvā śociḥ pṛthivī arocayat; 10, 45, 4: ā ródasī bhānúnā bhāty antáḥ; 1, 96, 5: dyāvā kṣāmā rukmó antár ví bhāti and other similar verses in which Agni is said to have illuminated Heaven and Earth with his light.

2, 2, 3: *tām devā budhné rájasaḥ sudámsasam diváspṛthivyór aratīm ny èrire |
rátham íva védyam śukráśociṣam
agnīm mutrām ná kṣitīṣu praśámsyam ||*

"The gods set up at the bottom of space (i.e., on the earth) him, Agni, with bright light, who illuminates (i.e., shines upon) Heaven and Earth, who wins (the prize) like a chariot, who is, like a friend, worthy of being praised."

6, 7, 1: *mūrdhānam divó aratīm pṛthivyā vaiśvānarām ṛtā ā jātām agnīm | kavīm samrájam átithīm jánānām
āsānn ā pátram janayanta devāḥ ||*

“The gods have engendered Agni Vaiśvānara, born in ṛta, the head of Heaven, the illuminator of Earth, wise, sovereign, the guest of men, the drinking-vessel (of the gods).”

Regarding the expression āsān pāttram in d, compare the nivid (T.B. 3, 5, 3, 1) āspāttram juhūr devānām | camasó devapānaḥ addressed to Agni.

6, 49, 2: *viśó-viśa idyam adhvaréṣu ádṛptakratum aratīm yuvatyóḥ | diváh śísuṁ sáhasaḥ sūnúm agníṁ
yajñásya ketúm aruṣám yájadhyai ||*

“Offer worship to Agni, who is worthy of adoration by all peoples in sacrifices, who is not proud of his insight, who is the illuminator of the two youthful women (i.e., of Heaven and Earth), the child of Heaven, the son of strength, the beacon of the sacrifice, bright.”

7, 5, 1: *prāgnáye taváse bharadhvam gíraṁ divó aratáye pṛthivyāḥ |
yó víśveṣām amṛtānām upásthe
vaiśvānaró vāvṛdhé jāgrvadbhiḥ ||*

“Proffer the hymn to the strong Agni, illuminator of Heaven and Earth, who, (as) Vaiśvānara, was magnified in the lap of all the immortals by the watchful (priests).”

10, 3, 7: *sá ā vakṣi máhi na ā ca satsi divásprthivyór aratír yuvatyóḥ | agníḥ sutúkaḥ sutúkebhir ásvai
rábhasvadbhī rábhasvāñ éhá gamyāḥ ||*

“The illuminator of the two youthful women, (namely) Heaven and Earth, thou carriest much to us and sittest (on our barhis). May the swift impetuous Agni come here with swift impetuous horses.”

1, 58, 7: *hótāraṁ sapṭá juhvò yájiṣṭhaṁ yám vāgháto vṛṇáte adhvaréṣu | agníṁ víśveṣām aratīm vásūnām
saparyāmi práyasā yāmi rátnam ||*

“ I worship with good cheer, and pray for wealth (to), Agni brilliant amongst the Vasus, the hotṛ who sacrifices best with seven ladles (or, tongues), whom the priests choose in the rites (as hotṛ).”

The construction of juhvò in pāda a is not clear. Oldenberg (SBE. 46, p. 46) regards saptá juhvaḥ as nominative plural and as the subject of vṛṇáte in pada b, and translates ‘whom the seven ladles (of the priests), the worshippers choose as the hotṛ’; see also his RV. Noten (I, p. 58). So does Geldner also in his RV. Ueber. On the other hand, Pischel, in Ved. Stud. 2, 113, has compared with pādas ab here 10, 6, 4 : mandró hótā sá juhvaḥ yájiṣṭhaḥ and says, ‘Der Accusativ saptá juhvaḥ hängt ab von yájiṣṭham (Gaedicke, Accusativ im Veda p. 185)’, with which opinion I am inclined to agree. Compare also in this connection 4, 7, 5 : tám īm hótāram ānuṣák cikitvāmsam ní ṣedire | raṇvám pāvakásociṣam yájiṣṭham saptá dhāmabhiḥ whose pādas cd convey the same meaning as the expressions aratīm vāsūnām and juhvò yájiṣṭham in pādas ac above.

10, 3, 2 : *kṛṣṇām yád énīm abhí vārpaśā bhūj janāyan yóṣām bṛhatúḥ pitúr jām | ūrdhvām bhānūm sūryasya stabhāyān
divó vásubhir aratír ví bhāti ||*

“ When he surpassed with his splendour the Dark and the White, bringing forth the woman born of the great father and holding firm the ray, raised high, of the sun, the brilliant one (sc. Agni) shines with the bright ones of Heaven.” The import of this verse is obscure. According to Sāyaṇa, the Dark one is the Night, the great father, the sun, and the woman born of him, Uṣas.

7, 10, 3 : *ácchā gíro matáyo devayántir agnīm yanti dráviṇam bhíkṣamāṇāḥ | susamndṛśam suprátīkam svāñcam
havyavāham aratīm mānuṣāṇām ||*

“The hymns and thoughts, pious, go begging for wealth to Agni, handsome, of beautiful countenance, swift carrier of offerings, who shines on men.”

1, 128, 8 : *agnīm hótāram īlate vāsudhitim priyām cētiṣṭham aratīm ny èvire havyavāham ny èvire | viśvāyūm viśvāvedasam
hótāram yajatām kavīm |
devāso raṇvām úvase vasūyāvo
gīrbhī raṇvām vasūyāvah ||*

“Agni, the hotṛ, the storehouse of wealth, do they magnify; him who is dear, preeminent and brilliant, did they set up; the carrier of offerings, the hotṛ, worshipful, wise, vivifier of all and possessor of all wealth, joy-bringing, did the gods wishing for wealth, set up, for protection; wishing for wealth, with hymns, (did they set up) the joy-bringing (Agni).”

7, 16, 1 : *enā vo agnīm námasorjó nápātam ā huve | priyām cētiṣṭham aratīm svadhvarām
viśvasya dūtām amṛtam ||*

“With this adoration (i.e., hymn) do I invoke Agni the son of strength, dear, pre-eminent, immortal, the messenger of all, the accomplisher of sacrifices.”

1, 128, 6 : *viśvo víhāyā aratír vāsur dadhe hāste dáksine tarúnir ná śiśrathac chravasyāyā ná śiśrathat | viśvasmā íd iṣudhyaté
devatrā havyām óhiṣe | viśvasmā ít sukṛte vāram ṛṇvaty
agnír dvārā vy ṛṇvati ||*

“All grown out, the brilliant swift-moving one held wealth in his right hand, not letting it loose; desirous of glory, he has not let loose. For every one who desires it, thou carriest the offerings to the gods. For every righteous one, he procures his wish, (for him) Agni opens wide both folds of the door.”

The meaning of vihāyāḥ in pāda a is not certain; Geldner, whom I have followed, translates it (RV. Ueber. p. 162) as 'ausgewachsen,' Oldenberg (SBE. 40, p. 138) as 'far-reaching,' while Sāyaṇa, following the author of the Nighaṇṭu (3. 3) has explained it as mahān.

In pāda a, vásur in vásur dadhe seems clearly to be in the nominative case and in coordination with aratiḥ; and Geldner has accordingly translated (l.c.) pādas ab as 'Ganz ausgewachsen (wird er) der Wagenlenker, hält der Gott (die Güter) in seiner rechten Hand,' observing that, before dadhe the word vásu is to be supplied as shown by 9, 18, 4 and that this is an instance of haplology. On the other hand, Oldenberg (op. cit. p. 140), referring to the same 9, 18, 4 (ā yó víśvāni vāryā vásūni hástayor dadhé) proposes to read pāda a as víśvā vihāyā aratír vásū dadhe. Now I agree with Oldenberg that the word vásur should not be looked upon as a nominative and as an epithet of Agni, but that it denotes 'wealth'; but I am opposed to any emendation of the text. Compare in this connection 1, 110, 7: ṛbhúr ná indraḥ śávasā nāvīyān ṛbhúr vājebhir vásubhir vásur dadíḥ; 8, 24, 3: sá na stāvāna ā bhara rayīm citráśra-vastamam | nireké cid yó harivo vásur dadíḥ; 8, 46, 15: dadī rékṇas tanvè dadír vásu dadír vājeṣu puruhūta vājīnam; 8, 21, 17: índro vā ghéd íyan maghám sárasvatī vā subbhágā dadír vásu; and 4, 24, 1: kā suṣṭutíḥ śávasaḥ sūnīm índram arvācīnām rádhasa ā vavartat | dadír hí vīró grṇaté vásūni where the expression vásur dadíḥ in the first two verses seems plainly to be equivalent to the expression dadír vásu in the third and fourth and to dadír vásūni in the fifth.

I conceive that vásur is similarly equivalent to vásu (vásūni) in pāda a also above ² and that vásur dadhe == dadhe

vāsūni. Regarding viśvaḥ, compare 4, 1, 1: viśvam ādevam janata prācetasam where too viśva is used as an epithet of Agni.

2, 4, 2: *imām vidhānto apām sadhāsthe dviṭā dadhur bhṛgavo vikṣv āyóḥ |
eṣā viśvāny abhy āstu bhūmā
devānām agnīr aratīr jīrāśvaḥ ||*

“ Worshipping him in the abode of the waters, the Bhṛgus have again established him among the clans of Āyu. May he surpass all worlds, Agni, who shines on the gods, who has swift horses.” With regard to devānām aratīḥ in pāda d, compare 8, 60, 15: ād id devēsu rājasi addressed to Agni.

3, 17, 4: *agnīm sudītīm sudṛśam grṇānto namasyāmas tvēdyaṁ jātavedaḥ | tvām dūtām aratīm havyavāham
devā akrṇvann amṛtasya nābhim ||*

“ Praising Agni, handsome, of fine splendour, we adore, O Jātavedas, thee that deservest to be magnified. Thee that art brilliant, the gods have made the messenger, the carrier of offerings, the navel of immortality.”

4, 1, 1: *tvām hy āgne sādām it samanyāvo

iti krátvā nyeriré |

“ O Agni, thee indeed, the brilliant God, have the gods with one mind set up; they have set (thee) up with this aim: ‘adore the immortal among the mortals; engender the wise god who is godly, engender the wholly wise one who is godly.’ ”

4, 2, 1: *yó mārtyeṣv amṛta ṛtāvā devó devēṣv aratīr nidhāyi |

havyaír agnīr mānuṣa īrayádhyai ||*

“The brilliant god, pious, immortal, who was established as the best-sacrificing hotṛ among gods and mortals, may he shine greatly; may (he) Agni go (unto the gods) with the offerings of men.” I construe mártyeṣu, devéṣu and hótā yájiṣṭhaḥ together in the relative clause; compare 6, 1, 13: agnír hótā grhápatiḥ sá rājā víśvā veda jánimā jātávedāḥ | devānām utá yó mártiānām yájiṣṭhaḥ where Agni is said to be the best-sacrificing (priest) among gods and mortals, and 4, 7, 1: ayám ihá prathamó dhāyī dhātṛbhir hótā yájiṣṭhaḥ and other similar verses in which it is said that Agni was established as the ‘best-sacrificing hotṛ.’ It is my belief that these two ideas have been combined together by the poet in the relative clause of the above verse.

4, 38, 4: *yáḥ smārundhānó gádhyā samátsu sánutaraś cāratī góṣu gácchan | āvīryjīko vidáthā nicíkyat
tiró aratīm páry āpa āyóḥ ||*

The words gádhyā, sánutaraḥ, and ryjīka and the expression vidáthā nicíkyat are obscure, and it is hence difficult to make out the import of this verse which describes the running of the horse Dadhikrā. I translate mechanically: “Who, seizing great (booty) in battles, moves as the better winner (of the prize) when he goes towards the cows, with his good points apparent, understanding assemblies, surpassing the brilliant one (Agni?), more than Āyu was able to obtain”.

5, 2, 1: *kumārām mātā yuvatīḥ sámubdham gúhā bibharti ná dadāti pitré | ánīkam asya ná mināj jánāsaḥ
purāḥ paśyanti níhitam arataú ||*

The import of this verse, as also of several other verses of this hymn, is obscure; see SBE. 46, p. 368 and RV. Noten I, 312. I translate tentatively:

“The young mother carries hidden the bound son; she does not give him to the father. The people see his not changing countenance (?) before them, placed in the radiant (fire) ”.

6, 3, 5 : *sá id ásteva práti dhād asiṣyāñ chīṣīta téjō 'yaso ná dhārām | citrádhrajatir aratír yó aktór
vér ná druṣādvā raghupátmajamhāḥ ||*

“ He [Agni] has made himself ready like a shooter going to shoot and sharpened his flames like the edge of iron, (he) of marvellous speed, who shines at night and who speeds swiftly like a bird going to sit on a tree (i.e., going to its nest).”

6, 12, 3 : *téjiṣṭhā yásyāratír vanerāt todó ádhvan ná vṛdhasāró adyaut | adroghó ná dravitā cetati tmānn
ámartyo 'vartrá óṣadhīṣu ||*

“The bright one, ruling over the forest, whose (splendour) is most brilliant, shone with increasing brightness like the sun in his path ; beneficent, immortal, unchecked by plants he shows himself preeminent like a swift horse ”.

The construction of the words téjiṣṭhā yásyāratír vanerāt in pāda a is difficult. Ludwig has suggested that the proper reading here is amatir, not aratir, and Grassmann, that one should read tejiṣṭhayā yaḥ instead of tejiṣṭhā yasya, a suggestion that Oldenberg thinks (RV. Noten) is perhaps correct. Oldenberg has besides observed (l. c.) that 1, 127, 4 and 1, 129, 5 point to the reading araṇi instead of arati, and also that it is possible to construe the passage without emendation as ‘dessen (Glut) die schärfste ist, der arati,’ though such interpretation is very artificial. He therefore proposes to interpret the passage as ‘he whose arati is most sharp’ without however saying what the meaning of arati is.

Now the verses 1, 127, 4 and 1, 129, 5 referred to in this connection by Oldenberg are obscure and it is difficult to find out what these verses themselves mean.

And, moreover, in the verse 10, 61, 20: ádhasu mandró aratir vibhāvāva syati dvivartanir vaneṣāt, the word vaneṣāt 'victorious in the forest,' which is almost synonymous with the word vanerāt ('ruling over the forest') here, is clearly coordinate with aratiḥ and vibhāvā which makes it probable that the word vanerāt too here is coordinate with aratiḥ and refers to Agni. I therefore supply here the word *ruc*³ (fem.; = bhānu, splendour) after tejiṣṭhā on the analogy of 10, 3, 5: téjiṣṭhaiḥ krīḷumádbhir várṣiṣṭhebhīr bhānúbhiḥ and translate, 'whose (splendour) is most brilliant, the bright one, ruling over the forest, . . .'

In pāda c, I regard ná dravitā only as forming the upamāna and look upon adrogha (=not injuring; i.e., favourable, beneficent) as an epithet of Agni who is the deity of this verse. Compare the epithet adrúh that is applied to Agni in 6, 15, 7: vípraṁ hótāraṁ puruvāram adrúhaṁ kavīm sumnaír īmahe jātávedasam; 6, 5, 1: huvé vaḥ sūnúṁ sáhaso yúvānam ádroghavācam matibhir yáviṣṭham | yá invati dráviṇāni prácetā viśvāvārāṇi puruvāro adhrúk and other verses.

dravitā, runner, seems to denote race-horse; compare the word atya. Regarding the expression ná dravitā . . . avartrá oṣadhiṣu, compare 6, 3, 4: *dravír ná drāvayasi*⁴ dāru dhákṣat 'Consuming the wood, thou runnest like a courser' addressed to Agni. Regarding also the sentence ná dravitā cetati tmán, compare 10, 176, 3: ráttho ná yór abhivṛto ghñivān cetati tmánā that is likewise addressed to Agni.

6, 15, 4: dyutānām vo átithim svārṇaram

agnim hótāraṁ mānuṣaḥ svadhvarám |

⁴ drāvayasi = dravasi here, in the same way as drāvayitnāvah (in 9, 69, 6: sūryasyeva raśmāyo drāvayitnāvah) = dravitnavah.

*vīpraṁ nā dyukṣávacasaṁ suvṛktíbhīr
havyavāham aratīm devām ṛñjase ||*

“I adorn with well-cut (i.e., well-fashioned) hymns your shining guest, the heaven-man, Agni, hotṛ of men, accomplisher of sacrifices, whose speech like that of an inspired seer is bright, the carrier of offerings, the brilliant god”. Regarding the expression suvṛktíbhīr ṛñjase, compare Geldner in Ved. St. 3, p. 32f.

6, 67, 8: *tā jīhvāyā sādāṁ édāṁ sumedhā
ā yád vām satyó aratír ṛté bhūt |
tād vām mahitvām ghṛtānnāv astu
yuvām dāsūṣe ví caviṣṭam āmhah ||*

The import of pādas ab is obscure. I translate, following Oldenberg (RV. Noten I, 413); “The wise one [sc. Agni] (brings) here the two (sc. Mitra and Varuṇa) at all times (and offers food) with his tongue, when (he), the powerful brilliant one, is present at the sacrifice offered to you two. May that be your greatness, O ye two whose food is ghee; you remove distress from the offerer (of sacrifices)”. Compare with this stanza 3, 57, 5: *yā te jīhvā mādhumatī sumedhā ágne devéṣūcyāta urūci |
táyehā víśvāñ ávase yájatrān ā sādāya pāyāyā cā
mādhūni ||*.

8, 19, 1: *tām gūrdhayā svārṇaram devāso devām aratīm dadhanvire |
devatrā havyām óhire ||*

“Praise him, the heaven-man. The gods have run to the brilliant god and made him carry offerings to the gods.” I regard óhire in pāda c as being used with the causative sense with the signification ‘made him carry’.

8, 19, 21: *īḷe girā mánurhitam yām devā dūtām aratīm nyeriré |
yájiṣṭham havyavāhanam ||*

“I magnify with hymn (Agni) the benefactor of men, whom, brilliant, best officiating in sacrifices, the gods set up as messenger and carrier of offerings”.

10, 3, 1 : inó rājann aratīḥ sāmiddho
raúdro dáksāya suṣumāñ adarśi | cikíd ví bhāti bhāsā bṛhatā
'siknīm eti rúsatīm apājan ||

“O king, the chief, radiant, Rudra-like, . . . for skill, being kindled, has been seen. The wise one shines with great splendour, going to the dark one and driving away the bright one”. The word suṣumāñ in pāda b which I have left untranslated, is obscure; see Oldenberg's RV. Noten II, 200 where several conjectural explanations are given of it. We do not know to whom the vocative rājan in pāda a and the words ásiknī and rúsatī in pāda d refer; but it is possible that the latter two words refer to Night and Dawn.

10, 3, 6 : asyá śúṣmāso dadṛśānápaver

“Who, bright, brilliant, most godlike, shines with (his) old gleaming, singing (flames),—the powers of him whose felly is visible, who presses swiftly forwards, rushed onward with teams”.

10, 45, 7 : uśík pāvakó aratīḥ sumedhā

úc chukréṇa śocíṣā dyām inakṣan ||

“The immortal Agni, loving, bright, brilliant, wise, has been established among men. Reaching the sky with bright flame he raises up, carrying, the bright smoke”.

10, 46, 4 : mandráṁ hótāram uśijo námobhiḥ

“Him, bright and radiant, who leads sacrifices rightly, the ruler of sacrifices, the Uśijs, with obeisances, made the dear hotṛ of the clans, establishing him as the carrier of sacrificial offerings among men”.

Āśv. ŚS. 4, 7, 4 : samiddho agnir vṛṣaṇā 'ratir divas
tapto gharma duhyate vām iṣe madhu | vayaṁ hi vām purutamāso aśvinā
havāmahe sadhamādeṣu kāravaḥ ||

“Kindled, O ye two bulls, is Agni the illuminator of Heaven ; the gharma is heated ; honey is milked for your food. O ye Aśvins, we singers, most busy, invoke you in these occasions of rejoicing together”.

This verse occurs in AV (7, 73, 1), with the readings rathī divāḥ and purudāmāso in a and c, and in Śāṅkh. ŚS. (5, 10, 8) with the reading rayir divaḥ in a. It is the opinion of Whitney (AV. Trans. p. 437) that the reading of Āśv. ŚS. is ratir divaḥ and that this, as also the reading of Śāṅkh. ŚS., are corruptions of the AV reading which is correct.

This opinion seems to me to be untenable. The reading vṛṣaṇāratir divaḥ is found in AB. 1, 22, 2 also ; and the occurrence of the expressions divó aratīḥ, ródasyor aratīḥ and diváspr̥thivyór aratīḥ in RV. 7, 5, 1 and other verses explained above shows that one should read aratir divaḥ in this AB passage also, and that this is the original reading. rathī divāḥ and rayir divaḥ in AV and Śāṅkh. ŚS. are therefore without doubt corruptions of the reading aratir divāḥ.

The word aratīḥ occurs, further, in RV. 10, 61, 20 which will be explained in the next article.

dán

This word dán, about whose interpretation there has been much dispute, occurs in but seven verses of the RV. In six of them it is found at the end of the pāda, preceded by the word pátīḥ in four (1, 149, 1 ; 153, 4 ; 10, 99, 6 ; 105, 2), and by patī and sísuh in one each (1, 120, 6 ; 10, 61, 20) ; in the remaining verse (10, 115, 2), it occurs within the pāda.

Sāyana explains the word as śatrūn damayati in one verse, damayan in another and as ādadānaḥ, dadad abhimataṁ prayacchan, dātā, dhanāni prayacchan and yaśṭrūnāṁ dhanadātā in the others. According to him, therefore, there are two words having the form dán, one derived from the root dam and the other from the root dā.¹

Similarly, Roth too (in the PW) believes that there are three words of that form: dán in 10, 61, 20 is, according to him, a verbal form of the root dan, in 10, 115, 2, a shortened form of danta, tooth, and in the other five verses, the genitive of dām, house. In the latter opinion, he is followed by Bartholomae (Ar. For. 1. 70 ff), Grassmann, and Brugmann (Grundriss 1 § 108, 204, 672).²

Pischel criticised this opinion in Ved. St. 2, 93 ff., pointing out that in 1, 120, 6 and 10, 105, 2 addressed respectively to the Aśvins and Indra, the interpretation of dán as 'of the house' hardly fits, since these deities are nowhere in the RV described as 'masters of the house (grhapati)'. He therefore opined that dán denotes 'richtend, bemeisternd' in 10, 105, 2; 99, 6; and 'Ausrichter (des Opfers)' in 10, 115, 2; 1, 153, 4; 149, 1. In 1, 120, 6, dán is, according to him, a verbal form meaning 'herrichtet,' and in 10, 61, 2, too, a verbal form meaning 'ausgerichtet' and having as its subject śísuḥ which is slang for 'penis.'

This opinion of Pischel was, in its turn, criticised by Oldenberg (RV. Noten II, 267) who has observed (1) that the expression śísuḥ dán, in 10, 61, 20 is so similar to pátir dán that it is very questionable if it is to be construed in a different manner, and (2) that since śíśu is a common epithet of Agni and this verse is referring to Agni, it is not proper to give it an unusual signification. He has therefore interpreted pátir dán as 'Herr des Hauses' in op. cit. II, 315, 336 and thus preferred to follow the lead of Roth and Grassmann. So also do Wackernagel who explains dán as 'des Hauses' (Ai. Gr. I, pp. 196, 258) and Macdonell who explains dán as the genitive of dám- (Ved. Gr. pp. 37, 60; see also p. 218 and n. 5 there). Similarly, Geldner too translates pátir dán and patī dán in 1, 140, 1; 153, 1; 120, 6 as 'Hausgebieter', 'Herr dieses Hauses' and 'Hausmeister' in his RV. Ueber.

¹ Ludwig interprets the word mostly as 'zu geben, 'zu spenden', etc. (see Pischel, Ved. St. 2, 93) and thus seems to follow Sāyana in deriving the word from the root dā 'to give'; dán is an infinitive in his opinion. In 1, 120, 6 however he explains the word as 'dass ihr richtet.'

Now, the criticisms urged by Pischel against the interpretation proposed by Roth, and by Oldenberg³ against that proposed by Pischel, are, it seems to me, quite valid. At the same time, it also seems to be beyond dispute that dán in the combination pátir dán and śíśur dán, is the genitive form of a word like dans or dams, as observed by Wackernagel (l. c.). This dans or dams cannot, for the reasons mentioned above, signify 'house'; and I therefore believe that it is identical with the word of that form which is cognate with the words dámsas dámsanā, etc., and is derived from the root dams 'to be strong'. This is the opinion of Pischel also, except that he thinks that the root dams signifies 'zu richten'. Compare his observations in l. c., p. 103: "Es ergiebt sich also, dass dán zu dams gehört, dessen Grund-bedeutung 'richten' ist. . . Zur gleichen Wurzel gehören damśána, damśánā, dámśas 'Meisterschaft', 'Macht', damśánavant 'mächtig', purudámśa, purudámśas, sudámśas 'sehr mächtig', dámśiṣṭha 'sehr mächtig', dámśu 'mächtig' im Sinne von 'gewaltig', 'weit', 'hoch' u. dgl., dámśujāta 'in gewaltiger Eile' (so auch Ved. Stud. 1, 220 zu lesen; sonst weiss ich auch heut keine bessere Erklärung von 1, 122, 10), dasmá und dasrá 'mächtig', 'Meister'."

Compare also his observations on pp. 104-5 in continuation of the above.

In other words, dán in the combination śísur dán and pátir dán, is the genitive form of damś which, like tavás and sáhas, signifies 'strong, powerful, great' and also 'strength, power, greatness.' The epithet śísur dán, in 10, 61, 20 addressed to Agni, thus means 'child of strength' and is synonymous with the epithets sahasah sūnu and sahasas putra that are applied to him in many verses, (see Grassmann, s. v. sahas); and the epithet pátir dán used in 10, 99, 6 and 10, 105, 2 that are both addressed to Indra is similarly synonymous with the epithet śavasas pati that is applied to him in many verses (see Grassmann, s. v. śavas).

I shall now show that this meaning suits the context in all the verses in which the word dán occurs.

1, 120, 6 : śrutám gāyatrám tákavānasyā-

ākṣi śubhas patī dán ||

"Hear the hymn of Takavāna; I have indeed, O Áśvins, sung your praise. O ye lords of splendour, that are great, turn your eyes."

In pāda c, I supply the word adhattam after ā on the analogy of 1, 116, 16: táśmā (sc. ṛjraśvāya) ākṣi nāsatyā vicákṣa ā dhattam dasrá bhiṣajāv anarván and 1, 117, 17: ākṣi ṛjraśve áśvināv adhattam. Sāyaṇa explains tákavānasya in a as skhalad-gatev andhasya Ṛjraśvasya, an explanation which is perhaps correct; ⁴ compare 1, 116, 16 cited above. dán=great, dasrā; compare the many passages in which this epithet or its equivalents dāmsiṣṭhā, purudāmsasā, śacīpatī, śakrā, tuviṣṭamā, etc., are applied to the Aśvins. ākṣī adhattam in c means 'cast your eyes on the dakṣiṇā that is now offered to me'; see Geldner, RV. Ueber., p. 148.

The fighting of Indra and Trita with the dāsa of three heads is referred to in 10, 8, 8-9 also : sá pītryāny āyudhāni vidvān indreṣita

10, 105, 2 : hārī yāsya suyújā vívratā vér
ārvantā 'nu sépā |
ubhā rajī ná keśínā pátir dán ||

The construction of this verse is difficult. Grassmann has translated it as "Du, dessen goldfarbenes Rossepaar schön angeschirrt, auf beiden Seiten vorwärts strebt, laufend längs den beiden Schwänzen des Vogels wie ein Hausherr zwischen den beiden behaarten Linien", Ludwig as "Des falbenpaar leicht angespannt verschiedenen seiten zustrebend anrief der vogel die renner, zwei Raji's gleich die mähnigen, der ist herr zu geben" and Pischel (l. c. p. 95) as "Dessen störrige Falben fromm sind, wenn er, der Herr, die beiden mähnigen Rosse, die wie zwei Ruten steigen, gezügelt hat, sie bemeisternd". I translate as follows: "Whose two bay horses are self-yoking, difficult of control, (these) two swift runners, having like two rajis (long) hair in the tails, the lord of strength drives."

véh=drives, sets in motion; compare 1, 63, 2: ā yád dhārī indra vívratā vér ā te vájraṁ jaritā bāhvōr dhāt; 1, 177, 2: yé te vṛṣaṇo vṛṣabhāsa indra brahmayújo vṛṣarathāso átyāh | tāñ ā tiṣṭha; and 10, 105, 5: ádhi yás tasthaú kēsavantā. suyújā=svayujā, self-yoking; see p. 45 above. Compare also the epithets brahmayújā and *vacoyújā*⁵ applied to Indra's horses in the following verses, 8, 1, 24: ā tvā sahásram ā śatām yuktā ráthe hiraṇyáye | brahmayújo háraya indra keśino váhantu sómapītaye; 8, 17, 2: ā tvā brahmayújā hārī váhatām indra keśinā; 8, 45, 39: ā ta etā vacoyújā hārī gṛbhṇe sumádrathā; 8, 98, 9: yuñjānti hārī iṣirásya gātháyorau rátha urúyuge | indravāhā vacoyújā. vívratā=difficult to control, unruly, refractory, 'widerspenstig' (Roth in PW; Geldner, RV. Ueber., 1, 63, 2), and not 'nach verschiedenen Seiten strebend' (Grassmann). ánu sépā=in the two tails; compare 10, 97, 19: yā óṣadhīḥ sómarājñīr víṣṭhitāḥ pṛthivīm ánu 'the plants, whose king is Soma, that are spread in the earth'; 8, 10, 6: yád antárikṣe pátathaḥ purubhuja yád vemé ródasī ánu 'whether ye fly in the atmosphere (antarikṣa), O ye two that possess much, or in these two worlds, namely, Heaven and Earth"; 1, 80, 1: árcann ánu svarājyam 'may they sing in thy own sovereignty'.

⁵ It seems to me now that it is preferable to interpret vacoyújā and manoyújā āśvā as 'the two horses that are yoked by the hymn or praise recited by the priest'; that is, 'the two horses that yoke themselves to the chariot as soon as the priest recites hymns invoking and praising the deities that are their masters' instead of as 'the two horses that yoke themselves to the chariot as soon as their master thinks of setting forth or expresses in words his intention to set forth' (see p. 46 above and n. 7 there). Compare in this connection 3, 35, 4: bráhmanā te brahmayújā yunaḥmi hārī sákhāyā sadhamāda āśú and 7, 36, 4: girā yá etā yunájad dhārī ta indra priyā suráthā śūra dhāyú.

The meaning of raji is unknown. Grassmann suggests⁶ that it denotes an animal like an antelope or buffalo; and it is clear from the above comparison that it has very long hair. Perhaps, it denotes the camara-mṛga or Tibetan yak which has long silken hair all over the body. With regard to pāda c, compare 8, 1, 25: ā tvā ráthe hiraṇyáye hárī mayúṛaśeṇyā | śitiṇṛṣṭhā vahatām "O Indra, may the two steeds with white backs and tails as long as those of the peacock carry thee in the golden chariot."

Or, should one interpret ánu śépā as 'proceeding from, i.e., beginning with, the two tails'? In this case, the two steeds of Indra would have long hair all over the body like the above-mentioned yak. Compare 3, 45, 1: ā mandraír indra hárībhīr yāhī mayúṛaromabhiḥ 'come, O Indra, with beautiful steeds that have on their bodies hair (long) like the peacock ('s tail).' The sāmānyadharma in the comparison contained in the epithets mayúṛaśeṇyā and mayúṛaromabhiḥ, as in the comparisons contained in many passages of later classical writers, is length. Compare, for instance, Subhāṣitaratnabhāṇḍāgāra, pp 269 f.: asyā manoharākāra-kabarī-bhāra-nirjitāḥ | lajjayeva vane vāsam cakruś camara-barhiṇaḥ; ⁷ asyāḥ sapakṣaika-vidhoḥ kacaughāḥ sthāne mukhasyopari vāsam āpa | pakṣastha-tāvad-bahu-candrako 'pi kalāṇinām yena jitaḥ

Oldenberg (op. cit. II, 325) suggests ^a with hesitation that ānu śépā in b should be emended into tanuśépā and refers in support thereof to the observation of Gunther (Beurteilungslehre des Pferdes, p. 298) that 'edle Hengste haben dünneren und kürzeren Penis, gemeine haben längeren und dickeren.' This is not very convincing, and, for my part, I do not feel that there is any need for emendation.

1, 149, 1: mahāḥ sá rāyá éṣate pátir dán

úpa dhrójantam ádrayo vidhánn ít ||

"This lord of strength advances to great wealth, the mighty one in the abode of mighty wealth. May the stones honour him as he speeds near."

This verse is, according to the Sarvānukramaṇī, addressed to Agni; but, as observed by Geldner (RV. Ueber.), his name is not mentioned in the hymn, and the word ádrayaḥ in v. 1 and sargaḥ and śíśrīta in v. 2 seem to point to Soma as the deity. In either case, pátir dán means 'lord of strength.' Compare 5, 6, 9: utó na út pupūryā ukthéṣu śavasas pata iṣam stotṛbhya ā bhara and 9, 36, 6: ā divás pṛṣṭhām áśvayúr gavyayúḥ soma rohasi | vírayúḥ śavasas pate in which the epithet śavasas pati is applied to Agni and Soma.

1, 153, 4: utá vām vikṣú mádyāsv ándho

“And in clans with plenty of Soma, the cows and divine waters have made the plant to swell. And of this your cow’s milk, drink with relish, O ye (Mitra and Varuṇa)—(and) first, the lord of strength (Agni).”

mádyāsu vikṣú means ‘in clans having plenty of Soma’ in the same way as somyāt sádasah in 1, 182, 8 (asmād adyá sádasah somyād ā) means ‘from a seat rich in Soma’; see Geldner, RV. Ueber., I, pp. 192, 237. According to Geldner (l.c.), the sense of the verse is: “O ye Mitra and Varuṇa, the Soma juice is ready for your drinking in many houses; do ye however rather drink with relish this cow’s milk of ours.” As observed by Sāyaṇa, pátir dán, ‘lord of strength’ in pāda c denotes Agni; see also Pischel, l.c., p. 98.

10, 61, 20: ádhāsu mândró aratír vibhāvā-
va syati dvivartanír vaneṣāt | ūrdhvā yác chrēṇir ná śísur dán
makṣú sthirám śevrdhám sūta mātā ||

Pāda c of this verse is obscure. Roth, in the PW, emends śísuh into śíśnah, while Pischel (op. cit., p. 94) believes that śísuh itself is, like the German ‘der Kleine,’ slang for śísna. According to him, pādas cd are parallel to 5, 7, 8: suṣúr asūta mātā krāṇā yád ānaśé bhāgam and other similar verses and says that the mother gave birth to Agni immediately after copulation.

This explanation does not seem satisfactory to me (see p. 117 above); and I am inclined to believe that the verse as a whole says that Agni grew up as soon as he was born and consumed the plants, and that it is parallel to 7, 4, 2: sá gētso agnís tárūṇaś cid astu yáto yáviṣṭho
ājanīṣṭa mātúḥ | sám yó vānā yuvāte śúcidan bhūri cid ānnā sám íd atti sadyāḥ; 10, 115, 1-2: citrá íc chīśos

*tārunasya vakṣátho ná yó mātárāv apy éti dhātave |
anūdhā yádi jījanad ádhā ca nú vavákṣa sadyó máhi

sám yó vānā yuváte bhásmanā datā | abhipramúrā juhvā svadhvará inó ná próthamāno yāvase vṛṣā* and other similar passages. I therefore translate the verse as follows: "Then the dear (Agni), bright, radiant, two-wayed, ruling over the forest, lets himself loose in these (plants), when (he), the child of strength becomes upright like a straight line; the mother soon gave birth to the strong one, the enhancer of happiness."

Pādas d and c, in which it is said that the mother gave birth to the strong one and that the child of strength became upright like a straight line, that is, grew up and set himself into activity, should be read first; and pādas ab, which describe that Agni let himself loose in the plants (and consumed them) should be read thereafter.

āsu in a refers to óṣadhīṣu; compare 6, 12, 3 (explained above on p. 112): téjīṣṭhā yásyāratír vanerāt todó ádhvan ná vṛdhasānó adyaut . . avartrá óṣadhīṣu which is in many respects parallel to this. dvivartanīḥ in b refers perhaps to the two paths, upward and forwards, which Agni follows in the forest when consuming plants.

(ūrdhvó bhavati) 'becomes upright' in pāda c means 'stands up (does not sit); sets himself into activity; bestirs himself'; compare 4, 4, 5: ūrdhvó bhava prāti vidhyādhya asmát 'get up (bestir thyself) and shoot them away from us' where the expression ūrdhvó bhava is used of Agni in this sense; 5, 1, 2: ūrdhvó agnīḥ sumánāḥ prātár asthāt 'Agni, well-disposed, has put himself into activity in the morning'; 6, 63, 4: ūrdhvó vām agnír adhvaréṣu asthāt and other passages where the word ut-tiṣṭha (= ūrdhvo bhava) is used of Agni. Compare also the expression todó ádhvan ná vṛdhasānūḥ in 6, 12, 3 cited above which too has the same sense.

As already observed above, śísur dán = child of strength.

10, 115, 2: agnír ha nāma dhāyi dánm apástamaḥ
sām yó vānā yuvāte bhásmanā datā | abhipramúrā juhvā svadhvará
inó ná próthamāno yāvase vṛṣā ||

“The strong one, most efficient, named Agni, was established, who consumes woods with pulverising (i. e., destroying) tooth, the accomplisher of sacrifices with (his) growing tongue (i. e., flame), snorting like a great bull in a field of grass.”

After dhāyi in a, we have to understand vikṣú, márteṣu, duroṇé, sádane or other similar word; compare 1, 148, 2-3: nítye cin nú yām sádane jagṛbhré práśastibhir
dadhiré yajñíyāsaḥ | prá sú nayanta gṛbháyanta iṣṭāv
áśvāso ná rathyò rārahāṇāḥ || purúni dasmó ní riṇāti
jāmbhair ād rocate vāna ā vibhāvā | ād asya vāto ánu vāti śocíḥ.

The expression abhipramúrā juhvā in c means, according to Pischel (l.c., p. 98), ‘strengthening ladle’ and according to Oldenberg (op. cit. II, 336), ‘with destroying tongue.’ Compare however 1, 127, 1: yá ūrdhváyā svadhvaró devó devācyā kṛpā ‘the god who, with his upright flame turned towards the gods, accomplishes the sacrifice’ addressed to Agni; the expression ūrdhváyā svadhvaráḥ kṛpā in this verse is exactly parallel to abhipramúrā juhvā svadhvaráḥ in pāda c above. The word abhipramúrā is derived from the root murch ‘to grow, to increase, to become strong,’ as pointed out by Pischel (l.c., p. 112).

I have interpreted dán as ‘strong’ here as I have done in 10, 105, 2 above. Compare the epithet dasmá applied to Agni in 1, 148, 3 cited above and in other passages. It is possible to regard dán here as equivalent to dāme (compare the word sádane in 1, 148, 2 cited above) and to interpret it as ‘in the house.’ There is however no necessity to assume two words of the form dán, and it seems to me preferable to look upon it as a derivative of dams 'strong,' in this verse also.

In the opinion of Pischel (l.c., p. 100), the word dán occurs, further, in the RV in the two following stanzas also:

5, 3, 7: divó ná yásya vidható návīnod
vṛṣā rukṣá óṣadhīṣu nūnot | ghṛṇā ná yó dhrájasā pátmanā yánn
ā ródasī vásunā dām supá!nī ||

According to Pischel, the above word dán occurs in pāda d as dām, and is a verbal form; ā dām=ausrichtete, i.e., ausstattete, and pādas cd mean, 'der wie (der Durstige) in der Hitze im Zug und Flug gehend, Himmel und Erde, die trefflichen Gatten, mit Gut ausstattete.' I do not feel so certain that the word used in this verse is dán; but, granting that Pischel's opinion is right, I would translate the verse as 'Whose (flame), when he worships (the gods), roars like (the thunder) of Heaven, he, the strong bright one, has roared in the plants; going with flying speed like one (seeking shelter) from the heat, the strong one has extended with light Heaven and Earth, the excellent husband and wife.'

In pāda b, the word used is, according to Roth (Ueber gewisse Kürzungen des Wortendes in Veda, p. 3) and Pischel (l.c.), rukṣé which is short for rukṣéṣu and means 'in the trees.' According to the Padapāṭha, however, the word used is rukṣáh which probably means 'bright'; see Grassmann and Oldenberg, RV. Noten, I, 371.

I have followed Pischel in the interpretation of pāda a; but I do not feel certain that this is what the poet had in his mind. Regarding the simile however, compare 7, 3, 6: divó ná te tanyatúr cti śúṣmah and 4, 10, 4: prá te divó ná stanayanti śúṣmāḥ.

The comparison in c is, according to Pischel, concerned with one who, feeling thirsty in the heat, runs to procure some drink to quench his thirst. I am inclined to believe that it concerns one who flies for shelter from the heat; compare 6, 16, 38: úpa chāyām iva ghṛṇer āganma śárma te vayám and 1, 158, 3: úpa vām ávaḥ śaraṇám gameyam śúro nájma patáyadbhir évaiḥ.

In d, I interpret vásu as 'light' and supply after ā the word tatāna on the analogy of 6, 4, 6: ā sūryo ná bhānumádbhir arkaír āgne tatántha ródasī ví bhāsā | citró nayat pári támāmsy aktáḥ śociṣā pátmann ausijó ná dīyan.

The reading dám supátnī is, though not unintelligible, suspicious; for, as I have already observed above, the word páti by itself (i. e., not accompanied by genitives) is not used in the RV as an epithet of any deity; nor are Heaven and Earth described anywhere in the RV as 'excellent husband and wife (treffliche Gaten).' I would therefore emend dám supátnī into dámsupatnī (i.e., dámsu-patnī; compare dámsu-jūtaḥ, rámsu-jihvaḥ) and interpret pāda d as 'he extended Heaven and Earth, lords of greatness, with his light.' dámsupatnī = great lords or lords of greatness; it is the equivalent of the epithet sudámsasā that is applied to Heaven and Earth in 6, 70, 7: úrjam no dyaús ca pṛthivī ca pincatām pitā mātā viśvavidā sudámsasā and 1, 159, 1: devébhir yé deváputre sudámsasā. Roth, too, in the PW, suggests the emendation dámsupatnī; he would however interpret this word as 'einen wunderkräftigen Herrn habend.' Oldenberg (ZDMG. 55, 290) suggests the emendation tán supátnī, tán being a verbal form (= tatāna) of the root tan.

4, 19, 7: *prāgrúvo nabhanvò ná vákrā dhvasrā apinvad yuvatīr ṛtajñāḥ | dhānvāny ájrāñ aprṇak tṛṣāñāñ
ádhog índraḥ staryò dámsupatnīḥ ||*

Here Roth would retain the reading dám̐supatnīḥ and interpret the word as 'whose lord is wonderfully strong'; but against this Pischel (l. c., p. 102) urges that 'sterile women whose lord is wonderfully strong' are, though conceivable, hardly within the realm of probability. He would therefore emend dám̐supatnīḥ into dám̐ supátnīḥ and interpret pada d as 'es melkte Indra die unfruchtbaren (Kühe), er machte die Frauen, die einen tüchtigen Gatten haben, schwanger' d. h. "Indra bewirkt, dass die unfruchtbaren Kühe Milch geben, also fruchtbar werden, und dass die Frauen Kinder bekommen, ein Hauptwunsch des Inders." Here too dám̐ or dán is a verbal form of the root dam̐s 'richten' and means 'er machte schwanger.' The stanza signifies, according to him, "Er füllte an die seichten Flüsse die (dabei) wie Mädchen (bei der Vergewaltigung) schrienen. Wüsten und Gefilde, die dürsteten, tränkte er; Indra schaffte Milch den unfruchtbaren (Kühen), er machte die Ehefrauen schwanger." Geldner translates pāda d⁹ as 'Indra melkte die Gelbkühe die einen tüchtigen Hausgemahl (in ihm) haben' in his RV. Ueber. and therefore looks upon dám̐ as the genitive of dám̐ or dám̐s meaning 'house.' Grassmann translates the pāda as 'Indra molk des Dämon's gelbe Kühe' and Ludwig as 'er gewann milch von den [bisz dahin] unfruchtbaren gattinnen des wunder [tieres].'

Hillebrandt (Lieder des RV., p. 46) translates the stanza as: "Er schwängerte die Mädchen, die wie hervorbrechende Quellen tobten, er schwängerte die jungen, rechtschaffenen Frauen, welche verkummerten. Die dürstenden Triften und Felder sättigte er. Er verschaffte Milch den Unfruchtbaren, die einen wunderkräftigen Gatten hatten," and observes: "Die gewaltige, befruchtende Kraft Indra's wird geschildert. Es wird immer übersehen, dass es sich um eine Steigerung handelt. I. schwängert 1. die agrúvo, die unvermählten, 2. die jungen Frauen, die aber dhvasrá sind, 3. die, die unfruchtbar sind, obwohl sie einen kräftigen Mann haben. Unter dhvasrá sind die zu verstehen, die einen unfruchtbaren oder sie vernachlässigenden Mann haben. Die Bedeutung von dámsu . . ist in dem Zusammenhang ganz klar: trotzdem die Frauen einen sehr kräftigen Gatten haben, bleiben sie unfruchtbar, und Indra hilft."

⁹The other three pādas he has translated as: "Er schwängerte die Unvermählten, die wie die Quellwasser glucksten, er schwängerte die sittsamen jungen Frauen, die schmachtenden. Er tränkte die verdursteten Steppen und Ebenen."

Similarly, it is the opinion of Grassmann and Ludwig (and of Geldner) also that the first two pādas too of the stanza are concerned with Indra's impregnation of maidens, and that nabhanvāḥ in pāda a is the upamāna and not the upameya.

This opinion seems to me to be incorrect; and I believe that the stanza as a whole refers to Indra's release of the Waters or Rivers. For, on the one hand, nowhere else in the RV is Indra described as making maidens or married women fruitful. 6, 44, 21: vṛṣāsi divó vṛṣabhāḥ pṛthivyā vṛṣā síndhūnām vṛṣabhāḥ stīyānām | vṛṣṇe ta índur vṛṣabha pīpāya and other similar verses which describe him as 'bull of the earth, sky,' etc., signify only that Indra is the chief person in the earth, sky, etc., (see Grassmann s. v. vṛṣabha 8) and are parallel in that respect to 1, 59, 2: mūrdhā divó nābhiv agnīḥ pṛthivyāḥ; 8, 44, 16: agnīr mūrdhā divāḥ kakút pátiḥ pṛthivyā ayám and other similar verses that describe Agni as such. And, on the other hand, Indra is described in many RV verses as the liberator of the Waters or Rivers that had been confined by Vṛtra, and as having made it easy for them to flow freely to the sea. Compare the passages cited by Hillebrandt in his Ved. Myth., 3, 174-5; compare also 1, 32, 2: āhann āhim párvate śísriyānām tvāṣṭāsmāi vājraṁ svaṛyām tatakṣa | vāśrā iva dhenávaḥ syāndamānā āñjah samudrām

áva jagmur āpah ; 2, 19, 3 : sá māhina indro arno apām prātrayad ahīhācchā samudrām ; 6, 30, 4 : āhann āhim pariśāyānam arno 'vāsryjo apó ācchā samudrām ; 1, 130, 5 :
 tvām vṛthā nadyā indra sártavé 'cchā samudrām asryjo ráthān iva vājayató ráthān iva ; 6, 17, 12 : ā kṣódo máhi
 vṛtām nadīnām páriṣṭhitam asryja ūrmīm apām | tāsām ānu pravāta indra pānthām prārdayo nīcīr apāsaḥ samudrām. These Waters or Rivers, it is easy to understand, made fruitful all the lands they passed through on their way to the sea. Their water is hence called páyas 'milk,' in the RV, and the rivers themselves are described as overflowing with milk, páyasā pīnvamānāḥ, in 3, 33, 4 : enā vayām páyasā pīnvamānā ānu yónim devákṛtam cārantīḥ . . kimyúr vípro nadyò johavīti and 7, 51, 4 : tā asmābhyam páyasā pīnvamānāḥ śivā devīr aśipadā bhavantu sārva nadyò aśimidā bhavantu and as easy to milk, sudúghāḥ, in 7, 36, 6 : yāḥ suśvāyanta sudúghāḥ sudhārā abhī svēna páyasā pīpyānāḥ. 1, 33, 1 :
 gāveva śubhré mātārā rihāné vipāt chutudrī páyasā javete describes the rivers Vipāś and Śutudri as 'running (overflowing) with milk like two milch-cows (hastening to their calves)'.
 These Waters are described as dāsāpatnīḥ 'wives of the dāsa,' in 1, 32, 11 : dāsāpatnīr āhigopā atiṣṭhan nīruddhā āpah pañīneva gāvaḥ, in 5, 30, 5 : víśvā apó ajayad dāsāpatnīḥ and also in 8, 96, 18 : tvām apó ajayo dāsāpatnīḥ. The dāsa referred to here is Vṛtra, who, in 8, 93, 2 : tām indram vājayāmasi mahé vṛtrāya hāntave is called 'great (strong).' Hence the Waters or Rivers themselves are called vṛṣapatnīḥ and vṛṣṇaḥ pātñīḥ
 'wives of the strong one' in 8, 15, 6 : vṛṣapatnīr apó jayā divé-dive and 5, 42, 12 : vṛṣṇaḥ pātñīr nadyò vibhvataṣṭāḥ ; and in 4, 17, 3 : vādhiḍ vṛtrām vājreṇa mandasānāḥ sārann āpo jávasā hatāvṛṣṇīḥ, the Waters, after the killing of Vṛtra, are called hatāvṛṣṇīḥ 'they whose strong husband had been killed.'

It is these Waters that are referred to as dāmsu-patnīḥ in pāda d of the above verse. I therefore translate the verse as : " He caused to swell the rivers that cried out like maidens, that were covered with dust, youthful, knowers of the law. He filled the thirsty plains and deserts ; Indra milked the sterile wives of the strong one (i. e. made fruit-bearing the wives of the strong one that had been sterile)."

nabhanvāḥ in a signifies 'rivers' as stated in the Nighaṇṭu, and denotes the Rivers that were liberated by Indra. I follow Pischel (l.c.) in looking upon nabhanvāḥ as the upameya and agrúvaḥ as the upamāna. Regarding the separation of the particle ná from agrúvaḥ, compare Pischel's observation in Ved. St., 1, 6 : "ná steht auch sonst zuweilen nicht direkt hinter dem Worte, zu dem es gehört. So z. B. 5, 36, 2 : rúhat sómo ná párvatasya pr̥sthé für rúhat sómaḥ pr̥sthé ná párvatasya. Auch hier war das Metrum die Ursache der Umstellung."

The epithets dhvasrāḥ, yuvatīḥ and ṛtajñāḥ should be construed with both nabhanvāḥ and agrúvaḥ. dhvasrá,¹⁰ I conceive, is a synonym of the cognate word dlūsara 'dusty, covered with dust ;' and dhvasrāḥ denotes, in the case of the Rivers, that they are dusty, i.e., that their beds have little or no water and are for the most part covered with dust, i. e., that the rivers are dried up, and in the case of the agrúvaḥ, that they are rajasvalāḥ (and therefore fit for impregnation.) ṛtajñāḥ denotes, in the case of the agrúvaḥ, that they knew the *ṛtu*¹¹ or proper time for intercourse (see in this connection R. Schmidt's Beiträge zur indischen Erotik,² p. 285f., 295f.), and, in the case of the Rivers, that they knew that, after the death of their husband Vṛtra, they have become the property (wives) of his conqueror Indra.

¹⁰ Roth, in the PW, explains this word as spritzend, stiebend ; ausstreugend so v. a. freigebig ; so also does Grassmann. Pischel, in Ved. St., 2, 102, explains it as 'finster,' 'verstimmt' 'missmutig,' 'gloomy' (but, as epithet of the Rivers, he interprets it as 'wasserlos,' 'seicht'). As we have seen above, Geldner interprets it as 'languishing' and Hillebrandt as 'a woman that (is sterile or has a husband who neglects her and) is pining away.'

¹¹ Compare 1, 164, 8 : mātā pitāram ṛtā ā babhāja where too the word ṛtā seems to be used in the sense of ṛtu.

adhog 'milked,' in d, signifies that Indra made the Waters (Rivers) bear fruit, that is, that he released them so that they may quench the thirst of the plains and make the land fruitful. Compare in this connection the words dhānṡāny ājṛāñ aprṇak tṛṣānān of pāda c and pāda b of AV. 6, 22, 3 that is cited below; compare also what has been said above about pāyas. The Waters (Rivers) are called staryāḥ because, when confined by Vṛtra, they were pent up in the mountains and could not reach the plains and make them fruitful.

Regarding the simile agrúvo ná vákvāḥ, compare pāda c of TS. 3, 1, 11, 7-8: udaprúto marutas tāñ iyarta vṛṣṭim yé víśve marúto junānti | krósāti gárdā kanyèva tunnā pérum tuñjānā pátyeva jāyā and AV. 6, 22, 8: udaprúto marútas tāñ iyarta vṛṣṭir yā víśvā nivátas prṇāti | éjāti glāhā kanyèva tunnā érum tundānā pátyeva jāyā. The latter stanza is plainly corrupt (see Whitney, AV. Trans.) while the meaning of the former too is not clear. There is no doubt however that in both verses the Maruts are entreated to send down rain; that is to say, the situation is much the same as that referred to in RV 4, 19, 7. According to pāda c of the TS verse,¹² this rain 'roars, i. e., cries, like a . . . maiden that is pricked'; and the expression krósāti kanyèva tunnā in it is exactly equivalent to the expression agrúvo ná vákvāḥ of the RV verse.

The word dāmsu that is employed in this verse (4, 19, 7) and, in my opinion, in 6, 3, 7 also explained above, is derived from the above-mentioned root dāms 'to be strong' by the addition of the suffix su; compare dakṣu from dah 'to burn' and makṣu from mah 'to be great (strong, vigorous, etc.)'. It is explained variously by Sāyaṇa as dāntair aśvaiḥ (in 1, 122, 10), danteṣu madhye (in 1, 141, 4) and as damseṣu karmavatsu | yad vā gr̥hanā-maitat | antya-lopaś chāndasaḥ | gr̥havad ācchādakeṣu . . yad vā damsu yāga-gr̥heṣu devayajaneṣu (in 1, 134, 4). Roth and Grassmann interpret it as 'wunderkräftig, auf wunderbare Weise, erstaunlich,' while Geldner, in his RV. Ueber. (I, 170, 179) has declared that the word is obscure and that the meaning 'in the house' does not suit. Pischel, in Ved. St., 2, 103, has explained this word as 'mächtig,' i. e., mighty, great, powerful; and there is no doubt that this interpretation is correct, for, as observed above, it is derived from the root damś 'to be strong.' The word therefore signifies primarily 'strong, great, mighty, powerful,' and secondarily, 'swift, quick, rapid.' Regarding the transition of meaning, compare Ved. St., 1, 16; 96f.; compare also the above-cited word makṣú which signifies primarily 'great, powerful' and secondarily (and most frequently) 'quick, swift, rapid.'

dāmsu seems, like makṣú, to be an indeclinable, and occurs in the following three verses also of the RV :

1, 122, 10 : sā vrādhato náhuṣo dāmsujūtaḥ
śārdhastaro narām gūrtáśravāḥ | visṛṣṭarātir yāti bālhasṛtvā
viśvāsu pṛtsú sādām íc chūrah ||

"He is more swiftly-speeding, stronger, than the powerful Nahus; his fame is praised by men. Giving away gifts, he, the swift-goer, goes in all fights, always a hero." dāmsujūtaḥ = swiftly-speeding or 'in gewaltiger Eile' (Pischel; Ved. St., 2, 103); it is an equivalent of the word bālhasṛtvā that occurs in pāda c, and means 'irresistible; difficult to check.' sāḥ in a refers to the person who worships Mitra and Varuṇa who are the deities of this verse (see Sāyaṇa's commentary); and dāmsujūtaḥ even without the suffix tara, seems to have the meaning of a comparative here. Or, should we construe the suffix tara of śardhastara with dāmsujūta also?

Geldner, in RV. Ueber., I, 353, has pointed out the similarity of 6, 24, 8: ná vīḷāve námate ná sthirāya ná śárdhate dásyujūtāya stavān | ájra índrasya giráyaś cid ṛṣvā gambhiré cid bhavati gāthām asmai with this verse. The words dāmsujūta and dásyujūta in these two verses seem clearly to be parallel to each other. Similarly, as we have observed above, the word dāmsupatnīḥ in 4, 19, 7 is parallel to the word dāsápatnīḥ in 1, 32, 11. Is it possible then that the words dāsa and dasyu are derived from the same root damś 'to be strong' from which dāmsu is derived, with loss of the nasal as in the cognate words dasma and dasra?

1, 134, 4: *túbhyam uṣāsaḥ śúcayaḥ parāvāti

"For thee [O Vāyu], the bright Dawns weave beautiful garments (i.e., make beautiful ornaments) in the swift rays, marvellous (garments) in the new rays For thee does the milch-cow Sabardughā milk all riches. Thou hast engendered the Maruts from the wombs, from the wombs of Heaven." Regarding the epithet dāmsu 'swift' applied to raśmīṣu, compare 1, 63, 1: giráyaḥ . . . bhiyā dṛḷhāsaḥ kirāṇā naíjan 'the firm mountains through fear, moved (as swiftly) as rays,' and 9, 69, 6: sūryasyeva raśmāyo drāvayitnāvah 'speeding swiftly like the rays of the sun.' Or, should we interpret dāmsu raśmīṣu as 'bright rays?' Regarding the transition of meaning from 'strong, swift' to 'bright,' see Ved. St., 1, 96f.

Sabardughā (literally, 'Amṛta-milker' according to Sāyaṇa) is a cow that milks all desired things and is therefore a prototype of the Kāmadhenu of the later Purāṇas and Epics.

1, 141, 4: prá yát pitúḥ paramān nīyāte páry

“When he (sc. Agni) is brought down from the highest father, he quickly climbs the . . plants. When the two promote his birth, he, the youngest, glowed with heat.”

‘The highest father,’ mentioned in a is perhaps Dyaus or Heaven; see Geldner’s RV. Ueber., I, 179. pra+nī however is a technical term used in the Śrauta-sūtras for the transportation of fire from the Āhavanīya-hearth to the Uttaravedi (see Caland-Henry, L’Agni-ṣṭoma, p. 78); and hence Sāyaṇa understands paramāt pitúḥ as referring to this Āhavanīya fire which thereafter comes to be known as the Gārhapatya fire. prkṣúdhaḥ is a hap. leg. whose meaning is not known; it signifies perhaps ‘strength-giving’. The ‘two’ mentioned in pāda c are, in all probability, the two araṇis. dāmsu = vigorously, swiftly; and dāmsu ā rohati refers perhaps to the rapid spread of Agni when consuming the plants; compare in this connection the expression avartrā óṣadhīṣu in 6, 12, 3 explained above (p. 112).

pṛthak

This is a word well-known in later literature where it has the meaning nānā, ‘diversely, variously, separately, individually, in different ways’; and it has been assumed by the commentators, Indian as well as European, that this is the meaning in the Veda also. This assumption is indeed correct as regards 1, 131, 2; 1, 157, 1, and some other verses; but it is otherwise with regard to 10, 91, 7: vātōpadhūta iṣitō vāsān ānu tṛṣu yád ānuā vēviṣad vītiṣṭhase | ā te yatante rathyò yáthā pṛthak śárdhamśy

agne ajāraṇi dhākṣataḥ; 9, 86, 2: prá te mādāso mādīrāsa āśāvó ' sṛkṣata ráthyāso yáthā pr̥thak | dhenúr ná vatsám páyasābhī vajrīṇam índram índavo mādhumanta ūrmāyaḥ; and 10, 142, 4: yád udvāto nivāto yāsi bāpsat pr̥thag eṣi pragardhíniva sēnā | yadā te vāto anuvāti śócīr vāpteva śmāśru vapasi prá bhūma all which verses contain similes with pr̥thak as the tertium comparationis. In 10, 142, 4 it is said that Agni goes, pr̥thak, like a swift missile; in 10, 91, 7, that the flames of Agni press forward, pr̥thak, like the horses of a chariot; and in 9, 86, 2, that the swift gladdening streams of Soma rush forward, pr̥thak, like the horses of a chariot. It is obvious that the meaning 'diversely, variously, separately, in different ways', is inappropriate here; for the horses of a chariot can not be said to press forward 'diversely' or 'in different ways.' On the contrary, it is their community of action and community of goal that is the point of comparison elsewhere in the RV. Compare, for instance, 3, 33, 2: ácchā samudráṁ rathyēva yāthaḥ 'you, Vipāt and Śutudri, go to the sea (together) like the two horses of a chariot' (comp. anyā vām anyām ápy eti śubhre in the same verse and samānám yónim ánu samcārantī in the next verse); 2, 39, 3: arvāñcā yātāṁ rathyēva śakrā 'come, O ye two mighty (Aśvins) towards us (together) like the two horses of a chariot' (comp. 10, 106, 1: sadhricīnā yātave prēm ajīgaḥ); and 3, 36, 6: āpaḥ samudráṁ rathyēva jagmuḥ 'the waters went (together) to the sea like the two horses of a chariot' (comp. 5, 60, 3: āpa iva sadhryāñco dhavadhve). Compare also the epithet sahavāhaḥ, drawing together, used of the horses which draw the chariot of Bṛhaspati in 7, 97, 6: tām śagmāso aruṣāso áśvā býhaspátim sahavāho vahanti | sāhaś cid yásya niḷavat sadhástham nábhō ná rūpām aruṣām vásānāḥ. pr̥thak therefore cannot mean 'diversely,' 'variously,' 'separately,' 'in different ways,' here; it must have some other signification that can yield good sense in these passages.

What this other signification is, can be determined from these passages themselves. As we have seen, prthag-gamana is a common characteristic of Agni, of Agni's flames, of the horses of a chariot, and of a swift missile—that is, of a weapon that has been hurled against the foe. If we find out therefore from other passages of the RV an answer to the question 'What attribute is it that is characteristic of the movement of the above-named things?', we shall in all likelihood have found out the meaning of prthak in these passages.

The answer to the above question is not difficult to find; for, the only attribute that characterises commonly the movement of Agni, Agni's flames, etc., is 'swiftness,' 'rapidity,' 'quickness,' 'impetuousness,' etc. Compare respectively the following passages: (a) 3, 26, 2: tām śubhrām agnīm āvase havāmahe . . . ātithim raghuśyādam 'we invoke him for protection, Agni, the bright, the swift-moving, the guest'; 10, 6, 4: devān ācchā raghupátvā jigāti 'he (Agni), the swift-mover, goes to the gods'; 1, 140, 9: tuvigrébhiḥ sātvaabhir yāti ví jrāyaḥ 'he moves swiftly with his much-devouring flames'; 1, 79, 1: āhir dhúnir vāta iva dhrājīmān '(Agni) swift (like) Ahi, flying like the wind'; 4, 4, 4: prāti spāso ví syja túrṇitamah 'send forth thy spies, (O Agni,) thou that art the swiftest'; (b) 4, 4, 2: tāva bhramāsa āśuyā patanti 'thy flames go swiftly'; 6, 66, 10: trṣu-cyāvaso juhvò nāgnéḥ 'moving swiftly like the tongues (i.e., flames) of Agni'; 9, 22, 2: agnér iva bhramā vṛthā 'impetuous like the flames of Agni'; 4, 6, 10: tveṣāso agne arcāyaś cāranti śyenāso ná duvasānāso ártham 'thy bright flames, O Agni, move (swiftly) like hawks coursing to their goal'; 4, 6, 5: drāvanty asya vājīno ná sókāḥ 'his flames run like racing horses'; (c) 1, 148, 3: āśvāso ná rathyò rārahānāḥ 'coursing like the horses of a chariot'; 10, 119, 3: ún mā pītā ayaṁsata rátham āśvā ivāśavaḥ 'the streams (of Soma) drunk (by me) have roused me (as quickly) as swift horses (draw) a chariot'

(cf. preceding verse, prá vātā iva dódhata ún mā pitā ayam̐sata); 4, 1, 3: sákhe sákhāyam abhy ā vavṛtsvāśúm ná cakráṁ ráthyeva rámhya 'carry the friend to us, O friend, with speed, as the two horses of a chariot roll the swift wheel'; 2, 4, 6: vār ná pathā ráthyeva svānīt 'who, (Agni,) rushed forth (as swiftly) as water on its path, as the two horses of a chariot'; (d) 9, 69, 6: sūryasyeva raśmāyo drāvayitnāvo matsarāsaḥ prasúpaḥ sākám īrate 'the torpid (?), intoxicating (streams of Soma) move together, swift like the rays of the sun'; 9, 69, 7: sīndhor iva pravaṇé nimná āśávo vṛṣacyutā mādāso gātúm āśata 'the streams of Soma, falling from (the hands of) the priest proceed on their way, swift like the currents of a river down an incline'; 9, 86, 1: prá ta āśávaḥ pavamāna dhījāvo mādā arṣanti raghujā iva tmānā 'thy swift, thought-inspiring, intoxicating streams, O Pavamāna, rush forward of themselves like horses born of fleet (sires and dams)'; 1, 5, 7: ā tvā viśantv āśávaḥ sómāsa indra girvaṇaḥ 'let the swift streams of Soma enter into you, O Indra fond of praise'; 9, 22, 1: etē sómāsa āśávo ráthā iva prá vājīnaḥ | sárgāḥ sṛṣṭā aheṣata 'these swift streams of Soma have moved (as swiftly) as racing chariots, (as) horses unloosed'; (c) 1, 143, 5: ná yó vārāya marútām iva svanáḥ séneva sṛṣṭā dívyā yáthāśániḥ 'that, like the rush of the Maruts, like a missile sent on its way, like the thunderbolt of heaven, can not be stopped'; 6, 6, 5: ádha jihvā pāpatīti prá vṛṣṇo goṣuyúdho náśániḥ sṛjānā 'then speeds the flame of the bul (sc. Agni) like the missile hurled by the fighter for cows'; 1, 116, 1: yāv úrbhagāya vimádāya jāyām senājúvā nyūhātū ráthena 'who (two) brought a wife to the young Vimada in a chariot that is as swift as a missile.'

pr̥thak therefore signifies in 10, 91, 7 and similar verses 'swiftly', 'rapidly', 'quickly,' 'impetuously,' etc., a meaning which suits the context. It has this meaning in the following passages:

2, 17, 3 : *ádihākṛnoḥ prathamám vīryám mahád yád asyāgre bráhmanā śúṣmam áirayaḥ | ratheṣṭhēna háryaśvena vícyutāḥ
prá jīráyaḥ sisrate sadhryàk pṛthak ||*

“ Then didst thou, (O Bṛhaspati) perform (thy) first valiant deed when thou, before this (Indra), didst shatter the powerful (Vala) with thy spell. The swift (Waters) released by (Indra), who was in his chariot (and) who has tawny horses, rush forward together impetuously.”

There are some difficulties in the first half of this verse. The release of the Waters mentioned in the second half-verse indicates that the valiant deed (mahád vīryám) of the first half-verse refers to the overthrow of the demon that had imprisoned them; compare 2, 22, 1 : sá im mamāda máhi kárma kártave mahām urúm sainam saścad devó devám satyám indram satyá induḥ; 2, 24, 14 : bráhmanas páter abhavad yathāvaśám satyó manyúr máhi kármā kariṣyatáḥ where also the phrase máhi kárma refers to such overthrow; cf. also 3, 33, 7 : pravācyam śasvadhá vīryám tát indrasya kárma yád áhim vicṛśát | ví vájreṇa pariśádo jaghānáyan āpóyanam icchámānāḥ. I therefore take śúṣma as referring to the demon that imprisoned the Waters, and áirayaḥ in the sense of shattering, destroying—a sense which the word has in the preceding verse but one, víśvā yád gotrá sāhasā párvīrṭā máde sómasya dṛmhitāny áirayat. The mention of bráhman as the instrument used for shattering shows (comp. 2, 24, 3 úd gá ājad ábhinaḍ bráhmanā valám) that the first half-verse is addressed to Bṛhaspati who is known as brahmanas pati or ‘lord of spells.’ It is indeed possible to interpret, as Oldenberg has in fact done (RV. Noten I, p. 201), the first half-verse also as being addressed to Indra. But this seems to me however to be a somewhat forced interpretation, and I prefer to regard this verse as belonging to the type of verses (cf. 1, 62, 4) whose two halves refer to Indra and Bṛhaspati respectively, and to interpret it as above.

The word asya in the second pāda seems to refer to Indra and the words asya agre to be equivalent to asya puroh. Br̥haspati is, as we know from 2, 24, 9 and the Yajus texts (T.S. 6, 4, 10 ; MS. 4, 6, 3 ; KS. 27, 8) the purohita of the gods (devāḥ) and therefore of their chief, Indra, also. Now, the chief function of the king's purohita is, as laid down by Indian writers, the removal, by means of magical spells, of all evils whether caused by human or by extrahuman agency. These writers therefore lay particular stress on the necessity of having as purohita one that is well-versed in Atharvanic spells ; see, for instance, Kauṭilya's Arthaśāstra 1, 8, 5 (p. 15): purohitam uditoditakulaśīlam ṣaḍaṅge vede daive nimitte daṇḍanītyām ca abhivinītam, āpadām daivamānuṣiṇām atharvabhir upāyais ca pratikartāram kurvīta ; Mahābhārata 12, 73, 30-31 : bhārgavāṅgirasām vede kṛta vidyāḥ ṣaḍaṅgavit || yajñakarmavidhijñas tu vidhijñah paustikeṣu ca | aṣṭādaśavikalpānām vidhijñah śāntikarmaṇām || sarvarogavihīnaś ca saṁyutaḥ saṁyatendriyaḥ | (purohitaḥ kāryaḥ) ; Yājñavalkyasmṛti 1, 313 : purohitam prakurvīta daivajñam uditoditam | daṇḍanītyām ca kuśalam atharvāṅgirase tathā ; see also ch. II of the Br̥hatsamhitā. An efficient purohita therefore was able to destroy all evils and enemies that threatened the king ; compare the following śloka : ¹ upapannam nanu śivam saptaśv aṅgeṣu yasya me | daivīnām mānuṣiṇām ca pratikartā tvam āpadām ||60|| tava mantrakṛto mantrair dūrāt praśamitāribhiḥ | pratyādiśyanta iva me dṛṣṭalakṣyabhidaḥ śarāḥ addressed by king Dilīpa to his purohita Vasiṣṭha in the Raghuvamśa (I. 60, 61). In the light of these passages we can now understand better the role played by Br̥haspati in the incidents referred to by the RV. The

athātharvanidhes tasya vijitāriṣuraḥ puroh | arthyām arthapatir vācam ādade vadatām varaḥ ||59||

Note also the close agreement in word as well as in meaning of these verses with the passage from Kauṭilya given above.

chant or shout (arka, brahman, rava, virava, kranda, stanita, etc.) with which he destroyed the demon and set free the cows and waters (see Bergaigne I, 302 ; Boyer, J.A., 1906, I, p. 401ff.) represents the magical spell or mantra which he, as purohita, used in favour of his patron Indra against his foes. His comparison too, with a 'lion roaring in his den' in 10, 67, 9 (siṃhām iva nānadatam sadhāsthe) is one that is pregnant with meaning. The lion, it is believed, kills other animals by its mere roar ; compare the Jātaka stories No. 152² and 241³ and the following sentences in Müller's translation of the first six stories of the Piṣācaprakaraṇam which is without doubt derived from an Indian original (ZDMG., 48, pp. 198 ff.) :

and as a purohita performs his sāntika, pauṣṭika and ābhicārika ceremonies in his yāgaśālā, and as the mantras used therein kill the enemies even though they be afar, the comparison of these mantras with the roar of a lion, and of the purohita Bṛhaspati with a lion roaring in his den is singularly felicitous. Another figure of speech compares these rites and ceremonies which he performs to a ratha or war-chariot, in 2, 23, 3, which represents Bṛhaspati as mounted on the chariot of rite (ṛtasya ratham) which destroys enemies, slays demons, shatters the stony enclosure imprisoning the cows and wins the light.

Sāyaṇa, who as usual takes pr̥thak to mean 'in different ways,' has ingeniously attempted to explain away the consequent contradiction here between sadhryāk and pr̥thak by saying that the 'going in different ways' was caused by fear—vic̥yutāḥ svasthānāc cyāvitāḥ santaḥ sadhryāk sadhr̥cīnāḥ parasparasam̐gatāḥ pr̥thak bhītyā viyuktāḥ santaḥ prasisrate prakarṣeṇa dhāvanti. It is however the nature of Waters to flow together; compare 4, 47, 2: yuvām̐ hí yāntīndavo nimnām̐ āpo ná sadhryāk; and 5, 60, 3: āpa iva sadhryāñco dhavadhve; and the Waters (or Rivers) released by Indra are in many places said to have moved swiftly forward; cf. 1, 32, 2: vāśrā iva dhenāvah̐ syāndamānā āñjah̐ samudrām̐ āva jagmur̐ āpah̐ 'running, like lowing cows (to their calves), the waters went straight to the sea'; 1, 130, 5: tvām̐ vṛthā nadyā indra sártavé 'cchā samudrām̐ as̐jo ráthāñ iva vājayatō ráthāñ iva 'thou hast released the rivers, O Indra, to run to the sea impetuously like chariots, like racing chariots'; 2, 15, 3: vājreṇa khāny atr̥ṇan nadīnām̐ | vṛthāsr̥jat pathíbhīr dīrghayāthaiḥ 'with the Vajra he bored openings for the rivers and let them loose (to flow) in long-extended paths'; 4, 17, 3: vádhiḍ vṛtrām̐ vājreṇa mandasānāḥ sárann̐ āpo jávasā hatávr̥ṣṇiḥ 'exulting he killed Vṛtra with the Vajra: the waters, whose lord was killed, rushed forth swiftly'; and specially, 10, 111, 9-10: sr̥jāḥ síndhūñr̐ áhinā jagrasnāñ ād̐ íd̐ etāḥ prá vic̥ijre javéna | m̐mukṣamāñā utá yā m̐mucré 'dhéd̐ etā ná ramante n̐tiktāḥ | sadhr̥cīḥ síndhum̐ usatīr̐ ivāyan 'thou didst deliver the Rivers swallowed by the dragon and these sped forth swiftly—those desiring to be free as well as those that were freed; the swift ones do not stop; like loving (wives) they went to the sea together.' It should be noted that both the ideas of 'going together' and 'going swiftly' are given expression to in this last-quoted passage.

8, 100, 7 : prá nūnám dhāvatā pṛthan

ní ṣīm vṛtrasya mārmani

"Run forth now swiftly; he is not now who had detained you. Indra has hit Vṛtra in his vital parts with the Vajra." This is, as is evident, an address to the Waters.

3, 56, 4 : abhīka āsām padavīr abodhy

The meaning of this verse is not quite clear; I translate tentatively: "Their leader became known in the fight; I have invoked the sweet name of the Ādityas. Even the immortal Waters stopped for him; moving swiftly, they left (him)." With regard to the third pāda, compare 2, 30, 1 : indrāyāhighné ná ramanta āpaḥ. The fourth pāda seems to refer to the same situation as 7, 21, 3 : tvām indra srāvitavā apāḥ kaḥ páriṣṭhitā áhinā sūra pūrvīḥ | tvád vāvakre rathyò ná dhénā réjante víśvā kṛtrímāṇi bhīṣā and 4, 22, 6 : ádhāha tvád vṛṣamaṇo bhiyānāḥ prá súdhavo jávasā cakramanta.

2, 24, 14 : bráhmanas páter abhavad yathāvasām

"The powerful spell of Brahmanaspati who was engaged in a great work had its own way (i.e., acted as desired); (he) who drove forth the cows gave it to heaven; (the herd of cows) like a great current went forward impetuously with strong force." 'The great work' refers, as I have said above, to the overthrowing of the demon that has imprisoned the waters and cows. The iva in the fourth pada, though apparently an upama-vācaka, seems really to be used in the sense of ca, that is, as a samuccaya-vācaka with the force of 'and'; for Brhaspati sets free, not only cows, but the waters also. Compare 2, 23, 18: tāva śrīyē vy àjihita párvato gávām gotrām úd asṛjo yád aṅgiraḥ | indreṇa yujā tāmāsā párvīṣtam bṛhaspate nír apām aubjo arṇarām; see also 6, 73, 3; 2, 24, 73-4.

9, 86, 2: prá te mādāso madirāsa āśāvo'

"Thy swift, gladdening streams (O Soma), ran forth impetuously like the horses of a chariot. The sweet-bearing streams (have run) towards Indra, the Vajra-bearer, as a cow with milk runs to its calf."

10, 44, 6: pṛthak prāyan prathamā deváhūtayó
'kṛṇvata śravasyāni duṣṭārā |

This verse is somewhat obscure. I translate, following Yāska (Nirukta, 5, 25, 1): "The first invokers of the gods sped forth swiftly and performed famous (deeds) difficult to surpass; the wicked people who were unable to get upon the ship of sacrifice, stayed here only."

"When thou, O Agni, being fanned by the wind, extendest thyself rapidly, following thy desires, and reachest forth eagerly after food, the unaging flames of thee, that art burning, move forward swiftly like the horses of a chariot."

“When thou goest, devouring, over ups and downs, thou movest as quickly as a swift missile. When the wind is blowing behind thy flame, thou shavest the earth as a barber the moustache.” pragardhínī (meaning, literally, ‘greedy’)= swift here; compare the similar use of the words gṛdhnú and gṛdhyantam in 1, 70, 11 : sādhúr ná gṛdhnúḥ ‘swift like an excellent (horse)’ and 4, 38, 5 : padbhír gṛdhyantam medhayúm ná śūvam ‘speeding with a will, like a valiant soldier in battle’. Regarding the transition of meaning from ‘greedy’ to ‘swift,’ compare the analogous words tṛṣú ‘thirsty, swift’ and tātṛṣāná ‘thirsting, swift-moving’ in 6, 66, 10 cited above and 2, 4, 6 : ā yó vānā tātṛṣānó ná bhāti vār ná pathā ráthyeva svānīt. Compare also in this connection 1, 143, 5 and other verses cited above (p. 139) about the swiftness of the missile and the expressions ‘swift as an arrow; quick as a dart; pfeil-schnell’ and other similar ones in English and German.

“In the fire, in the sun, in the moon, in Mātariśvan, in the waters, the Vedic student puts fuel. Their gleams go quickly to the cloud; their sacrificial butter is man, rain, waters." Compare Manusmṛti III, 76: agnau prāstāhutīḥ samyag ādityam upatiṣṭhate | adityaḥ jāyate vṛṣṭir vṛṣter annam tataḥ prajāḥ.

AV. 7, 45, 2: agnér ivāsyā dāhato dāvāsya dāhataḥ pr̥thak | etām etāsyaerṣyām udnāgnīm iva śamaya ||

"Extinguish, as (one does) fire with water, this man's jealousy which is burning impetuously (i.e., fiercely) like fire, like forest-fire."

AV. 4, 15, 2: sām ikṣayantu taviṣāḥ sudānava
'pām rāsā ōṣadhībhiḥ sacantām |
varṣāsya sārḡ mahayantu bhūmim
pr̥thag jāyantām ōṣadhayo viśvārūpāḥ ||

"Let the strong liberal ones (sc. the Maruts) cause to behold together; let the juices of the waters attach themselves to the herbs; let downpours of rain glorify the earth; let herbs of all forms be born quickly."

AV. 4, 15, 3: sām ikṣayasva gāyato nābhāmsy
apām vėgāsaḥ pr̥thag úd vijantām |
varṣāsya sārḡ mahayantu bhūmim
pr̥thag jāyantām ōṣadhayo viśvārūpāḥ ||

"Do thou make the singers behold the clouds together; let the swift streams of water rush out rapidly; let downpours of rain glorify the earth; let herbs of all forms be born quickly."

Whitney in his Translation (p. 172) renders pr̥thak in these passages as 'here and there;' and gives a note, after verse 4, that "pr̥thak, lit. 'severally, separately' is used in these verses rather in the sense of 'all about, everywhere'." It seems to me that it is preferable to accept here (for verses 2 and 3) the meaning, 'quickly, rapidly' established for pr̥thak above, and that this makes it unnecessary to suggest a third meaning, 'all about, everywhere,' for it. With regard to verse 4, the meaning nānā, 'severally,' may be considered to suit well here and also in AV. 3, 19, 6 and 5, 20, 7, where, too, the words pr̥thak and ghoṣa (in 5, 20, 7 its synonym dhvanayah) occur. A better sense, however, is yielded by these passages if we interpret pr̥thak here as 'strong', a meaning which is a development from that of 'rapid, quick, impetuous'; see Vedische Studien I, p. 47 and 97 for numerous examples of such development. I would therefore translate these verses as follows:

AV. 4, 15, 4: gaṇās tvópa gāyantu mārutāḥ
parjanya ghoṣīṇaḥ pr̥thak | sārgā varṣāsya vārṣato
vārṣantu pr̥thivīm ānu ||

"Let the troops of Maruts that shout strongly sing to thee, O Parjanya; let gushes of raining rain rain along the earth." Shouting strongly is a characteristic of the Maruts that is frequently mentioned in the RV; compare for instance 1, 64, 8: simhā iva nānadati prācetasah; 1, 85, 2: ārcanto arkām janāyanta indriyām ādhi śrīyo dadhire p̥śnimātarah; 5, 54, 12: svāranti ghóṣam vītatam ṛtāyāvah; compare also, 1, 169, 7; 3, 26, 5, and Bergaigne II, 373.

AV. 3, 19, 6: úd dhārṣantām maghavan vājināny
úd vīrāṇām jāyatām etu ghóṣah | pr̥thag ghóṣā ululāyah
ketumānta úd īratām |
devā índraṇyesthā marúto yantu sénayā ||

"Let their energies be excited, O bounteous one; let the shout of the conquering heroes arise; let strong shouts and clear jubilant cries go up; let the divine Maruts with Indra as chief go with the army." To pr̥thag ghóṣah in this verse corresponds dyumān ghóṣah in 10, 84, 4: dyumāntām ghóṣam vijayāya kṛṇmahe.

AV. 5, 20, 7: antarémé nábhasī ghóṣo astu pr̥thak te dhvánayo yantu śibham !
abhī kranda stanáyotpīpānah
ślokaḥṇ mitratúryāya swardhī ||

“Let there be noise between these two firmaments ; let thy sounds go swift and strong ; roar (at them), thunder, truculent, resounding unto the victory of our friends, a good partizan.” The last half-verse is unintelligible to me and I have therefore repeated here the translation of Whitney.

pṛthak has the sense of nānā in the other RV passages where it occurs, namely, in 1, 131, 2 ; 1, 157, 1 ; 8, 43, 18 and 8, 43, 29.

1, 131, 2 : viśveṣu hī tvā sāvaneṣu tuñjāte samānām ékaṁ vṛṣamanyavaḥ pṛthak
svàḥ sāniṣyavaḥ pṛthak | tām tvā nāvam ná parśānim
śūśāsya dhurī dhīmahi |
indram ná yajñaiś citáyanta āyávaḥ
stómebhir indram āyávaḥ ||

“(They) call urgently to thee in all Soma-libations— thee that art one and common, the people with excellent hymns (of praise), desiring to attain light, (call upon) separately. We people, glorifying Indra with praises as with sacrifices, place at the head of the strong (hymn), thee, that, like a ship, carriest us across.”

1, 157, 1 : ábodhy agnir jímá úd eti sūryo
vy ūśāś candrā mahy àvo arcíṣā | áyukṣātām aśvínā yātave rálham
prāsāvid deváḥ savitā jágat pṛthak ||

“Agni has awaked ; the sun rises from the earth ; the bright dawn has opened heaven and earth with her light ; the (two) Aśvins have yoked their chariot for going ; the divine Savitr has impelled the world individually (to action).”

8, 43, 18 : túbhyaṁ tã aṅgirastama
viśvāḥ sukṣitáyavaḥ pṛthak |
ágne kāmāya yemire ||

“Thee, O best of Āṅgīrasas, have all those people with good dwelling-houses, attached to themselves, separately, in order to obtain their desires, O Agni.”

8, 43, 29 : túbhyaṁ ghét té jánā imé viśvāḥ sukṣitāyaḥ pṛthak |
dhāśīm hinvanty áttave ||

“All these people with good dwelling-houses (O Agni) have separately impelled thee to eat the food.” The words viśvāḥ sukṣitāyaḥ in these two verses though literally meaning ‘all (people) that have good dwelling-houses’ seem to be used in the sense of ‘all (people) possessed of houses, i.e., householders’; viśvāḥ sukṣitāyaḥ thus=viśve grhapatayaḥ, viśveṣu grheṣu naraḥ, grhe-grhe naraḥ. Compare 5, 14, 4; 10, 91, 2; 1, 128, 4; 4, 7, 3; etc.

Thus the meaning of pṛthak is 1. (a) quick, rapid, impetuous; (b) strong; and 2. separately, differently, diversely, variously.

Likewise, the root prath, from which the word pṛthak is without doubt derived, and its derivative pṛthu seem also to signify ‘to rush, to move quickly or swiftly’ and ‘swift’ respectively. Regarding the latter word, namely pṛthu, it is the first member of the compound pṛthuprajña which is given in the Mahāvīyutpatti (Mironow’s ed.; 48) as a synonym of āsuprajña, javanaprajña, tikṣṇaprajña, gamblīraprajña, etc. This seems to indicate that pṛthu in pṛthuprajña means āsu or javana.

yakṣá (neuter) is a somewhat difficult word that occurs about thirty times in the Vedic texts and that has not so far been satisfactorily explained by the exegetists. The explanations proposed for this word by the earlier ones are collected by Geldner on pp. 126, 127 of the Vedische Studien, Vol. 3, in the beginning of the article which he has written on this word. Geldner has there, after giving expression to the opinion that none of these explanations is satisfactory, come to the conclusion (p. 143) that yakṣá means I. (a) Erstaunen, Verwunderung, Neugierde; (b) Wunder, Rätsel; 2. Wunder, Kunststück, Zauber, (a) Hexerei, Zauberei; (b) Verzauberung; Verwandlung; (c) Gaukelei, Blendwerk, Illusion; (d) Wunderkraft, Wunderkur, Heilzauber; 3. Gegenstand der Bewunderung oder Neugierde, Kuriosität, (a) Wundertier; (b) Schaustück, Fest; (c) Naturwunder wie grosse Bäume u.s.w. M. Boyer who has likewise written an article on this word in the Journal Asiatique (1906, I, pp. 393-477), sees no necessity for the acceptance of this long array of meanings. Following the explanation of Roth (übernatürliches Wesen, geisterhafte Erscheinung) and Bergaigne (apparition surnaturelle), he thinks that yakṣá denotes only 'a form likely to create feelings of astonishment in the beholder,' une forme (visible de fait ou conçue comme telle) propre à étonner le regard, and has, in his above-mentioned article, attempted to show that the meaning fantome, apparition, apparition merveilleuse, merveille, fits in best with the context and is sufficient to explain every passage in which the word occurs. Oldenberg (RV. Noten, II, p. 44) agrees with M. Boyer in thinking that there is no necessity for a long series of meanings, and that one meaning is enough to explain all the passages in which the word occurs. This one meaning, however, is according to Oldenberg, 'wunderbare geheimnisvolle (darum häufig unheimliche) Wesenheit' and not 'a form likely to create feelings of astonishment in the beholder' as proposed by M. Boyer. And this seems now to be the opinion of Geldner also who in his latest book (RV. Ueber.) remarks, in connection with the verse 4, 3, 13, 'yakṣám; Heimlichkeit oder Blendwerk. yakṣá ist etwas Geheimnisvolles oder Wunderbares,' and thus seems to have abandoned his former suggestion in favour of that of Oldenberg. On the other hand, Hillebrandt has,¹ in his recently written article on this word (Festgabe für Richard von Garbe, pp. 17-23), explained it as 1. Zaubering, Zauberwesen (RV), unheimliches Wesen (Kaus. S); 2. übernatürliches grosses Wesen höherer Art (AV); 3. yakṣa [i. e., guhyaka or follower of Kubera] (AV. XI, 6, 10 and Gobh. G.S. 3, 4, 281).

The attempt to dispense with a long array of meanings and to make one meaning suffice for all passages is without doubt laudable; but it seems to me that in saying that this meaning is a 'wonderful, mysterious (and therefore sinister) being' or 'a form likely to create feelings of astonishment in the beholder,' the savants above-named have not quite hit the mark, and that these meanings do not, any more than those proposed by Geldner, fit in a number of passages, e.g., in RV. 10, 88, 13; AV. 8, 9, 8 and 11, 2, 24; Śat. Br. 12, 2, 3, 5. I propose therefore to investigate anew here the meaning of this word yakṣa.

It is necessary for me to begin first by referring to the close correspondence that exists between the words yakṣa and bhūta in post-Vedic literature. In this literature, yakṣa like bhūta, denotes a class of superhuman beings known as devayonayaḥ in Sanskrit literature (cf. Amara-kośa, 1, 11: vidyādhara 'psaro-yakṣa-rakṣo-gandharva-kinnarāḥ | piśāco guhyakāḥ siddho bhūto 'mī devayonayaḥ), and as vyantarāḥ in Jaina literature (cf. Uttarādhyayana, p. 1084: piśāya bhūyā jakkhā ya rakkhasā kinnarā ya kimpurisā | mahoragā ya gandharvā atthavihā vāṇam-antarā and Tattvārthādhigama-sūtra, 4, 12). These beings are represented as dwelling in unoccupied houses, in trees, forests or woods, ponds, etc., which are then said to be possessed, adhiṣṭhita, by them; compare Geldner, l.c., p. 143, Jātaka stories, No. 154 and 155, and Hopkins, Epic Mythology, p. 36, and Index, s.v. yakṣa. To Yakṣas as to *Bhūtas*², temples were built, adoration paid and bali offered; and festivals, yātrāḥ or utsavāḥ, were instituted in their honour. They were invoked in times of danger, and vows were taken in honour of them at such times and also when people prayed for the fulfilment of any desire. Compare for instance the following passages from the Jñātādharmakathā:—

² The investigations of anthropologists have shown that belief in the existence, and worship, of evil spirits (demons) plays a prominent role in the religious speculations and practices of primitive people everywhere in the world; and the opinion has been expressed by writers on Vedic religion and mythology that such belief and worship were prevalent among the Āryans of R̥gvedic times. Thus Oldenberg (Religion des Veda, p. 55f.) believes that the existence of such belief and practice is unmistakably indicated by certain details of the Vedic cult; and Hillebrandt (Ved. Myth., III, p. X) says that the belief in the existence of evil spirits is met with to a small extent in the RV, and that the worship too of evil spirits must have been prevalent at the time though, as he thinks, no trace of such worship is to be seen in the RV. As we know from later literature that the worship of Yakṣas and Bhūtas was general and wide-spread, it is permissible to infer that the worship of evil spirits in R̥gvedic times too must have, to a great extent, consisted in the worship of Yakṣas and Bhūtas, or at least, that Yakṣas and Bhūtas were included in the evil spirits that received worship in the time of the RV.

The temples of Yakṣas were known as yakṣāyatana (cp. Jñātā., p. 528, surappiye ṇāmaṃ jakkhāyatane), yakṣadevakula (cp. ibid., p. 409, jakkhadeulāṇi ya), yakṣagr̥ha or yakṣabhavana (cp. Uttarādhyāyanaśūtra, comm. on p. 162, Rājagṛhe Vīraprabhodyāne Maṇināyakaśya yakṣabhavane uttīrṇaḥ), yakṣaprāsāda (cp. ibid., p. 347, Maṇḍika-yakṣa-prāsāda) or yakṣa simply (compare Jñātā., p. 417, ṇāgāṇi ya bhūyāṇi ya jakkhāṇi ya, 'temples of nāgas, bhūtas, and yakṣas'; Vipākasūtra, p. 176, Bhaṇḍīre uyyāne Sudarisane jakkhe 'Bhaṇḍīra park; the yakṣa-temple named Sudarisana'; ibid., p. 213, Soriya-jakkho, 'the yakṣa-temple known as Soriya'); and those of bhūtas were known as bhūtagr̥ha (cp. Jñātā., p. 409, bhūyagharāṇi ya) or simply bhūta (cp. Jñātā., p. 417, ṇāgāṇi ya bhūyāṇi ya jakkhāṇi ya cited above). The generic term cāitya was used to denote either class of temples---those of yakṣas or of bhūtas: compare Uttarādhyāyanaśūtra, p. 162, Antarañjikāpurīyāṃ bhūtagr̥haṃ cāityaṃ; yakkha-cetiyaṇi in Buddhaghoṣa's Sumaṅgalavilāsinī on Mahāparinibbānasutta, 1. 4; and Abhayacandra's explanation of cāitya as vyantarāyatanaṃ in his commentary on the Jñātā., p. 7. These cāityas seem to have played a prominent part in the religious life of the city or town in which they were situated. In the Jaina-sūtras specially, one finds that whenever the name of a town or city is mentioned, the name of the cāitya situated in it is also almost invariably mentioned; see, for instance, Jñātā., p. 1509, 1515ff. and Vipākasūtra, pp. 241ff.⁷ The Buddhist Pāli books too sometimes mention cāityas in connection with towns; e.g., the Suppatitṭha-cetiya in Rājagṛha is mentioned in the Vinaya-piṭaka, Mahāvagga, I, 22, 1; and the Cāpāla, Udena, Sattambaka, and Bahuputta *cetiya*s in Vesālī are mentioned in Digha., Mahāparinibbānasutta, 3. 1. So

also do some Buddhist votive inscriptions^a at Bharaut, Nasik and other places. They are occasionally mentioned in the Purāṇas, Itihāsas and other Brāhmanical books also; compare, for instance, the Rāmāyaṇa, 2, 56, 33: caityāṇy āyatanāni ca . . . sthāpayāmāsa Rāghavaḥ; 2, 71, 42: devāyatana-caityeṣu dīnāḥ pakṣi-mṛgās tathā; 2, 3, 18: devāyatana-caityeṣu; 2, 17, 16: caityaṁś cāyatanāni ca | pradakṣiṇaṁ pariharaṇ; in Agnipurāṇa (apud Hemādri's Caturvargacintāmaṇi, Vratakhaṇḍa, ch. 21, p. 344): caityeṣv āyataneṣu ca | devānāṁ caiva rathyāsu; in Bhaviṣyottarapurāṇa (apud Hemādri, l.c. p. 353): kūṭāgāreṣu caityeṣu; in the Mahābhārata, 2, 102, 33: devāyatana-caityeṣu prākārātṭālakeṣu ca; Kautīlya's Arthaśāstra, p. 208, parvasu ca . . . caitya-phūjāḥ kārayet; p. 243, pratipannam caityasthāne rātrau . . . upahāram kārayet; p. 56, caitya-puṇyasthāna-vana-sctubandhāḥ kāryāḥ. In all these instances, the juxtaposition of the word devāyatana shows that the word caitya means 'temple of yakṣa or bhūta' and the compound devāyatana-caitya means 'temples dedicated to gods and to evil spirits.' The presiding deity of the Daṇḍapāṇi temple in Benares, that pious devotees visit every day, is also a yakṣa, as is related in ch. 32 of the Kāśīkhaṇḍa.

^a Nos. 693, 699, 987, 988, 1058, 1059, etc., in Lüders' List of Brāhmī Inscriptions (Appendix to Epigraphia Indica, Vol. X); see Index of Miscellaneous Terms given at the end, s. v. chetiya and following words. The words chetiya and chaitya are there explained by Lüders as 'Buddhist building.' Considering however that among the Buddhist inscriptions are two—Nos. 1143 and 871—that record the gift of a yakṣa and a yakṣī (that is, of images of them) and one (No. 1206) that seems to record the gift of a bhūtāyana (for bhūtapata? stone-slab with the image of a bhūta engraved on it), it seems more natural to give the word caitya its usual meaning and to understand in these inscriptions a reference to temples of bhūtas or yakṣas. It is true that such temples have nothing to do with Buddhism or with the life of Buddhists as we know of these from the books; but the gift of images of a yakṣa and a yakṣī referred to above shows clearly that their worship must have been prevalent amongst Buddhists also at that time and this makes it probable that the word caitya retains its meaning of 'temple dedicated to yakṣa or bhūta' in Buddhist inscriptions (and in Buddhist books?) also. It may, in passing, be observed that the personal names also, contained in some of the inscriptions, as for instance, the names Naga, Nāgadatta, Nāgadina, Nāgadeva, Nāgasrī, Nāgapālita; Yakhadina, Yakhadāsi, Yakhī, Yakhila; Bhuta, Bhutarakhita and Bhutapāla (see Index of Personal Names given at the end) bear witness to the prevalence of the worship of nāgas, yakṣas, and bhūtas at that time.

The worship of yakṣas and bhūtas is referred to in the Bhagavad-gītā, where it is said in XVII, 4,⁹ and IX, 25¹⁰ that sātvika people worship gods (deva), rājasa people yakṣas and rākṣasas, and tāmasa people, ghosts (preta) and hosts of bhūtas, and that the worshippers of bhūtas go to them while the worshippers of the Lord go to Him. Yakṣas and bhūtas are both objects of tarpaṇa (with water) in the daily brahma-yajña rite prescribed for the householder of the first three castes (cp. Āś. GS. 3, 4, 1).¹¹ Similarly, the bhūtayajña, which consists in the offering of bali to bhūtas, (compare T.A. 2, 10: yad bhūtebhyo baliṃ harati tad bhūtayajñam) is also daily prescribed for such householders (cp. ibid., 3, 1). The yakṣa-bali rite¹² is referred to by Ujvaladatta in his scholium on the Uṇādisūtras, 4, 123, in the Jātaka Stories No. 347 and 455, while its wide prevalence is attested by the common saying yakṣānurūpo baliḥ: 'As is the yakṣa, so is the bali' (that is, the bali corresponds to the yakṣa; if the yakṣa is great, the bali offered will be considerable: if the yakṣa is negligible, the bali too is negligible) cited by Śaṅkara in his commentary on the Chan. Up. 6, 32 (see also Laukikanyayañjali, II, p. 64: yadr̥śo yakṣas tadr̥śo baliḥ). T.A. 1, 31, 123 gives details of the Vaiśravaṇa-yajña ceremony in which bali is offered to Vaiśravaṇa (i.e. Kubera) who is the lord of Yakṣas, but who is, remarkably enough, referred to by the mantra sarvabhūtādhipataye nama iti (the commentator Bhaṭṭa-bhāskara explains sarvabhūtānām alternatively as yakṣa-guhyakānām) as the 'lord of all bhūtas.'

The fourteenth day of the dark fortnight of every month is known as bhūta-caturdaśī and is held sacred to the bhūtas. On that day are performed vratas intended to win the favour of Śiva, lord of the bhūtas; see Hemādri, l.c. p. 50 ff. That day, however, is held consecrated to the Yakṣas also, and accordingly, on that day are performed the vratas in which worship is offered to Yakṣas (namely, the Kṣemavrata, p. 154), and to Vaiśravaṇa, lord of the Yakṣas (p. 155). The Saurapurāṇa (apud Hemādri, l.c. p. 156) prescribes the performance on that day of the Kṛṣṇacaturdaśī-vrata, in which the figure of a Yakṣa made of bdellium (guggula) should be burnt, and says that in consequence of this vrata, the performer goes to the world of the Pināka-bearer, that is, of Śiva, the lord of bhūtas (kṛṣṇapakṣe caturdaśyām yakṣam guggulakam dahet | sa yāti paramam sthānam yatra devaḥ pinākadhṛk).

It may further be mentioned that according to the Purāṇic mythology, Īśāna (or Rudra) the lord of bhūtas, and Kubera (or Vaiśravaṇa) the lord of Yakṣas, both dwell in the north in the Himālayas and are neighbours, and that the Jaina writers so closely associated yakṣas with bhūtas that in a story related in the Jñātādharmakathā (Adhyayana 16, p. 1149) the wives of three Brāhmaṇa brothers are respectively named Nāgasiri, Bhūyasiri and Jakkhasiri.¹²

The details given above show how close is the correspondence between the words yakṣa and bhūta in post-Vedic literature. The correspondence is no less close in Vedic literature also, as can be seen from the comparison of some passages of the Bṛhad. Upaniṣad. In this Upaniṣad, the word mahat is found used as a qualifying epithet in five passages only; in one, it is an epithet of karma (1, 4, 15 : mahat puṇyam karma karoti), while in the other four, it is an epithet of Brahman described as mahad bhūtam in two passages (2, 4, 10 : asya mahato bhūtasya niśvasitam etad yad ṛgvedo yajur-vedaḥ ; 2, 4, 12 : idaṁ mahad bhūtam anantam apāram vijñānaghana eva) and as mahad yakṣam in two other sentences occurring in 5, 4, 1 (sa yo haitan mahad yakṣam prathamajam veda satyam brahmeti ; evam etan mahad yakṣam prathamajam veda satyam brahmeti). In the same way, to the epithet yakṣasya adhyakṣam used of Agni Vāiśvānara in RV. 10, 88, 13 corresponds the epithet bhūtasya adhyakṣāḥ used in AV. 1, 31, 1 of the four āsāpālāḥ 'lords of the quarters' (of whom Agni is one); compare also bhūtāsya pātir ēka āsīt in RV. 10, 121, 1. Similarly, Śat. Br. 11, 2, 3, 5 : mahad dhaiva yakṣam bhavati corresponds to Āśv. GS. 3, 9, 6 : (snātako vai) mahad bhūtam bhavati; and the words yakṣa and bhūta are used parallelly in TB. 3, 11, 1, 1 : tvayīdam antaḥ | viśvam yakṣam viśvam bhūtam viśvaṁ subhūtam.

It follows then from all this, and especially from the correspondence of mahad yakṣam with mahad bhūtam in the Upaniṣad passages noted above, that the two words are convertible and that yakṣa=bhūta. And it is remarkable that Bhāskararāya, the famous and most learned Tāntrik writer of the Śakta school, has explained yakṣam in AV. 10, 2, 32, as mahābhūtam. It seems to have been felt by Roth too that yakṣa is equivalent to bhūta; for in the PW (s. v. yakṣa) he has correctly explained yakṣa in AV. 8, 9, 8; RV. 10, 88, 13 and

TB. 3,11,1, as 'die Wesen' and the word yakṣabhyt in RV. 1, 190, 4, as 'die Wesen tragend, erhaltend.' The commentator Bhaṭṭabhaskara, too, has, on the other hand, as we have seen above, explained the word bhūta in TA. 1, 31, 123 as yakṣaguhyaka.¹³

Now the chief meanings of bhūta are (a) being (concrete); such beings in the collective—all beings, the creation, world, universe; a particular class of superhuman beings; evil being, evil spirit; and (b) being (abstract), essence, substance, virtue, might, power, etc. The meanings 'essence, substance, might, power,' etc., are not given by the lexicographers; but, nevertheless, there can be no doubt that bhūta has these meanings quite regularly, for it is derived from the root bhū, which means not only 'to be' but also 'to be powerful, to prevail, to predominate, to be master of'; compare the meanings of the cognate words bhāva and prabhāva and of the allied word sattva, which is derived likewise from a root (as) meaning 'to be' and which is a synonym of bhūta. And these meanings of bhūta are enough, as I shall show now, to explain the sense of the majority of the passages in which the word yakṣa occurs. In all such passages, yakṣa can be paraphrased as bhūta or sattva.

Brhad. Up. 5, 4: tad vai tad etad eva tad āsa satyam eva sa yo haitan mahad yakṣam prathamajam veda satyam brahmeti jayatīmāṇl lokān jita in nv asāv asad ya evam etan mahad yakṣam prathamajam veda satyam brahmeti satyam hy eva brahma ||

first-born being, Brahman, is verily the Real? For Brahman is verily the Real." The epithet 'first-born,' prathamaja, seems here to be used in the sense of 'first existing'; compare Brhad. Up. 1, 4, 10: brahma vā idam agra āsīt. Compare also TA. 10, 1, 4: prajāpatiḥ prathamajā ṛtāsyātmānātmanam abhī sām babhūva.

Kenopanishad, 3, 2: tad dhaiṣāṁ vijajñau tebhyo ha prādurbabhūva tan na vyajānanta kim idam yakṣam iti ||

"It (Brahman) became aware of (this thought of) theirs; it manifested itself before them. They did not know (what it was, and thought within themselves) 'What is this being?'" Hillebrandt (l. c., p. 21) makes out that yakṣa refers here to the blade of straw (trya) that is mentioned later on. This is a mistake and the context shows clearly that yakṣa refers to the being that appeared before the gods.

Similarly, yakṣa=being, in the other passages of this khaṇḍa where this word recurs.

Jaim. Up. Br. 1, 20, 4 [JAOS. 16, 68]: tasminn idam sarvam antaḥ | tad yad asminn idam sarvam antas tasmād antar-yakṣam | antar-yakṣam ha vai nāmaitat | tad antarikṣam iti parokṣam ācakṣate ||

"All this is within it. Because all this is within it therefore is it [called] antar-yakṣa. antar-yakṣa verily is its name; it is called antarikṣa in occult way." antar-yakṣa=that which contains all this, that is, all this creation; and the context shows clearly that yakṣa here denotes the creation.

Gopatha-brāhmaṇa, 1, 1, 1: *brahma vā idam agra āsīt svayambhū ekam eva tad aikṣata mahad vai yakṣam tad ekam evāsmi hantāham mad eva manmātram dvitīyam devam nirmimā iti tasya lalāṭe sucho yad ārdryam ajāyata tenānandat tam abravīd mahad vai yakṣam suvedam avidāmahīti ||*¹⁴

¹⁴ So corrected by Whitney in his Grammar, § 848, instead of the avidamāha iti of the editions.

" At first, verily, the self-born Brahman existed alone. It considered ' Verily, I alone exist, the great being, That (that is, Brahman); well, I shall create from myself a second god like to me ' At the moisture, wetness, that was produced on its forehead, it felt glad; It ¹⁵ said: ' We have verily easily got the great being.' " mahad yakṣam, the great being referred to here, is water, āpaḥ, which at first appears as sneha ārdryam on the forehead and then (see khaṇḍa 2) as svedadhārāḥ, ' streams of perspiration ' in the pores of its skin, and is in khaṇḍa 3, expressly called by that name (tā āpaḥ sṛṣṭvā anvaikṣata). Regarding the creation of Water first by the Brahman, compare Manu, 1, 8: apa eva sasārjādau tāsū vīryam avāsrjat; Śākuntala, 1, 1 which refers to Water as yā sṛṣṭiḥ sraṣṭur ādyā; Ait. Up. 1, 1 f. . sa ikṣata lokān nu srjā iti sa imān lokān asrjatāmbho maricir maram āpaḥ; Śat. Br. 6, 1, 3, 1: prajāpatir vā idam agra āsīd eka eva | so'kāmayata bahu | syām prajāyeyeti so' śrāmyat sa tapo'tapyata tasmāc chrāntāt tepānād āpo'srjyanta; compare also Kāthopaniṣad, 2, 1, 6: yah pūrvam tapaso jātam adbhyaḥ pūrvam ajāyata which also says impliedly that tapas and āpaḥ were first-born beings.

TB. 3, 12, 3, 1: prathamajām devām havīṣā vidhema svayambhū brāhma paramām tāpo yāt | sá evá putráḥ sá pitā sá mātā tāpo ha yakṣām prathamām sām babhūva||

" Let us worship with oblation the first-born god, namely, Tapas, the self-born Brahman, the highest. He alone is the son, he the father, he the mother. Tapas was born the first being." Compare Kāthopaniṣad, 2, 1, 6, cited above. It is said frequently in the Upaniṣads and elsewhere that Brahman, after the desire to create arose in it, performed tapas; and this has led to tapas being regarded as the first thing created by Brahman. Compare Sāyaṇa's commentary on this verse : yoyam tapobhimānī devaḥ sa prathamajāḥ | tathā copaniṣadi sṛṣṭi-prakarane prathamajatvam āmnāyate | sokāmayata bahu syām prajāyeyeti sa tapolapyata ; compare also AV. 11, 8, 6 : tápo ha jajñe kármanas tát té jycṣṭhám úpāsata 'Tapas was born from action ; that did they worship as the eldest.'

"Within thee is all being, all creation, all prosperity." This is a formula that is used twenty-four times (with variations in the number of the second personal pronoun when required by the context) in respect of the twenty-four bricks, iṣṭakāḥ, used in the Nāciketa-cayana. These bricks are identified with the earth, waters, sky, etc., and each of these is panegyrised as the container of the whole universe. The expressions víśvam yakṣam and víśvam bhūtam mean almost the same thing ; compare also TA. 10, 16, 1 : víśvam bhūtám bhuvanam citram, which corresponds exactly to víśvam yakṣam víśvam bhūtám víśvañ subhūtám here.

AV. 8, 9, 8 : yām pracyutām ānu yajñāḥ pracyāvanta upatīṣṭhanta upatīṣṭhamānām | yásyā vraté prasavé yakṣám éjati sá virāḍ ṛṣayah paramé vyòman ||

"After whom, when she is going, the sacrifices go and with whose approach they approach ; following whose ordinance and through whose impulse, the world moves,—she, O sages, is the Virāj in the highest heaven." This verse is the answer given by Kaśyapa to the inquiry made in the preceding verse by the six sages about the nature of Virāj who is said to be the father of Brahman. In contrast with pracyutām and pracyavanta in the first pāda, one expects pratiṣṭhamānām and pratiṣṭhanta in the second pāda ('after whom, when she is going, the sacrifices go and when she is firmly established, are firmly established') instead of upatiṣṭhamānām and upatiṣṭhanta that are found there. It is not therefore improbable that these latter words are here used in the sense of pratiṣṭhamānām and pratiṣṭhanta. Compare Praśnopaniṣad, 2, 4: tasminn utkrāmaty athetare sarva evotkrāmante tasmimś ca pratiṣṭhamāne sarva eva pratiṣṭhante tad yathā makṣikā madhukara-rājānam utkrāmantaṁ sarva evotkrāmante tasmimś ca pratiṣṭhamāne sarva eva pratiṣṭhante 'when it (sc. the prāṇa) departs, all the others depart, and when it stays fast, all others stay fast; just as, when the king-bee departs all the bees depart and when he stays fast, all stay fast.'

It will be seen that the second half-verse speaks of the whole universe being controlled by, and obeying the impulse of, the Virāj, while the first half-verse speaks, seemingly, of the sacrifices only, yajñāḥ, going when the Virāj goes and coming (or staying) when the Virāj comes (or stays). This is, to say the least, incongruous, and the more so as the sacrifices are not such important things as to deserve mention in this connection. One would rather expect in the first half-verse also mention to be made of the whole universe going and coming (or staying) according as the Virāj goes and comes (or stays); compare the word sarve in the Upaniṣad passage sarva evotkrāmante . . . sarva eva pratiṣṭhante cited above. I am therefore led to believe that the word yajñāḥ here in the first half-verse denotes 'universe,' that is, that it has the same meaning as the word yakṣa in the second half-verse. In other words, the view of the Indian commentators that sees in yakṣa a derivative from the root yaj seems to be justified by the parallelism here of the two words yajña and yakṣa.

“Who then is the bull, who the sole seer, what the abode and what the desires? The being that on earth is one-fold,—who is he? The bull is one, one the sole seer and one-grouped are the desires. The being that on earth is one-fold, he is not different.” M. Boyer, following Henry, has understood these verses as referring to the sun (āditya), that is, to the sun considered as the supreme Being. This is not incorrect; but I believe that it is preferable to refer the verses, with Geldner, (l.c. p. 129) to Brahman itself, to the Virāj that is spoken of in the opening verses of this hymn. The Brahman is ekaṣṣī, the sole seer, because from it come forth as its breath, the Ṛgveda, Yajurveda, Sāmaveda, etc.; see Brhad. Up. 2, 4, 10: asya mahato bhūtasya niṣvasitam etad yad ṛgvedo yajurvedaḥ sāmavedo 'tharvāṅgīrasa itihāsaḥ purāṇam vidyā upaniṣadaḥ ślokāḥ sūtrāṇy anuvyākhyānāni vyākhyānāny asyaivaitāni sarvāni niṣvasitāni. The Brahman is ekavṛt, one-fold, because it is one and changeless; compare Bh. Gītā, 12, 3: *sarvatragam acintyam ca kūṭastham acalam dhruvam*¹⁶ “The imperishable Brahman that is all-pervading, unthinkable, unchanging, immutable, eternal”; it is the dhāma or abode (of all); compare ibid. 11, 38: vettāsi vedyam ca param ca dhāma ‘Thou art the knower, and the known; (thou art) the supreme abode’; ibid. 10, 12: param brahma param dhāma pavitraṁ paramam bhavān ‘Thou art the supreme Brahman, the supreme abode, the highest purifier’; Gaudapāda-kārikā, 4, 100: durdarśam atigam-

¹⁶ And also perhaps because in it all the gods and other things become one; compare AV. 13, 4, 13: etē asmin devā ekavṛto bhavanti “In him all these gods become one” said of the Supreme Being, called Savitr in this hymn.

seasoned, because perhaps there is no succession of days and nights in Brahmaloḥka, or to the Brahman there is but only one long unending day, and hence only one 'season'; compare Ch. Up. 8, 4, 1: naitam setum

M. Boyer, in the course of his explanation of these verses, says (p. 419) that, a priori, there is no reason to suppose that the five questions in v. 25 refer to the same person or thing, but that, as a matter of fact, the answers in v. 26 are capable of being referred to one deity, namely the sun. This is because he understands the last pāda of v. 26 to mean that 'the marvel (as already said above, yakṣa=merveille in M. Boyer's opinion) on the earth . . . is not surpassed by any.' It seems to me however that the words nāti ricyate should be understood, not as 'is not surpassed' but as 'does not remain over; is not different', and that therefore these words in v. 26 refer to the same subject, and that hence the questions in v. 25 too refer to the same subject.

"The fortress of the gods has eight wheels (i.e., circumvallations) and nine doors and is inexpugnable; in it is a sheath of gold, heaven, enveloped in splendour; verily, the Brahma-knowers know the animate being that is in this sheath of gold which has three spokes and is thrice-supported. Into this resplendent, yellow, invincible fortress of gold, enveloped in glory, entered the Brahman."

The fortress of the gods is, as Sāyaṇa (on T.A. 1, 27, 2-3) explains, the human body; the nine doors are the nine apertures of the body, namely, the two ears, the two eyes, the two nostrils (or according to others, the nose and the brahma-randhra), the mouth, the upastha and pāyu: and the eight wheels are the eight dhātavaḥ or 'elements' of the body—tvac (skin), asṛj (blood), medas (fat), asthin (bone), majjan (marrow), śukra (semen), māmsa (flesh), and ojas. The sheath of gold within it is the heart which is the abode of the ātman: compare T.A. 10, 11, 2: padmakōśa-pratikāśaṁ hṛdayam cāpyadhō-mukham | ūdho niṣṭyā vitastyānte nābhyām upari tiṣṭhati || jvālamālākulam bhāti viśvāsyāyatanām mahat tāsmin sarvām pratiṣṭhitam tāsya mādhye mahān agniḥ tāsya mādhye vāhniśikhā tāsyaḥ śikhāyā madhye parāmātmā vyavasthitaḥ | sā brāhmā sā hāriḥ śendraḥ sūkṣaraḥ paramāḥ svarāt || "Like to a lotus-bud, the heart, facing downwards, is (situated) one span below the neck (that is, below the top of the windpipe), and above the navel. This great abode of all (of the world) is shining, being full of rings of flames in it is established everything in its midst is a great fire in it is a flame in the midst of this flame is established the supreme ātman; he is Brahmā, he Hari (Viṣṇu), he Indra, he the imperishable supreme lord." Compare also Yogatattvopaniṣad, 1, 9: hṛdi sthāne sthitam padmam tac ca padmam adhomukham; Dhyāna-bindūpaniṣad, 12: ūrdhvarāḷam adhomukham | kadali-puṣpasamkāśam sarvadevamayāmbujam; Ch. Up. 8, 1, 1: asmin brahmaṇ pure daharam puṇḍarikam veśma "In this abode of Brahman (i.e., the body) is a small lotus chamber."

The epithets tryava and tripratiṣṭhita are not very clear. In Ch. Up. 8, 1, 3¹⁷ we read that the ākāśa of the heart contains everything, heaven, earth, agni, vāyu, etc.

The word tryara may therefore perhaps refer to the three worlds and all other similar triplicities as being contained in the heart ; compare Yogatattvopaniṣad, 1, 6 : trayo lokās trayo vedās trayāḥ sandhyās trayāḥ surāḥ | trayagnayo guṇās trīṇi sthitāḥ sarve trayākṣare. The trayākṣara or praṇava is thus said to contain within itself the three worlds, the three Vedas, the three sandhyās, etc. ; and as the heart is, like the praṇava, a seat, adhiṣṭhāna, of the Supreme, these triplicities may all be regarded as being contained in the heart and as forming the arāḥ or spokes thereof referred to by the epithet tryara.

The epithet tripraṭiṣṭhita refers perhaps to the three states of the heart spoken of in Yogatattvopaniṣad, 1, 1 : akāre śocitaṁ padmam ukāreṇaiva bhidyate | makāre labhate nādam ardhamatrā tu niścalā which seems to mean : “ When a is pronounced, the lotus (of the heart) brightens (becomes ready to open ?) ; it opens when u is pronounced ; and begins to hum when ma is pronounced ; it is immobile when the ardhamātrā is pronounced.” Now a, u, and ma are said (in the Māṇḍūkyopaniṣad, Gauḍapāda-kārikā, and elsewhere) to be the pādas or feet of the praṇava which thus rests or is supported on them. Similarly, the heart when it brightens, the heart when it opens, and the heart when it is humming, may be considered the feet or supports of the praṇava or Brahman.

The word svarga in the fourth pāda of v. 31 is usually interpreted as ‘heavenly’, svargatulya, etc. There is however no necessity for abandoning the usual meaning of the word, namely, ‘heaven’ ; for this word is often used to denote the supreme heaven or Brahmaloka where the Brahman dwells (compare Brhad. Up. 4, 4, 8 : dhīrā apīyanti brahmadevaḥ svargam lokam and Śaṅkara’s comment : svargaloka-śabdā triviṣṭapa-vācyā api sann iha prakaraṇān mokṣābhidhāyakaḥ ; Ch. 8, 3, 2-3 : imāḥ prajā ahar-ahar gacchantya etam brahmalokam na vindanti tasmād dhrdayam ahar-ahar vā evamvit svaragam lokam eti and Śaṅkara's comment thereon). It is so used here also as is made quite clear by the reading of the parallel passage in TA. 1, 27, 3: tasyāñ hiraṇmayah kośah | svargo loko jyotiṣā vṛtaḥ.

With regard to the word aṣṭācakrā, it has been observed by M. Boyer (l.c. p. 436) that Sāyaṇa has explained the word cakra in it as āvaraṇa, or circumvallation enclosing the body that is regarded as a fortress, in his commentary on TA. 1, 27, 3,¹⁸ while in his commentary on AV. 11, 4, 22 he has explained the word as 'wheel' serving as the means for locomotion of the body that is here regarded as a chariot. This is because TA. 1, 27, 3 refers distinctly to a fort, pūḥ, while AV. 11, 4, 22 refers equally distinctly to a chariot (compare the words ekanemi 'having one rim' and sahasrākṣara which Sāyaṇa explains as 'having a thousand axles' used in it). The discrepancy therefore, if any, is to be attributed to the texts themselves and not to Sāyaṇa who had to explain them faithfully as they stood. But is there really a discrepancy here? I am disposed to think that there is none; the meanings 'circumvallation' and 'wheel' are not mutually exclusive, and in all probability they are both intended (see p. 21 above) by the word cakra in aṣṭācakrā which would thus mean 'having eight circumvallations and eight wheels to move with' or 'having ramparts and moving.' In other words, the fort, pūḥ, spoken of in AV. 10, 2, 31, seems to be a mobile fort, jaṅgamo durgah or cariṣṇūḥ pūḥ. Such a mobile fort is, besides the 'firm' forts, dṛḍhāḥ puraḥ, that are frequently mentioned, known to the RV which refers to one in 8, 1, 28: tvām púram cariṣṇvām vadhaíḥ śuṣṇásya sám piṇak "Thou (O Indra), didst shatter with thy weapons the mobile fort of Śuṣṇa." Such forts are occasionally mentioned in later books also; compare Bhāgavata, 10, 76, 6f.—

From the descriptions given of the Tripura and of the pura of the Paulomas and Kālakeyas (this was named Hiranyapura), it will be seen that not only were these mobile forts, moving in the sky according to the desire of the kings dwelling in them, but they were also provided with high ramparts and gates and they were impregnable to the assaults of gods (deva), Dānavas, Yakṣas, etc. The fort named Hiranyapura was, in addition, 'as bright as Agni (fire) and Sūrya (sun)' and 'better than the abode of Brahman'; and these descriptions recall the expressions *devānām ayodhyā pūḥ*¹⁹ (in v. 31), aparājitā pūḥ (in v. 33), hiranyayah, jyotiṣā vṛtaḥ, svargaḥ, prabhrājamāna, yaśasā saṁparivṛta in the above verses as also the expressions aṣṭācakra and navadvārā. All these traits and especially the one about Hiranyapura being better than the abode of Brahman seem to me to point particularly to the description of the brahmapura and the kośa therein that is brilliant, prabhrājamāna, yellow, harinī, surrounded with glory, yaśasā saṁparivṛta, and golden, hiranyayī, that is contained in the above verses (AV. 10, 2, 31-33) and to be based thereon. In any case, they make it probable that the word cakra in aṣṭācakra signifies circumvallations and at the same time mobility also. Compare Kāthopaniṣad 1, 3, 3: ātmānam rathinam viddhi śarīram ratham eva ca | buddhim tu sārathim viddhi manah pragraham eva ca, and other similar passages which compare the body to a chariot.

This mode of interpretation which makes the verses refer to the human body does not find favour with M. Boyer, who has observed (l.c. p. 438) that the wording of verses 31 and 33 is such that they can not but both refer to the same thing. The expression aparājitā pūḥ in v. 33 therefore must denote the same thing as the expression ayodhyā pūḥ of v. 31 ; and though the epithets aṣṭācakrā and navadvārā may be said to be quite appropriate to the human body, it is hardly possible, he observes, to say the same of the epithets prabhrājamānā, haviṇī, yaśasā samparivṛtā and hiraṇyayī used in v. 33. M. Boyer therefore thinks that the verses refer to a celestial citadel of Brahman, and that the kośa, sheath, which is referred to as being within the citadel, is the sun. According to this interpretation, too, the citadel referred to is a mobile one provided with gates and cakras or means for locomotion (the numbers nine and eight, however, in the epithets aṣṭācakrā and navadvārā says M. Boyer, have no particular significance beyond that of multiplicity). The 'sheath' spoken of being the sun, the epithets svarga (which M. Boyer explains as 'celeste'), jyotiṣā vṛta and hiraṇyaya are quite in place ; the epithets tryava and tripratīṣṭhita refer to the three worlds as being contained in the sun and as being the support (pratīṣṭhā) of the sun.

This interpretation of M. Boyer or one very like it, is, for a reason that will presently be mentioned, quite possible. The objection however that he has raised against referring the verses to the human body can, it seems to me, be easily met. The 'fortress that is impregnable to the assaults of the gods even,' devānām ayodhyā pūḥ, mentioned in v. 31 as having eight circumvallations and nine gates is not the same as the aparājitā pūḥ mentioned in v. 33. The fortress spoken of in the former verse is the body that is elsewhere also referred to as pūḥ or pura (compare Bh. Gītā, 5, 13 : navadvāre pure dehī naiva kurvan na kārayan ; Śvet. Up. 3, 18 : puraḥ puruṣa āviśad iti | sa vā ayam puruṣaḥ sarvāsu pūrṣu purīṣayaḥ ; TA. 10, 10, 3 ; yat puṇḍarikam puramadhya-saṁstham ; Ch. Up. 8, 1, 1 yad idam asmin brahmapure daharam puṇḍarikam veśma, etc.), while the fortress mentioned in v. 33 is the heart that is also sometimes referred to as pura or brahmapura, compare Muṇḍakopaniṣad, 2, 2, 7: divye brahmapure hy eṣa vyomny ātmā pratiṣṭhitah (Roth in the PW. s. v. explains brahmapura as 'heart'); Ātmabodhopaniṣad, 1: yad idaṁ brahmapuraṁ puṇḍarikam tasmāt tadid-ābha-mātram; Nārāyaṇopaniṣad, 5: tad idaṁ puraṁ puṇḍarikam. This is shown by the epithet hiranyaya that is common to the kośa of vv. 31, 32 and the pūḥ of v. 33, as also by the parallelism of the expression jyotiṣā vṛta in v. 31 with yaśasā saṁparivṛta in v. 33. Now this heart has been described, in TA. 10, 11, 2 cited above as 'shining' and 'full of rings of flames.' It is described as hiranyaya 'golden' in Muṇḍakopaniṣad 2, 2, 8. The epithets prabhrājamāna, harita, yaśasā saṁparivṛta, and hiranyaya of v. 33 can all be therefore appropriately used of the heart, and the incongruity pointed out by M. Boyer does not in fact exist.

These verses, as also the corresponding ones in the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka (1, 27, 3) are explained by the writers on Sākta Tantrism—e.g., by Lakṣmīdhara in his commentary on v. 11 of the Saundaryalaharī or Ānandalaharī, by Bhāskararāya in his commentary on the Latitāsahasranāma and also in his commentary, named Setubandha, on the Vāmakeśvara-tantra of Nityāṣoḍa-śikāṛṇava—as referring to the Śrī-cakra. As the Śrī-cakra is, as is well-known, a symbol of the human body (see on this point the Bhāvanopaniṣad, Tantrarāja-tantra edited by A. Avalon and the Vāmakeśvaratantra mentioned above), such interpretation is not so far-fetched as it may at first sight seem to be; and what is more, it has also to be admitted that the Tāntrik interpretation brings out the meaning of the various epithets more strongly and clearly than the usual interpretation does. I reproduce²⁰ here as a specimen that given in the Setubandha (p. 189) where, as I have already observed, ²⁰ Correcting the mistakes that are found in the verses quoted in the edition.

Bhāskararāya explains the term yakṣam as mahābhūtam pūjanīyam: tathā cātharvaṇāḥ Śaunaka-śākhīyā āmananti | aṣṭācakrā navadvārā devānām pūr ayodhyā | tasyām hiraṇyayaḥ koṣaḥ svargo jyotiṣā vṛtaḥ | tasmin hiraṇyaye koṣe tryare tripratiṣṭhite | tasmin yad yakṣam ātmanvat tad vai brahma | taittirīya-śākhāyām prathamāntam iti viśeṣaḥ | trailokyamohanādi-sarvasiddhipradānta-cakrāṣṭakayuktaṁ nava-yoni-ghaṭitaṁ anyeṣām asādhyam devatāvāsa-bhūtaṁ Śrī-cakra-nagaram yat tatrāpy uttamaḥ koṣo jyotir-mayaḥ svarga-tulyas trikoṇa-nāmak o 'sti | tasmin koṇe tridhā pratiṣṭhitaṁ tri-samaṣṭi-svarūpaṁ bindu-cakram asti | tasmin bindu-cakre svātmanīva yad yakṣam mahābhūtaṁ pūjanīyam tad brahmaiveti vāsanām ajñā (sic) jñānti. Substantially the same explanation²¹ of these two verses is given by him in his Lalitāsahasranāmabhāṣya (p. 179 of the Nirṇayasāgara ed.); but yakṣa is here explained as pūjyam only.

I have said above that the explanation of M. Boyer or one similar to it, which makes the verses refer to the sun as being the citadel in which Brahman dwells, is a quite possible one; and I have also said that the explanation of Bhāskararāya and other Tāntriks that makes them refer to the Śrī-cakra, is not a far-fetched one. I have further given an explanation of these verses above on the line followed by Sāyaṇa, which makes them refer to the human body. The reason why so many explanations are possible of these verses is this: the verses refer to the ātmanvat yakṣam (= ātmanvat bhūtam or bhūtātman) or the soul, dwelling in a koṣa. Now the soul in the body is identical with the puruṣa in the sun according to the teaching of the Upaniṣads; compare Taitt. Up. 3, 10, 4: sa yaś cāyam puruṣe | yaś cāsāv āditye | sa ekaḥ; Maitryu-paniṣad, 7, 7: yaś cāyam hṛdaye yaś cāsā āditye sa eṣa ekaḥ; and this explains why the kośa mentioned in v. 32 can be understood as the human heart or as the sun. The Śrī-cakra, too, as I have said above, is a symbol of the human body, and therefore the Tāntrik explanation of the verses is, in essence, one that refers to such body. Similarly the Upaniṣadic doctrine of the sun being identical with Brahman (compare Ch. Up. 3, 19, 1: ādityo brahmety ādeśaḥ and T.A. 2, 2, 2: asāv ādityo brahma) explains why some verses of the AV where the word yakṣa occurs have been referred to the sun by Henry and Boyer, and to Brahman by Geldner. In these verses yakṣa in effect refers to the Brahman, even where the interpretations do not contain that word at all, but refer instead to the sun or the soul.

²¹ To understand these explanations of Bhāskararāya, it is necessary to have a correct notion of how the Śrī-cakra is written, of its divisions and of its worship. These can be learnt from the Vāmakeśvara-tantra and the Tantrarāja-tantra in detail, and then it will become evident that the Tāntrik explanation of the various epithets found in these verses is superior to that of Sāyaṇa and of others who proceed on the same lines.

AV. 10, 8, 43: *puṇḍārikam nāvadvāram

“The lotus that has nine doors and that is enveloped thrice,—verily the knowers of Brahman know the animate being in it.” The ‘lotus with nine doors’ is, like the sheath, kośa, in the ‘fortress with nine gates’ in the verse explained above, the heart in the human body. The ‘nine doors’ are those of the human body, and the ‘lotus’ can be said to have them in a figurative sense only. The ‘triple envelope’ seems, as suggested by M. Boyer, to consist of satya (truth), yaśas (glory) and śrīḥ (beauty) which are said in AV. 12, 5, 2: satyénāvṛtā śriyā prāvṛtā yāśasā pārvīvṛtā to be the envelopes of the Brāhmaṇa’s cow, brahmagavī; compare the epithet jyotiṣā vṛtaḥ of the kośa mentioned in AV. 10, 2, 31 and the epithet yaśasā samparīvṛta used (in v. 33 of the same hymn) of the aparājitā pūḥ which, as I have said above, refers to the heart. Geldner explains the expression tribhir guṇabhir āvṛtam as 'enveloped by the three guṇas (i.e., sattva, rajas and tamas).'

AV. 10, 7, 38 : mahād yakṣām bhūvanasya mādhye

"The great being in the centre of the world has passed into tapas and into the back of the water ; they that are gods (that is, all the gods) rest attached in it as the branches of a tree round the trunk." The hymn 10, 7 in which this verse occurs is addressed to Skambha which, according to the Cūlikopaniṣad (v. 11), is another name of Brahman. The 'great being in the centre of the world,' referred to here, is therefore the Brahman ; and the word krāntam in the second pāda refers to the 'passing' or transformation of Brahman into tapas and water—an idea which we have met with above (p. 164), where it was said that tapas and water were first created by Brahman or were first born of Brahman. This verse, however, speaks instead of 'creation' or 'birth' (utpatti of the later Naiyāyikas ; compare the preceding verse but one, yāḥ śrāmāt tāpaso jātó lokān sārvaṇ samānaśé | tāsmāi jyeṣṭhāya brāhmaṇe nāmaḥ referring apparently to water) from Brahman, of the 'passing' or transformation (pariṇāma of the Sāṅkhya system,) of Brahman into tapas and Water ; and it is very remarkable that the pariṇāma doctrine of the Sāṅkhyas should be thus met with in the AV. With regard to the gods resting in the Brahman, compare RV. 1, 164, 39 : ṛcó akṣāre paramé vyòman yāsmiṇ devā ādhi víśve niṣedúḥ ; Kāthopaniṣad, 2, 1, 9 : taṁ devāḥ sarve 'rpitāḥ ; Kauṣītaki Up. 2, 9 : sa tud bhavati yatraite devāḥ. The word prṣṭhe has no particular significance here ; the expression salilasya prṣṭhe is simply equivalent to salile.

AV. 10, 8, 15 : dūrē pūrṇēna vasati dūrā ūnēna hiyate |

“ It lives far from the full ; it is abandoned in the distance by the not-full. The great being in the centre of the universe—to it bring tribute the rulers of kingdoms.” The great being at the centre of the universe is of course the Brahman that is far removed from the full and the not-full, from the big and the not-big, from the small and the not-small, etc.; compare the passage nyūnam anyat sthānam sampūrṇam anyat (the author of the Ratnaprabhā calls this a śruti) cited by Śaṅkara in the Brahmasūtra-bhāṣya in the course of his introduction to the Ānandamayādhikaraṇa along with Bṛhad. Up. 3, 8, 8 : asthūlam anany ahvasvam adīrgham “ It is not big, not small, not short, not long.” rāṣṭrabhṛtaḥ means, not feudatories (as M. Boyer understands), but those who rule kingdoms, or kings, that is, as Geldner has pointed out, the gods, the chief gods ; compare AV. 13, 1, 35 : yé devā rāṣṭrabhṛto 'bhūto yānti sūryam “ The kingdom-ruling gods who go round the sun ” ; and ibid. 10, 7, 39 | yaśmai hūstābhyām pādābhyām vācā śrótrena cakṣuṣā : yāśmai devāḥ sādā balim prayācchanti “ To which the gods always render tribute with the two hands, with the two feet, with speech, hearing and with sight.” These passages make it probable that the ‘ gods ’ spoken of here are the same as those mentioned in the Praśnopaniṣad, 2, 1—2 : bhagavan katy eva devāḥ prajāṁ vidhārayante katara etat prakāśayante kaḥ punar eṣāṁ variṣṭha iti ākāśo ha vā eṣa devo vāyur agnir āpaḥ pṛthivī vān manaś cakṣuḥ śrotraṁ ca “ How many gods, O venerable, uphold the creature (i.e., the body)? Which of them illumine it? And which again of them is the greatest? These gods verily are Ākāśa, Vāyu, Agni, Water, Earth, Speech, Mind, Eye and Ear”, that is to say, the prāṇas. Compare the story related in Bṛhad. Up. 6, 1 about the dispute that arose amongst the prāṇas as to who was the best and how the mukhya-prāṇa in whose favour the dispute was settled, made the others pay tribute to itself (6, 1, 13 : tasyo me balim kuruteti tatheti): compare also Kauṣitaki Up. 2, 1 : tasmai vā etasmai prāṇāya brahmaṇa etāḥ sarvā devatā ayācamānāya baliṃ haranti and Praśnopaniṣad, 2, 7.

VS. 34, 2 : *yēna kármāṇy apáso manīṣiṇo

“ May the manas (mind), that is in men, by means of which the wise ones, clever and intelligent, perform the rites in the sacrifice, in the religious ceremonies—may the manas that is in me, be auspiciously inclined.” This mantra is the second of the six śivasamkalpa-mantras that are found in the beginning of ch. 34 of the VS. The epithets applied to manas in these verses show that the manas spoken of is not the mind in men, but the ego or soul or Brahman; compare for instance, the epithet jyótiṣām jóytiḥ in v. 1, hṛt-prátiṣṭham in v. 6, and the description yát prajāñānam utá céto dhītiś ca yáj jyótir antár amítam prajāsu in v. 3, and yásminn icaḥ sáma yájūñṣi yásmin prátiṣṭhitā rathanābhāṇ ivārāḥ | yásminś cittaṃ sárvam ótam prajānām in v. 5. Hence the description of this manas in this verse as apūrvām yakṣam which means not only ‘wonderful being,’ as interpreted above, but also ‘the being before which none existed; first-born being’; compare Bṛhad. Up. 2, 5, 19 : tad etad brahmāpūrvam anaparam anantaram abāhyam. Compare also Ait. Ār., 5, 1, 1 : mana ivāpūrvam vāyur iva ślokaḥ bhūyāsam “ May I be ever new like manas (mind) the origin of śloka (sound; fame; Sāyaṇa, however, explains as saṅgha) like Vāyu,” and Sāyaṇa’s comment thereon : uttarottaram abhivṛddhikāṅkṣayā prayatamānam sat tat-tat-phala-prāptiā nūtanam rūpam pratipadyate.

RV. 1, 190, 4 : *asyá ślóko divīyate pṛthivyām

“ His voice rushes in heaven and in earth. He, the supporter of the universe, the wise, raised (his shouts or chants) as a horse (does his neigh). These chants of Bṛhaspati go forth, like missiles on beasts, on the enemies who are as crafty as Ahi.” yakṣabhī = the supporter of the universe, as Roth has correctly explained. It is the equivalent of the word bhūtabhī which is also used in the same sense; compare Bh. Gītā, 9, 5: bhūtabhī na ca bhūtaśtho mamātmā bhūtabhāvanah, ‘supporting the universe but not in it’; and Mahābhārata, 13, 254, 16 (Viṣṇu-sahasranāma): bhūtakṛd bhūtabhīd bhāvanah. I follow Geldner in supplying ślokaṃ in the second pāda as object of the verb yamṣat, and in understanding abhī dyūn (ought we not rather to read abhīdyūn as one word?) as ‘attackers’ or ‘enemies’. After imāḥ in the third pāda, we have to understand vācaḥ, gīraḥ or other similar word meaning ‘words; chants’, which Bṛhaspati as purohita makes use of on behalf of his patron (see Geldner, l.c., p. 137). These rush on the enemies and destroy them, as the arrows of a hunter speed towards the beasts and destroy them; compare p. 141 f. above and the Raghuvamśa verse (1, 61) cited there, addressed by King Dilīpa to his purohita: tava mantrakṛto mantrair dūrāt praśamitāribhiḥ | pratyādiśyanta iva me drṣṭa-lakṣya-bhidaḥ śarāḥ “ My arrows that are able to pierce such objects only as are visible to me are made to recede to the background by the mantras (spells) that have been employed by you, the mantra-maker, and that kill enemies from a far distance.” Note here too the comparison of the purohita’s spells with arrows shot at some object.

RV. 10, 88, 13: vaiśvānarām kavāyo yajñīyāso

“ The worshipful wise ones, the gods, engendered Agni Vaiśvānara, the imperishable, the ancient, mobile luminary (star), the supervisor of the universe, the mighty, the great." yakṣasya adhyakṣam or 'supervisor of the universe' is equivalent to 'lord of the universe'; compare 1, 98, 1 : vaiśvānarāśya sumataú syāma rājā hī kam bhūvanānām abhiśrīḥ | itó jātó víśvam idám ví caṣṭe vaiśvānaró yatate sūryeṇa "May we dwell in the favour of Vaiśvānara; he is the king and the ornament of the world. Born from here, Vaiśvānara beholds this world; he competes with the sun." Vaiśvānara is thus, in this latter verse, a being different from the sun, while in the former (10, 88, 13) the words nákṣatram áminac cariṣmú seem to indicate that Vaiśvānara is identical with the sun.

Śat. Br. 11, 4, 3, 5 : te haite brahmaṇo mahatī yakṣe |

"These two (sc. nāma and rūpa; name and form) are the two great beings (that is, forms, ex-istences) of Brahman. He who knows these two great beings (that is, forms, ex-istences) of Brahman, becomes himself a great being."

Kauśika-sūtra, 95, 1 : atha yatraitāni yakṣāṇi drśyante

"When these evil beings are seen, as for instance, an evil being having the form of a monkey, or of a beast of prey, or of a crow, or of man, then the same apprehension is to be felt." The word yakṣa here denotes 'evil being', and as monkeys, and crows can not, by themselves, be said to be evil beings. it follows that the words markataḥ and vāyasah denote evil beings having that form; compare RV. 7, 104, 18 : rakṣāsaḥ sām pinaṣṭana | vāyo yé bhūtvī patáyanti naktábhiḥ "Crush the demons who fly about at nights after having become (i.e., in the form of) birds." In other words, the word rūpam that forms the last element of the compound puruṣarūpam,

connects itself with each of the foregoing words markaṭaḥ, śvāpadaḥ and vāyasaḥ forming the compounds markaṭa-rūpam, śvāpadarūpam and vāyasarūpam (which together with puruṣarūpam are in apposition with, and qualify, the word yakṣāṇi). Now according to later grammatical usage the words markaṭa, śvāpada, vāyasa and puruṣa should be all joined together in a dvandva-compound and such compound be further joined with rūpa, forming a ṣaṣṭhi-tatpuruṣa, in order that the word rūpa may be connected with all these words—dvandvānte śrūyamāṇaṁ padam pratyekam abhisambadhyate. It is interesting to note that here rūpa connects itself with the words markaṭa, etc., though there is no dvandva or other compound, and the words stand singly in the nominative case. A similar usage is observable in the following mantra also that comes immediately after the above sentence: yan markaṭaḥ śvāpado vāyaso yadīdam rāṣṭram jātavedaḥ patāti puruṣa-rakṣasam iṣiram yat patāti | dviṣantam ete anuyantu sarve parāṅco yantu nivartamānāḥ. Here too the word rakṣasam that stands at the end of the compound puruṣa-rakṣasam has to be construed with markaṭaḥ, śvāpadaḥ and vāyasaḥ also used in the first pāda.

Instead of puruṣarūpam (yakṣam), the word puruṣa-rakṣasam is used in this latter mantra indicating that puruṣarūpam yakṣam = puruṣa-rakṣasam or evil being in the form of man.

The word yakṣa is found in Kh. 93 also of the Kauśika-sūtra, where too, it has the meaning 'evil being.'

"For thee are the beasts of the jungle, the animals placed in the forests, the swans, the kites, the birds great and small; thy might, O Paśupati, (is felt) in the waters; the divine waters flow for thy enhancement (that is, for the enhancement of thy glory).” In other words, ‘the beasts of the jungle, the birds of the air, and the rivers are subject to thy power and act as thou impellest them to act. Thy might is felt in the water, in the air, and on the earth.’ This praise is addressed to Paśupati or Rudra as the supreme god; and the ideas expressed here belong to the same class as those expressed in RV. 1, 101, 3: yásya vraté váruṇo yásya sūryaḥ | yásyēndrasya sīndhavaḥ sáscati vratám (‘in whose control is Varuṇa and the sun; whose, Indra’s, ordinance is followed by the rivers’); ibid. 2, 28, 4: ṛtām sīndhavo váruṇasya yanti | ná śrāmyanti ná ví mucanty eté (‘the rivers follow the ordinances of Varuṇa; they flow without tiring, without ceasing.’); AV. 13, 3, 2: yásmād vātā ṛtuthā pávante yásmāt samudrá ádhi vikṣárantī (‘on account of whom the winds blow in season and the oceans flow’). Compare also Bṛhad. RV. 5, 70, 4: mā kāsyādbhutakratū

yakṣām bhujemā tanúbhiḥ |

mā śéśasā mā tánasā ||

“May we not, O ye (Mitra and Varuṇa) who have wonderful strength, feel, either ourselves or in our offspring or in our posterity, the might of any one.” That is, ‘may we not feel the weight of the might of any one; may we not be oppressed by the thought that any one is more mighty than we ourselves and able to injure us.’ The expression yakṣām bhujema here is equivalent to the expression dakṣām bhujema in 4, 3, 13 which will be explained below.

RV. 7, 88, 6: yá āpír nītyo varuṇa priyāḥ sán

tvām āgāmsi kṛṇávat sákhā te |

mā ta énasvanto yakṣin bhujema

yandhí śmā vípraḥ stuvaté várūtham ||

“Who, O Varuṇa, being thy own dear friend and comrade, has committed evil against thee—may not we who have sinned, feel, O mighty one, thy (might); do thou that art wise offer protection to thy praiser.” We have to understand the word yakṣa here in the third pada as the object of the verb bhujema. The meaning is, ‘may we not suffer from thy might, that is, feel the weight of thy displeasure, on account of the sins that we have committed.’ The two ideas of eno bhujema (punishment for sins committed; compare 6, 51, 7; 7, 52, 2) and yakṣam bhujema (see 5, 70, 4 above) are combined here in this one pāda.

As I have already observed (see p. 18), the relative clause yá āpír nityah . . . tvām āgāmsi kṛṇávat qualifies vayam (understood) that is the subject of bhujema in the third pāda; as the plural vayam is only the pluralis majesticus, the use of the singular number in yah, etc., in the first two pādas and in stuvate (fourth pāda) is not improper.

RV. 7, 61, 5: ámūrā víśvā vṛṣaṇāv imā vām
ná yāsu citráṁ dádyše ná yakṣám | drúhaḥ sacante ánṛtā jánānām
ná vām ninyāny acíte abhūvan ||

“O ye wise and strong (sc. Mitra and Varuṇa), for you (are) all these (praises) in which is seen neither ornament (brilliance) nor substance. The Druhs follow the iniquities of men; secrets did not remain unknown to you.” The meaning of this verse is obscure. The author of the Padapāṭha reads the words amūrā and viśvā as duals and apparently construes them with the dual vṛṣaṇau referring to Mitra and Varuṇa, a view that is accepted by Geldner, but from which M. Boyer dissents. I believe that the Padapāṭha is right in reading amūrā (and referring it to Mitra and Varuṇa); at the same time, however, I believe that it is preferable to read viśvāḥ instead of viśvā (dual) and construe it with imāḥ, after which, I follow Sāyaṇa in supplying the word stutayaḥ (gīraḥ). The sense therefore of the first half-verse is, "These praises that we offer to you, O Mitra and Varuṇa are not polished and brilliant (do not contain alaṅkāras); nor is there substance in them, that is, there is no artha-gāmbhīrya or bhāva-gāmbhīrya in them; we pray that you will nevertheless take them to your heart and like them."

citra here does not signify āścarya as Sāyaṇa and, following him, Geldner, think, but rather 'ornament,' alaṅkāra; it has here the same sense as it has in books on rhetoric (kāvya-ālaṅkāra-śāstra) and means artha-citra (arthālaṅkāra) and śabdacitra (śabdālaṅkāra). It is an often-expressed sentiment of later books that a kāvya, stuti or other composition in words should, in order to be acceptable, contain alaṅkāras and yield a good meaning; compare, for instance, Subhāṣitaratnabhāṇḍāgāra, 5th edition, Kāvya-praśaṁsā, verses 17 and 21, in praise of alaṅkāra and vv. 22, 24 in praise of artha, and the expression bhāvālaṅkaraṇocitāgamavatī in v. 44; compare also v. 51 in ibid., p. 35: arthān kecid upāsate kṛpaṇavat kecit tv alaṅkurvate veśyāvat khalu dhātuvādina ivodbadhnanti kecid rasān | arthālaṅkṛti-sadrasa-dravamucām vācām praśastisprśām kartāraḥ kavayo bhavanti katicit puṇyair aganyair iha. The first two pādas of the above mantra too, give expression, as I think, to an idea in the same sphere; in them the poet confesses that his praises cannot be said to be good, that they contain neither alaṅkāra nor artha. Contrast in this respect Kumārasambhava, 2, 3: atha sarvasya dhātāraṁ te sarve sarvatomukham | vāgīśaṁ vāgbbhir arthyābbhiḥ praṇipatyopatasthire; Raghuvamśa, 4, 6: stutyaṁ stutibhir arthyābbhir upatasthe Sarasvatī; Nilakaṇṭhaviṇayacampū, 4, 16: iti stutibhir arthyābbhir dhyāyato niścalaṁ Śivam | aspandeṣu asya gātreṣu paśpande dakṣiṇo bhujāḥ. arthyā vāk means, as Mallinātha explains, arthayuktā vāk, speech or praise in which there is artha or bhāva or richness of content.

Compare further the opinion, cited and refuted by Viśvanātha in his Sāhityadarpaṇa (p. 14 ; Nirṇayasagara ed. 1902): sālaikārau śabdārthau kāvyam. Hence the authors of the Rāmāyaṇa and Kādambarī have said of these works that they have been constructed of 'brilliant' words and thoughts ; see Rām., 1, 2, 42 : udāra-vṛttārtha-padair manoramais tad asya Rāmasya cakāra kīrtimān yaśaskaram kāvyam udāradhīr muniḥ ; and Kādambarī, v. 9 of introduction : haranti kaṁ nojjvala-dīpa-kopamair navaiḥ padārthair upapāditāḥ kathāḥ.

For the second half-verse, I have, with much hesitation, given the explanation of M. Boyer as this seems to be better than that proposed by Sāyaṇa ; I feel however very doubtful whether either of these is the correct explanation.

RV. 4, 3, 13 : mā kāsya yakṣám sādām id dhuró gā
mā veśāsya praminató mápéḥ | mā bhrātur agne ānṛjor ṛṇám ver
mā sákhyur dákṣam ripór bhujema ||

"Do not at any time go to the sacrifice of any enemy (literally, injurer) or harmful neighbour or comrade ; do not get into the debt, O Agni, of our crooked brother ; may we not suffer from the power of our friend (turned into) enemy." I have already said above (p. 165) that the view of the Indian commentators that yakṣa is derived from the root yaj is justified by the parallelism of the words yakṣa and yajña in AV. 8, 9, 8. Sāyaṇa is therefore right in explaining yakṣa here as yajña, sacrifice. The expression, 'do not get into the debt of our crooked brother,' in pāda c signifies the same as pāda a ; it means, 'do not go to the sacrifice of, and partake of the offerings given by, our deceitful brother' ; for the term 'debt' when used of a deity with reference to a human, means, as has been shown by Geldner, l.c., pp. 133, 134, the debt that such deity owes to a human in return for the offerings that have been made and accepted; compare also Bh. Gitā, 3, 11-12 in this connection. Similarly, the fourth pada too, seems to refer indirectly to the same thing, to implore Agni not to attend the sacrifice of the friend who has turned inimical and make him rich and powerful in return. This verse therefore is one of the class that implore the deities not to favour by their presence the sacrifices of rival yajamānas; see Hillebrandt, Ved. Myth. I, pp. 119 ff.; and Bloomfield, Johns Hopkins University Circulars 1906, no. 10, p. 1049 ff.

RV. 7, 55, 16 : *átyāso ná yé marútaḥ svāñco

vatsāso ná prakrīṇaḥ payodhāḥ ||*

“They who are swift like coursers, the youths, (sc. Maruts) made themselves bright (that is, decked themselves with ornaments), like people that (go to) see sacrifices; they are radiant like children that are in mansions and frisky like calves that drink”. Sāyaṇa explains yakṣa here as utsava, festival. Now, yakṣa, as we know, means ‘sacrifice,’ ‘worship’; and many of the Soma-sacrifices were in fact grand festivals and are explicitly called or described by the name of utsava in the Purāṇas and Itihāsas.

Compare, for instance, the following passages :
Śrīmad-bhāgavata, 4, 3, 3 ff. :

*Byhaspatisavam nāma samārebhe kratūttamam ||3||

Satidevi, the daughter of Dakṣa, hearing of this from the chatter of those going in the sky, and seeing near her dwelling the wives of Upadevas (i.e., of Gandharvas, Kinnaras, Kimpuruṣas, etc.) going with their husbands in vimānas from all directions, wearing fine clothes and necklaces and brilliant ear-rings and with eyes glancing here and there, said to her lord Śiva in excitement: 'The grand festival-like sacrifice of thy father-in-law, the Prajapati, has, I hear, commenced See also other women going there in troops, wearing jewels, in the company of their husbands, O thou that art birth-less.'"

Mahābhārata, 2, 72, 1 : *tataḥ sa Kururājasya

"Then was celebrated, O king, the sacrifice of the Kuruid king in which not one rite was wanting, the grand festival, causing delight."

"Then took place that sacrifice of the wise Dharmaraja And this sacrifice that was like a great festival and was attended by many joyous and thriving people was extolled by people that lived in different countries (who were present at it)."

Read also the descriptions of the Rājasūya sacrifice celebrated by Yudhiṣṭhira given in the Mahabhārata (2, 71) and Bhāgavata, 10, 75.

It is therefore not surprising if, in the circumstances, the word yakṣa, meaning 'sacrifice' took on the meaning of utsava also, though as regards this verse, it is not necessary to assume this latter meaning for yakṣa. The original meaning itself, namely, 'sacrifice,' fits in well with the context here. Compare the passage cited above from the Bhāgavata where it is said that the wives of Upadevas were going to the yajña-mahotsava wearing fine clothes and jewels in the company of their husbands, and the passage cited above (p.155) from the Jñātādharmakathā that describes the dress and jewels worn by ugras, ugraputras, Brāhmaṇas, Kṣatriyas, etc., on days of Indramaha, Yakṣamaha and similar other utsavas. See also the description of the city and people on the occasion of kaumudī-mahotsava given in Hemādri, l.c., p. 352 and in Jñātādharmakathā, p. 536. It becomes clear from all these that the people used to put on in former times (as in fact they do now) fine clothes and jewels when going to grand sacrifices or other utsavas; and the Maruts are compared with such people because they always deck themselves with ornaments; see 5, 54, 11; 5, 55, 6; 5, 60, 4, etc., and Macdonell's Ved. Mythology, p. 79.

śubhrāḥ, radiant, in pāda 3, means, as is indicated by the context, 'clean, speckless, spotless'; and payodhāḥ vatsāḥ means 'young calves'.

Gobhila-grhyasūtra, 3, 4, 28: ācāryam sapariṣatkam abhyetyācāryapariṣadam ikṣate yakṣam iva cakṣuṣaḥ priya vo bhūyāsam iti ||

"Approaching the teacher with his entourage, he looks at the teacher and entourage (saying): 'May I be pleasing to your eye like a sacrifice.'" I have here, like M. Boyer and Geldner, construed cakṣuṣaḥ with priya. Oldenberg has, however, contended (RI. Notizen, II, p. 45) that this is not right and that such construction would be proper only if the text had read yakṣam iva cakṣuṣo vaḥ priyo bhūyāsam. He therefore maintains that the correct meaning is, "May I be dear to you as the wonderful thing is to the eye" (as already noted above, yakṣa = 'wonderful thing' for Oldenberg) and that the 'wonderful thing' here is the pupil of the eye! But, apart from the consideration that one fails to understand why the pupil of the eye should be called a 'wonderful thing' (the passage from Śat. Br. to which Oldenberg refers has no bearing at all in this connection) the idea of comparing a thing to the pupil of the eye in respect of dearness is one that is foreign to Sanskrit literature.

As regards however the above-mentioned contention itself, it must be admitted that there is some force in it; but, as yakṣa does not mean 'pupil of the eye' but 'sacrifice' (or perhaps utsava) here, it makes in effect no difference whether cakṣuṣaḥ is construed with priya or not. In the first case, the meaning is, "May I be pleasing to your eye like a sacrifice". In the second case, the meaning is, "May I be pleasing to you as a sacrifice is pleasing to the eye"; and the expression 'may I be pleasing to you' here obviously means 'may I be pleasing to your eye.' In any case, therefore, the sense of the mantra is, "May I be dear to your eyes as a grand sacrifice; may you have as much pleasure in looking at me as people have in looking at a grand sacrifice or other similar utsava." Compare RV. 7, 84, 3: kṛtām no yajñām vidátheṣu cārum kṛtām bráhmāṇi sūriṣu praśastā 'Make our sacrifice handsome (or beloved) amongst assemblies, make our hymns laudable amongst poets'; 10, 100, 6: yajñás ca bhūd vidáthe cārur ántamaḥ 'May the sacrifice be handsome (or dear) and most cherished in the assembly'; and the expression cārum adhvaram 1, 19, 1 and 5, 71, 1. See also Mahābhārata, 14, 90, 43 cited above from which we learn that the people of all countries flocked to see the sacrifice celebrated by Yudhiṣṭhira and 2, 72, 1 ibid. where the epithet prītikara is applied to the sacrifice.

Compare also ibid., 2, 71, 44-45 :

lokesmin sarva-viprāś ca vaiśyāḥ śūdrā nṛpādayaḥ |
sarve mlecchāḥ sarvajanās tv ādi-madhyāntajās tathā ||44||
nānādeśa-samudbhūtair nānājātibhir āgataiḥ |
paryāpta iva lokoyaṁ Yudhiṣṭhira-niveśane ||45||

“ All the Brāhmaṇas in this world and all Kṣatriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras, all Mlecchas, and all people of all castes, the highest, lowest and middle castes, (were there). From the people, born in different countries and of different castes, that were present there, it seemed as if the whole world was contained in the dwelling of Yudhiṣṭhira ” ; and ibid., 2 71, 16 :

Jambūdvīpo hi sakalo nānājanapadāyutaḥ |
rājann adṛśyataikastho rājñas tasmin mahākratau ||

‘ The whole of Jambūdvīpa with all its different countries, O king, was seen assembled at one place in the grand sacrifice of that king.’ These grand sacrifices were thus so beloved that the people used to flock to them.

I take the word ācāryapariṣadam as a dvandva compound meaning ‘ the teacher and his entourage.’

AV. 11, 6, 10 : dīvaṁ brūmo nákṣatrāṇi
bhūmim yakṣāṇi párvatān | samudrāṁ nadyò veśantās
té no muñcantv āmhasaḥ ||

“ We praise the sky, the constellations of stars, the earth, the trees, and the mountains. The oceans, rivers and ponds—may they free us from evil.” The word yakṣāṇi here has been explained as Yakṣas (followers of Kubera) by Henry (Les Livres X, XI et XII de l' Atharvaveda, pp. 118 and 155), Bloomfield (Hymns of the Atharvaveda, p. 161), and Hillebrandt (Garbe-festschrift,

p. 22) and as 'Naturwunder und Naturschönheiten wie die grossen Bäume' by Geldner (l.c. p. 143). Geldner's explanation is almost correct, but the way by which he arrives at it is not, in my opinion, the proper way. yakṣāṇi signifies trees here not because yakṣa means 'Wunder,' citra, but because the trees are here regarded as the abode of Yakṣas or superhuman beings.

I have said above (p. 156) that the temples dedicated to Yakṣas had the name of caitya also. This name caitya, it may be remarked, is applied to trees also, to trees that are wellgrown and rich in foliage and are regarded as being the abodes of superhuman beings ; cp. Trikāṇḍaśeṣa, 2, 4, 2 : caityo devatarur devāvāse karabha-kuñjarau : Mahābhārata, 12, 68, 44f. caityānām sarvathā tyājyam api patrasya pātanam ||44|| devānām āśrayās caityā yakṣa-rākṣasabhoginām | piśāca-pannagānām ca gandharvāpsarasām api | raudrānām caiva bhūtānām tasmāt tāt parivarjayet and also the Mahābhārata verse given in 1, 49, Hiḍimbavadha in Bopp's Ardschuna's Reise zu Indra's Himmel. The name caitya thus is applied to a tree for the same reason that it is applied to a temple—namely, because the tree is, like the temple, the abode of a yakṣa, bhūta or other supernatural being and is thus holy and deserving of worship. The same is the case with the word yakṣa also ; this name is applied to temples as also to trees, that are the abodes of yakṣas, bhūtas or similar superhuman beings and are thus holy and deserving of worship. I have cited above (p. 156) instances of the word yakṣa denoting temples ; this verse offers an instance of the word yakṣa denoting trees.

This closes the list of passages where the word yakṣa (neuter) occurs. M. Boyer however is of opinion that this word yakṣa is found, further, (as a component of the word yakṣya) in RV. 8, 60, 3 also : āgne kavīr vedhā asi hótā pāvaka yākṣyaḥ | mandró yājiṣṭho adhvarēṣu idyo viprebhiḥ śukra mánmabhiḥ and has explained yakṣya

there as 'having a marvellous form.' As he has himself observed, however, (l.c., p. 394) the expression hótā pāvaka yákṣyaḥ in 8, 60, 3 is parallel to agnīḥ pāvaká idyaḥ in 3, 27, 4, to súciḥ pāvaká idyaḥ in 7, 15, 10, and to súciḥ pāvaka vúndyaḥ in 2, 7, 4; and since the word yakṣa itself is, as has been shown above, derived from the root yaj, there is not the least doubt that yákṣya comes from yaj 'to worship.' I believe therefore that the verse means: "Thou, O Agni, art the wise one, the worshipper, and the adorable hotṛ, O purifier; thou art dear, the most capable in sacrificing, praised in sacrifices, O brilliant one, with hymns by priests."

The meanings of yakṣa therefore are: 1. worship, sacrifice (and perhaps utsava, festival). 2. (a) being (concrete), beings in the collective, the creation, universe, world; a particular class of superhuman beings; evil beings, evil spirits; (b) being (abstract); reality, essence, principle, substance, virtue, power, might. The meanings enumerated under 2. are those of the word bhūta which is a synonym of yakṣa and of sattva which is a synonym of bhūta; they seem to be rūḍhi meanings, while those enumerated under 1 are clearly yoga meanings.

It becomes apparent from what has gone above that yakṣa masculine has the same relation to yakṣa neuter as bhūta masculine bears to bhūta neuter. bhūta neuter has a large number of meanings (see above; see also Apte, s.v., and PW) including those of 'being (concrete), a class of superhuman being; evil being'; while bhūta masculine has these meanings only and no other. Similarly yakṣa masculine too means the same, namely, 'being (concrete), superhuman being, evil being' while yakṣa neuter signifies these things, and also, many other things in addition. Similar too, it may be noted, is the relation of sattva masculine to sattva neuter; the masculine word signifies 'being (concrete), not-human being, (and not 'superhuman being' only; sattva is used of animals), evil being' while the neuter word has these as well as other significations.

This explains the use of the word yakṣa masculine in Buddhist literature in contexts where the usual meaning of guhyaka or 'follower of Kubera' is inappropriate, and where therefore the translators have in some cases felt perplexed. Thus, in Samyutta Nikāya, III, 2, 25 (and elsewhere too; see Index to the Transl. of Sam. Nik. in SBE., vol. 10), Māra (who is not a guhyaka or follower of Kubera) is called a yakkha; in the Milinda-pañha, IV. 4. 32 (p. 202), the term yakkha is used in connection with Devadatta and the Bodhisatta who were at that time (see Jātaka-story No. 457; vol. IV, pp. 100 ff.) born as devaputtas. Similarly, in the translation of this book (SBE. vol. 35, p. 289, n. 2), Prof. Rhys Davids has observed that 'this is by no means the only instance of the term yakkha being used of gods.' In the same way, Prof. Kern has noted (Manual of Indian Buddhism, p. 59, n. 9) that the epithet yakkha is applied sometimes to Indra (e.g., in Majjh. Nik. I, p. 251) and the Buddha (f. i. in ibid., I, p. 386: āhuṇeyyo yakkho uttamapuggalo atulo) and that it is used of devaputtas in Sam. Nik., I, p. 54.²² The expression yakkhassa suddhi too is found used in Sam. Nik. III, 4, 25 and IV, 11, 14-15: ettāvat' aggaṃ pi vadanti h' eke yakkhassa suddhiṃ idha paṇḍitāse which Fausböll has translated (SBE., vol. 10, p. 167) as: "Thus some (who are considered) wise in this world say that the principal (thing) is the purification of the yakkha," without however saying anything as to what is intended by the 'purification of the yakkha.'

In the light of what has been said above about the meaning of the word yakṣa, it is easy to see that this word means 'evil being' when it refers to Māra. When used in connection with devaputtas, it means in all probability, 'superhuman being,' while when used of Indra and the Buddha, it is probable that it signifies, as has been suggested by Kern (l.c.), 'a being to be worshipped or a mighty being'—a meaning that combines in itself the two different significations of 'being (concrete)' and of 'worship' or 'might' (see p. 21 above). The expression yakkhassa suddhi which is equivalent to bhūtasya śuddhi or bhūta-śuddhi is somewhat ambiguous. In Tāntrik practice, the term bhūtaśuddhi signifies the cleansing or purification of the bhūtas or elements ('earth,' 'water,' 'fire,' etc.), that make up the body of the worshipper, and is one of the many preliminary acts that precede and lead up to the worship proper of the chief deity; see Principles of Tantra (II, pp. 365 ff.) by A. Avalon, pp. 41 ff., of Mantramahārṇava, ch. 8 of Devī-bhāgavata, etc.; compare also Rāmatāpanyupaniṣad, 5, 1 : bhūtādikaṃ śodhayed dvārapūjāṃ ca kṛtvā padmādyāsanasthaḥ prasannaḥ " (The worshipper) should cleanse the elements (of his body) etc., then after worshipping the gates, assuming the padmāsana or other posture, with calm mind" I feel however doubtful if it is this Tāntrik practice that is referred to by the Saṃ. Nik., the more so, as this is a preliminary act to which not much importance is attached. And I am inclined to believe that the bhūtaśuddhi mentioned here refers perhaps to the cleansing or purification of the bhūta—being or self, through the eradication of what Āpastamba calls bhūtadāhīyā doṣāḥ 'blemishes or vices that sear, that is, destroy, the being or self,' consisting of anger, elation, covetousness, etc.; see Āpastamba-dharmasūtra, 1, 23, 5. By the eradication of these through yoga, says Āpastamba, the wise man attains 'security (abhaya)'—an expression which is explained by Haradatta as abhayaṃ mokṣam, 'the liberation where there is no more fear'; compare ibid., 1, 23, 3 : doṣāṇāṃ tu nirghāto yogamūla iha jīvite | nirhṛtya bhūtadāhīyān

kṣemam gacchati paṇḍitaḥ "In this life, the destruction of vices (is to be accomplished) by means of yoga; after getting rid of the vices that sear the being, that is, the self, the wise man attains security." Compare also ibid., 1, 23, 6 : tāny anutiṣṭhan vidhinā sārva-gāmī bhavati "He who practises these (yogas that eradicate the bhūtadāhīya-doṣas) according to rule, attains the All." A third interpretation also is possible of the term yakkhasya suddhi; yakṣasuddhi or bhūtasuddhi or 'the purification of the being (self)' may be understood as the purification of the being or sattvasuddhi that is spoken of in Ch. Up., 7, 26, 2 : āhāra-śuddhau sattva-śuddhiḥ sattva-śuddhau dhruvā smṛtiḥ | smṛtilambhe sarvagranthīnām vipramokṣaḥ | tasmai mṛditakaṣāyāya tamasaḥ pāram darśayati bhagavān Sanatkumāraḥ "When the food becomes pure, the being (sattva; according to Śaṅkara, this denotes antaḥkaraṇa here) becomes pure; when the being becomes pure, an unfailing memory (will be established); by the attainment of memory, all knots are severed; and to him whose impurity (kaṣāya) is (thus) overcome, Lord Sanatkumāra will show (the Brahman) beyond the darkness." As the Sam. Nik. says nothing more about yakkhasya suddhi, of the causes which lead up to it or of the effects which this leads to, it is not possible to determine which of these three ideas was intended by the author; perhaps, it is the second of those mentioned above.

The word yakṣá leads us to the nearly-allied word ābhva, of which no satisfactory explanation has yet been given by the exegetists. This word is enumerated twice in the Nighaṇṭu, once amongst the udaka-nāmāni (1. 12) and once amongst the mahan-nāmāni (3. 3). These two meanings udaka and mahat, however, are inadequate to explain the sense of many passages in which the word occurs; and hence Sāyaṇa has, in his RV. Commentary, been obliged to suggest other explanations for this word. He thus explains it as 'enemy' (ābhavatīty abhvaḥ śatruḥ) in 1, 39, 8, as 'speed' (vega) in 1, 24, 6, as 'cloud' (megha) in 1, 168, 9; and even when seemingly retaining the meaning mahat, he practically helps himself with new meanings when he explains abhva as ati-viśṛtām jagat in 2, 33, 10, mahad dhanam in 5, 49, 5, mahat karma in 6, 4, 3, mahat sarvaṁ vastu-jātam in 6, 71, 5, and mahato bhaya-hetoḥ pāpāt in 1, 185, 2-8. Of the European exegetists, Roth explains the word as 'Unding; Ungeheur; Unheimlichkeit; ungeheure Macht, Grösse, u. s. w.; Schwüle'; and Grassmann repeats these explanations with the addition of two more, 'der Widerwärtige, das Ungethum; das grauenerregende Dunkel.' Bergaigne, in his article on this word in his Etudes sur le lexique du RV, comes to the conclusion that it means 'obscurity; evil in general; demoniacal might,' and in one passage (Śata. Br. 11, 2, 3, 5) 'might' in general, while Geldner, in his article on this word in Ved. St., vol. 3 (p. 117 f.), has followed the lead of Roth and set down 'Schrecknis, Graus, Schreckensgestalt, Schreckenserscheinung, Gespenst, Spuk, Popanz' as the meaning of this word. Substantially the same explanation is given of this word by him in his Glossar also.

How insufficient these meanings are to explain the sense of the passages in which the word ābhva occurs will become clear to every one who reads Geldner's interpretation of them in the course of his article mentioned above. And particularly, in one of these passages, namely, in Śata. Br. 11, 2, 3, 3-5 :

*atha brahmaiva parārdham agacchat | tat parārdham
gatvaikṣata katham nū imāñi lokān pratyaveyām iti | tad
dvābhyām eva pratyavaid rūpṇa caiva nāmnā ca | sa yasya kasya ca nāmāsti tan nāma yasyo api nāma nāsti*

*yad veda rūpenedam rūpam iti tad rūpam | etavad va idam
yāvad rūpam caiva nāma ca | te haite brahmaṇo mahatī
abhve | sa yo haite brahmaṇo mahatī abhve veda mahad
dhaivābhvam bhavati | te haite brahmaṇo mahatī yakṣe | sa yo haite brahmaṇo mahatī yakṣe veda mahad dhaiva
yakṣam bhavati ||*

it is hard to believe, as Geldner would have us do, that nāma and rūpa are here to be understood as the two ghore rūpe or Popanze or Phantome of Brahman, and that he who thus knows nāma and rūpa as the two ghore rūpe or Popanze or Phantome of Brahman, becomes himself a ghoram rūpam or Popanz or Phantom.

The clue to the real meaning of the word abhva is contained in the above-cited passage itself, in which the sentence te haite brahmaṇo mahatī abhve | sa yo haite brahmaṇo mahatī abhve veda mahad dhaivābhvam bhavati is closely parallel to the sentence following: te haite brahmaṇo mahatī yakṣe | sa yo haite brahmaṇo mahatī yakṣe veda mahad dhaiva yakṣam bhavati. This parallelism indicates that the word abhva has the same value as the word yakṣa. Now in the article preceding on yakṣa, I have shown that this word has the value of bhūta and that it means (a) being (concrete); beings in the collective, the creation, universe, world; a particular class of superhuman beings; evil being, evil spirit; (b) being (abstract); reality, essence, principle, substance, virtue, power, might. These are the meanings of abhva also, and I shall now show that these meanings fit well into the context in all the passages where this word occurs. I begin with the above-cited passage Śata. Br. 11, 2, 3, 3-5, which I translate as—

“Then the Brahman itself went up to the sphere beyond. Having gone up to the sphere beyond, it considered, ‘How can I descend again into these worlds?’ It then descended again by means of these two—Form and Name. Whatever has a name, that is Name; and that again which has no name and which one knows by its form, 'This is (its) form,' is Form: as far as there are Form and Name, so far, indeed, (extends) this universe. These, indeed, are the two great beings (i.e., manifestations) of the Brahman; and, verily, he who knows these two great beings (i.e., manifestations) of the Brahman becomes himself a great being. These, indeed, are the two great beings (i.e., forms, ex-istences) of the Brahman; and, verily, he who knows these two great beings (i.e., forms, ex-istences) of the Brahman becomes himself a great being."

Śata. Br. 3, 2, 1, 25-28: so 'yaṁ yajño vācam abhidadhyau mithuny etayā syām iti | tāṁ sambabhūva | indro ha vā ikṣāṁcakre | mahad vā ito 'bhvaṁ janīṣyate | yajñasya ca mithunād vācaś ca | yaṁ mā tan mā 'bhibhaved iti sa indra eva garbho bhūtvaitan mithunaṁ praviveśa | sa ha samvatsare jāyamāna ikṣāṁcakre | mahā-vīryā vā iyaṁ yonir yā mām adīdharata | yad vai meto mahad evābhvaṁ nānuprajāyeta yaṁ mā tan nābhibhaved iti | tāṁ prati-parāmrśyāveṣṭyācchinat ||

"That Yajña (sacrifice) lusted after Vāc (speech) thinking, 'May I pair with her.' He united with her. Indra then thought within himself, 'Surely a great being will be born out of this union of Yajña and Vāc: [I must take care] lest it should vanquish me.' Indra himself then became an embryo and entered into that union. When being born after a year's time, he thought within himself, 'Verily, of great potency is this womb which has contained me: [I must take care] that no great being will be born from it after me, that it should not vanquish me.' Having seized and pressed it tightly, he cut it off."

RV. 1, 63, 1: *tvāṁ mahāñ indra yó ha śúṣmair
dyāvā jajñānāḥ prthivī āme dhāḥ |

“Thou art great, O Indra, that, when being born, didst set Heaven and Earth in agitation through thy strength; and when, from fear of thee, all beings, even firm mountains, trembled like particles of dust.” The correct reading is viśvā and ábhvā, neuter, as given in the Padapāṭha (see also Bergaigne, op. cit.), and not viśvāḥ and ábhvāḥ as assumed by Roth (PIV) and Geldner (op. cit.). viśvā ábhvā=viśvāni bhūtāni=all beings, that is, the creation, the world, the universe; and Bergaigne (op. cit.) has rightly observed that ‘viśvā . . . ábhvā sont l’expression d’un tout dont les montagnes, girāyaś cit, font partie.’ Compare 1, 61, 14: asyéd u bhiyā girāyaś ca dṛḥā dyāvā ca bhūmā janūśas tujete; 4, 17, 2: táva tviṣó janīman rejata dyaú réjad bhūmir bhiyāsā svāsya manyóḥ | rghāyānta subhvāḥ párvatāsa árdan dhānvāni saráyanta āpah ||

“Thou, O venerable, carriest bow and arrows; thou, O venerable, the all-formed necklace deserving of worship. Thou, O venerable, rulest all this universe; there is none, O Rudra, more mighty than thou.” Or, should we take ábhvam here in the sense of ‘evil being’ and translate the third pāda as ‘Thou, O venerable, cuttest to pieces all the evil beings here’ (compare Max Müller’s translation in SBE. 32, 427: ‘Worthily thou cuttest every fiend here to pieces’) or as ‘Thou, O venerable, rulest all these evil beings’? Rudra is, as we know, the lord of all evil beings (known as pramatha or bhūta in later literature) not only in post-Vedic literature but even in the Yajus-saṁhitās; compare TS. IV. 5, 11, 1: yé (sc. rudrāḥ) bhūtānām ádhipatayo viśikhāsaḥ kapardīnaḥ. Compare also Śāṅkh. ŚS. 4, 20, 1 and Sāyaṇa’s commentary, eṣa devaḥ | eṣa iti hastena pradarśya rudro ’bhidhiyate | tat

“He, Savitr, raised high his (two) golden well-formed arms, like a speaker; he climbed over the heights of heaven and of the earth; he stopped all swift-moving beings.” upavaktā = a speaker, one who harangues others, an orator; that is, one who calls for the attention of other people. To attract attention, such speaker holds his hands high; compare Ratnapālanṛpakathānaka (Bhavanagar ed., p. 5), st. 106: nivartayantī tumulam hastam utkṣīpya dūrataḥ | avocat spaṣṭa-vācaivam saṁrabdhān sarva-bhūbhujah; ZDMG. 54, 529: yogīndraḥ śanaiś-śanair dhyānam muktva hasann evam uvāca | kiṁ kasmāi pradīyate | kas trāyate bhavārṇavāt | sa nara ūrdhva-bāhur evam jagāda | dhanāyāham tavātithiḥ; Bhārata-pañcadaśopodghāta, p. 26: satyam satyam punaḥ satyam uddhṛtya bhujam ucyate | Bhāratān na param śāstram cāsti loke mahārthadam. So also does Savitr; compare 2, 38, 2: vīśvasya hī śruṣṭāye devā ūrdhvāḥ prā bāhāvā pṛthupāṇiḥ śisarti | āpaś cid asya vratā ā nīmṛgrā ayām cid vāto ramate pārijman. “He, the god (sc. Savitr) with wide-extending hands, holds forth his arms aloft for the hearing of the universe (that is, that the world may pay attention to him and hear him); even the Waters follow his law; this Vāta even stops in his course (at his command).”¹

“VI, 71, 5. wie ein upavaktar hat er seine arme ausgestreckt, Savitar, der gott: dies kann nicht im allgemeinen ‘wie ein herbeirufender’ bedeuten, weil das ausstrecken der arme zunächst nicht das

I follow Sāyaṇa in asking patayat as a participle. The sense of the third pāda is, 'he checks, he causes to stop, all things.' Compare 2, 38, 3 : ārīramad ātamānaṁ cid étoḥ | ahyārṣūṇāṁ cin ny àyāñ aviṣyām "He (sc. Savitr) stopped even the swift-moving (wind) from moving ; he checked the course of even those who were pressing forward like ahīs." Compare 2, 38, 2 explained above and also 7, 56, 19 : imé turām marúto rāmayanti "These Maruts bring the swift-moving one to a halt."

1, 92, 5 : práty arcī rúśad asyā adarśi
ví tiṣṭhate bādhate kṛṣṇám ābhvam | svārum ná péso vidátheṣv añjāñ
citrām divó duhitā bhānúm aśret ||

"Her (sc. the Dawn's) bright light is seen ; it spreads itself and dispels the black being. Adorning the sacrificial post in sacrifices as if with an ornament, the Daughter of Heaven has spread her brilliant light."

It is possible to translate ābhvam here as 'substance' or as 'evil being' also. In any case the sense of the passage remains the same as it is the darkness that is herbeirufen als solches charakterisierendes ist, wol aber wenn es sich um ein herbeirufen im speciellen sinne handelt, bei welchem gewisse äusserliche bewegungen regelmässig stattfinden und selbstverständlich sind, wie es eben das ausbreiten der arme bei anrufung der götter überall ist (vgl. III, 14, 5. VI, 16, 46. 63, 3. X, 79, 2)."

This opinion seems to me to be incorrect. In the first place, the verses 3, 14, 5, etc., referred to by Ludwig, allude to the stretching or spreading of the arms in front (uttānahasta) ; this is quite different from raising the arms on high which is a characteristic of one who wants to attract the attention of others. Compare the passages cited above. (As a matter of fact, the raising high of the arms is a gesture that is used every-where by every one, including school-children, to attract the attention of other people). Secondly, not one of the Śrauta ritual books prescribe that the upavakṛ (that is, the maitrāvaruṇa or praśāstr ; see Oldenberg, Religion des Veda ², 390 : Ludwig's suggestion that he is the acchāvāka is untenable) should raise his hands high on any occasion.

referred to by that word (see Bergaigne, op. cit.). Compare 7, 77, 1 : ákar jyótir bádhamānā támāmsi, " She (sc. Uṣas) made light after dispelling darkness " ; 7, 78, 2 : uṣā yāti jyótiṣā bádhamānā víśvā támāmsi duritāpa devī " The goddess Uṣas goes, dispelling with her light all darkness and evil " ; 7, 80, 2 : gūḍhvī támo jyótiṣoṣā abodhi " She (sc. Uṣas) has awakened hiding the darkness with her light."

The sense of the third pāda is not very clear. I follow Pischel (Ved. St., 2, 124) in taking añján as standing for añjantī and translate it as above. The top of the sacrificial post that is touched and illuminated by the bright ray, citró bhānúḥ, of the Dawn appears as if adorned with ornaments ; and hence, Uṣas is said to adorn the post, as it were, with a jewel. Compare 1, 92, 1 : etā u tyā uṣásah ketúm akrata pūrve árdhe rájaso bhānīm añjate ; 7, 79, 2 : vy añjate divó ánteṣv aktūn víśo ná yuktā uṣáso yatante ; 7, 78, 1 : prāti ketávaḥ prathamā adṛśrann ūrdhvā asyā añjáyo ví śrayante ; 1, 113, 14 : vy añjibhir divá ātāsv adyaut, where Uṣas is said to ' adorn ' with her rays or where her rays themselves are called ornaments, and also 3, 8, 9 : śukrā vāsānāḥ sváravo na āguḥ " The sacrificial posts bearing bright ornaments have come to us ", where the ornaments of sacrificial posts are referred to.

“Then those (flames) of this (Agni) move swiftly forward destroying the black being, and putting on great splendour when he goes caressing the wide earth, panting, thundering, roaring.” dhvasāyantaḥ in the first pada does not mean ‘sparkling’ as Oldenberg (SBE. 46, 141) understands; nor is the expression kṛṣṇām ābhvam the object (Oldenberg, l.c., Geldner, op. cit., p. 121) of kārikrataḥ in addition to māhi vārpaḥ. As the passage rātho ha vām bhūri vārpaḥ kārikrat (‘your chariot that has put on much splendour’) in 3, 58, 9 shows, vārpaḥ alone is the object of kārikrataḥ in the above verse, and not kṛṣṇām ābhvam also. This latter is the object of dhvasāyantaḥ, ‘destroying, pulverising,’ which is derived from the root dhvas, dhvaṁs ‘to destroy, to pulverise.’

“The evil spirit, O Maruts, that has been sent by you or by mortals, and is rushing on us—remove it from us by strength, by might, through your protections.” ūti, protection, denotes here really the deeds of prowess done by the Maruts in order to protect; compare 1, 129, 5: ní śū namātimatiṁ kāyasya cit téjīṣṭhābhir arāṇibhir nótibhir ugrābhir ugrotibhiḥ* “Suppress well the pride of any one with thy fierce protections, i.e., deeds of prowess, that are most brilliant like firesticks, O thou fierce one." According to Sāyaṇa, Max Müller (SBE. 32, 97) and Ludwig, the second distich means, 'deprive him of power, of strength, and of your favours.' This interpretation however implies that the Maruts sometimes help the evil spirits sent by mortals, and hence does not seem to be satisfactory.

sánemy ábhvaṃ marúto jananti | agnis cid dhí śmātasé śusukvān
āpo ná dvīpāṃ dadhati práyāṃsi ||

"That spear of thine, O Indra, has been attached (to thy body) on our behalf; the Maruts drive away totally the evil being. He has burnt up (the evil spirits) as Agni does brushwood; they bear food as the Waters, the island." This stanza is obscure, and in pādas c and d there is nothing to indicate who it is that is said to be śusukvān and to carry food. According to Geldner (RV. Ueber., p. 222), who refers to the occurrence of the phrase dadhati prayāṃsi in 3, 30, 1 and 10, 91, 9 (10, 91, 1 is a misprint), the two pādas refer to the men who prepare the sacrifice; śusukvān stands really for śusukvāṃsaḥ and the meaning of the two pādas is, "denn wie Feuer im Gestrüpp glühend bereiten sie (die Priester) ein Gastmahl wie die Gewässer eine Insel." Regarding pāda a, he observes that the translation 'dein Speer hat sich gegen uns gerichtet' does not fit well in the context and that, moreover, nowhere in the RV is a ṛṣṭí spoken of in connection with Indra. He is therefore inclined to connect this word ṛṣṭí with vṛṣṭí in 1, 52, 5; 14 (cf. vṛṣabhá and ṛṣabhá) and ṛṣvá, and translates pāda a as 'An uns hat sich deine Hoheit (?), O Indra, angeschlossen.' Pāda b he translates as 'Die Marut setzen ihre gewaltige Erscheinung vollständig in Bewegung.'

All this seems to me to be hardly satisfactory. I think that pādas c and d refer, like a and b, to Indra and the Maruts respectively. Regarding c, compare 6, 18, 10: agnír ná súṣkaṁ vānam indra hetī rākṣo nī dhakṣi “ Burn the evil spirits with thy weapon, O Indra, as Agni does dry forests.” I take cit here as an upamā-vācaka; compare Nirukta, 1, 4, 13; Nighaṇṭu, 3, 13; and Geldner’s translation, cited above, of this stanza.

Regarding ṛṣṭī, it is true that, as observed by Geldner, this word is nowhere else in the RV used to denote the weapon of Indra. But the root ṛj (ṛñj) from which it is derived means ‘to let loose, to throw’ so that ṛṣṭī denotes primarily that which is thrown. It is thus a synonym of hetī (from hi, ‘to throw, to impel’) ‘missile, weapon’ which is used in connection with Indra in 6, 18, 10 cited above and in other verses. There seems to be no doubt therefore that it denotes the Vajra or other weapon of Indra in the above verse and that pādas a and c together are a paraphrase of 6, 18, 10 cited above.

The comparison in pāda d is obscure. The meaning of the pāda seems to be, ‘they, the Maruts, bear food as the Waters bear islands on their bosom.’ Compare in this connection 1, 88, 1: ā vārṣiṣṭhayā na iṣā váyo ná paptatā sumāyāḥ; 1, 166, 1: nītyaṁ ná sūnúṁ mādhu bíbhrata úpa krīḷanti krīḷāḥ; 5, 55, 1: marúto bhrājad-ṛṣṭayo bṛhád váyo dadhíre rukmá-vakṣasaḥ; and 7, 58, 3: bṛhád váyo maghávadbhyo dadhāta, in which the Maruts are represented as bringing food to their worshippers.

padvāntam gárbbham apádī dadhāte |
nītyaṁ ná sūnúṁ pitrór upásthe

This verse has already been translated on p. 6 above. Pāda d is found as the refrain of the six following verses of this hymn.

4, 49, 5: *prá yé vásubhya ívad ā námo dūr
yé mitré váruṇe sūktá-vācaḥ |

“Who offered such adoration to the bright ones, who speak hymns of praise to Mitra and Varuṇa—(from us) let the evil being depart; make (for us) broad space. May we be glad through the favour of Heaven and Earth.” The relative pronoun yé in pādas a and b has for antecedent asmāt (understood) in pāda c. The expression, ‘let the evil being depart, make for us broad space’ means, ‘drive off the evil beings and make the space around us clear of such beings; make us secure.’ The phrase kṛṇutā vārīyaḥ has the same sense as varīvaḥ kṛṇota (see Grassmann, s.v. varīvaḥ).

“Thy might, thy strength, thy wrath,—even these birds that fly did not attain (i.e., did not measure its extent); nor (did) these waters that move unceasingly, nor they that contemn (i.e., surpass) the might (i.e., the speed) of Vāta.” As explained by Sāyaṇa, ábhvam, might, is here equivalent to vega; for it is in vega that the might of Vāta is chiefly manifested. The sense of the fourth pāda is, ‘Not even they that are swifter than the wind, and still less the wind itself, can go beyond reach of thy strength, of thy might, of thy anger.’

“Pṛśni brought forth for the great fight the terrible troop of the impetuous Maruts. They, alike in form, produced (i.e. made manifest) their might and then saw around them the invigorating food.” The sense of the second distich is obscure. sapsārāsaḥ = alike in form; see Ved. St., 3, 197, and svadhā = sudhā, the food of the gods; see pp. 41 f. above.

The import of the first two pādas of this stanza is not clear. vanādaḥ is a hapax legomenon and is regarded by Oldenberg (SBE. 42, 205 ; RV. Noten, I, 192) as a compound of van 'the forest' and of ad 'to eat.' The stanza means therefore according to Oldenberg, "When they praised to me the monstrous might of the eater of the forests, he produced his (shining) colour as (he has done) for the Uśijs. With shining splendour he has shone joyously, he who having grown old has suddenly become young (again)." Similarly Geldner too translates the distich as "Was sie mir als das Grossartige des Holzfressers rühmen : Er veränderte seine Farbe wie für die Uśij" in his RV. Uebersetzung. In Ved. St., 3, 120, on the other hand, he regarded the word vanād as being formed, (like bhasād, and śarād) from the root van with the suffix ad and denoting 'wish, prayer'; and he translated the distich as, "Als meine Gebete seine Schreckensgestalt abfeilschten, da veränderte er seine Farbe wie für die Uśij." I am inclined to agree with Geldner's former opinion and look upon vanād as being derived from the root van 'to wish, to long for' with the suffix ad. vanādaḥ therefore means 'longing, eager,' and denotes, I conceive, the 'eager,' i.e., swift-moving flames of Agni; compare 6, 66, 10 : trṣu-cyāvaso juhvò nāgnéḥ 'greedily, i.e., swiftly, moving like the tongues (i.e., flames) of Agni' and the other verses referred to on p. 138 above. I therefore translate the stanza as : "He produced (i.e., put on) splendour as if for the Uśijs when the eager (flames) proclaimed his might to me; he shone with brilliant joyous light, he who having grown old, became again and again young."

ādha smāsyā panayanti bhāso vṛthā yāt tákṣad anuyāti

pr̥thvīm, 'then his splendours (i.e., flames) proclaim his greatness as he, cutting, goes along the earth.' The expressions āpananta and panayanta in the above verses refer to the sound made by Agni's flames which are here represented as bards attending on kings and heralding their approach, that is, as the vandinah, māgadhāḥ or sūtāḥ that are mentioned in later literature as accompanying kings and sounding their praises ; compare 9, 10, 3 : rājāno ná prāśastibhiḥ sōmāso góbhīr ajyate ; 9, 65, 6 : rājā medhābhīr iyate. In 1, 87, 3 : svayām mahitvām panayanta dhūtayaḥ, on the other hand, it is said of the Maruts that they themselves proclaimed their greatness, that is, that they were their own bards.

amimīta in pāda b is derived, as pointed out by Geldner in Ved. St., 3, 119, from the root mi, mī and not from mā. The expression vārṇam amimīta is synonymous with the expression vārpaḥ kárikrat that we have met with above in 1, 140, 5 and means 'he produced, i.e., put on, splendour or brilliance.' Compare 2, 13, 3 : rūpā minān tādapā éka iyate and 5, 42, 13 : rūpā mināno ákṛnod idām naḥ. With regard to múhuḥ, see Pischel, Ved. St., 3, 186 ff.

bhāsāmsi vaste sūryo ná śukráḥ |
vī yá inóty ajárah pāvakó
'śnasya cic chiśnathat pūrvyāṇi ||

"Whose might they praise like that of Dyaus, he (sc. Agni), brilliant like the sun, clothes himself in splendour ; he who, bright and unaging, drives away (enemies) and destroyed the old (fortresses) of Aśna even." The sense of the first pāda is not quite clear, and the explanations given of it by Pischel (Ved. St., 1, 201) and Geldner (ibid., 3, 121) are not very satisfactory. If dyāvah is to be taken as nominative plural (as it has to be in the other RV passages where it occurs) the meaning would be 'whose greatness the heavens (i.e., the sky) praise as it were.' This is the course followed by Ludwig who has translated the pāda as 'des gewalt die himmel gleichsam bewundern,' which is sufficiently close to the translation given by me above; compare 1, 15, 8: táva dyaúr indra paúṁsyam pṛthivī vardhati śrávaḥ, 'The sky, O Indra, magnifies thy valour and the earth thy renown.' I believe however that the passage yields better sense if the word dyāvaḥ is taken as genitive singular and the pāda interpreted as 'of whom they praise the greatness as of Dyaus.' The greatness of Dyaus is referred to in 4, 21, 1: dyaúr ná kṣatráṁ abhíbhūti púṣyāt 'May he (sc. Indra) flourish, like Dyaus, in might surpassing those of others'; KS. 7, 13: dyaúr mahnāsi bhūmir bhūmnā 'Thou art Dyaus (the sky) with (in?) greatness, the earth with (in?) vastness' and in 1, 131, 1; 1, 122, 1; etc., where the epithet asuraḥ, mighty, is applied to Dyaus. Compare also in this connection 1, 131, 1; 1, 63, 1 and other similar passages, which describe the might of Indra and other deities by saying that even the sky and the earth quaked with fear or drew back with fear at their approach.

This closes the list of passages in which ábhva occurs. It will be noted that, like the word yakṣá, this word too is used in the masculine as well as in the neuter gender; and there can be no doubt that, like its synonym yakṣaḥ (see p. 194), the word ábhvaḥ too denotes 'being (concrete); a class of superhuman beings; evil being', while ábhva neuter has, like yakṣá neuter, these as well as the other meanings mentioned on p. 199 above.

This word, about whose explanation there has been much dispute, is enumerated in 4, 1, amongst difficult words, by the Nighaṇṭu; and Yāska, in his commentary on this section, has explained the word as admasad admānnaṁ bhavaty admasādinīti vā 'nnasāninīti vā, that is, as Durga explains, gṛhādhikāre niyuktā anna-sādhikā strī. This explanation is adopted, in his commentary on RV. 1, 124, 4, by Sāyaṇa who explains the word as adyata ity adma annam | tasya pākāya gṛhe sīdatīti admasat pācikā yoṣit, but who gives in addition another explanation of the word—yad vā admeti gṛha-nāma | varūtham admeti tan-nāmasu pāṭhāt | tatra sīdatīty admasaj jananī. In the other verses, however, where this word occurs (6, 30, 3; 7, 83, 7; 8, 44, 29) he gives the derivation admani sīdatīty admasad and takes the word as a masculine, interpreting adma as haviḥ in 7, 83, 7 and 8, 44, 29 and also in 6, 4, 4, where the nearly-allied word admasādvā is used. In 8, 43, 19, he interprets adma-sādyāya as annasya bhajanāya.

Like Sāyaṇa, Roth too in the PW understands the word as equivalent to annasad or 'one who sits down to food'; he however interprets it as Gast beim Mahle and the allied word admasadya as Tischgenossenschaft, an interpretation which was accepted by Bergaigne (Etudes, p. 43) but dissented from by Haug (GGA. 1875, p. 80). Geldner, on the other hand, favoured, in Ved. St. 2, 179, the explanation reported by Durga as put forward by 'some' that the word signifies makṣikā or fly, observing that, in 7, 83, 7, the Vasiṣṭhas style themselves flies jokingly. In his Glossar, however, he has modified this opinion and said that the word denotes 'fly' in 1, 124, 4 (in his RV. Ueber., too, he has accordingly translated pāda c as, 'wie eine Fliege weckt sie die Schläfer') and 6, 30, 3, while in 7, 83, 7 it denotes 'der bei dem Opfermahle sitzende Priester.'

Geldner's explanation (in Ved. St., 2, 179) has been criticised by Oldenberg on p. 91 of his Vedaforschung where this savant has declared his preference for that proposed by Roth, with the reservation however that he does not believe that it is 'vollkommen sicher.' Similarly,

Hillebrandt too (Lieder des RV., p. 1, n. 3) has rejected the explanation of Geldner and adopted that of Roth in his translation of 1, 124, 4. Dr. Neisser, on the other hand (Zum Wörterbuch des RV.), agrees with Geldner in thinking that the word means 'auf die Speise sich setzend,' that it denotes 'fly' in 1, 124, 4 and 6, 30, 3, and that it is, in the other verses, an attribute of Agni and of the priest.

None of these explanations seems to me to be satisfactory. The word admasád occurs in but four passages; and I find it difficult to believe with Sāyaṇa and Geldner that, in one passage, it denotes 'fly' or 'cook' (fem.), and in another 'priest.' Similarly I find it difficult to accept Roth's explanation that it means 'guest'; for, nowhere, either in the RV or in any other Vedic or post-Vedic book, do we ever hear of a guest awakening those that are asleep. On the contrary, RV. 8, 44, 1: samídhā 'gnīm duvasyata ghr̥taír bodhayatā-tithim | āsmin havyā juhótana seems to suggest that, in the time of the Ṛgveda, it was the host that awakened the guest in order to feed him.

Likewise, Yāska's explanation, too, of the word as 'one who sits down to or in food (annasad)', is without doubt wrong. The Nighaṇṭu mentions in 2, 7 as synonyms of anna the following twenty-eight words, namely, āndhaḥ, vājah, páyah, práyah, prkṣáh, pitúh, váyah, sínam, ávah, kṣú, dhāsīh, írā, ílā, íṣam, ūrk, rásah, svadhā, arkáh, kṣádma, némah, sasám, nāmah, áyuh, sūnyā, bráhma, várcah, kilālam and yášah, of which all are found in the RV with the exception of némah. But no verb meaning 'to sit' is found used in the RV in any passage in connection with the locative or dative case of any of these twenty-seven words or of their synonyms ánna and havis also. Nor, I believe, can an instance be met with elsewhere in Vedic or later literature where human beings or divinities are said or exhorted 'to sit in (loc.) or for (dat.) food.' The expression commonly used in such a situation in later times is bhoktum or bhojanāya upaviṣati or its equivalents, and not anne or annāya upaviṣati and its equivalents (compare for instance Śaṅkara's commentary on Ch. Up. 3, 3, 5: Śaunakam Kāpeyam Kapi-gotram Abhipratāriṇam ca nāmataḥ Kakṣasenasyāpatyam Kākṣasenim bhojanāyopaviṣtau pari- viṣyamāṇau sūpakārair brahmacārī brahmavīc chaṇḍo bibhikṣe bhikṣitavān). And in the RV itself, a poet in a similar situation has said, (7, 57, 2) ā vītāye sadata pipriyānāḥ. Similarly, the idea of Tischgenossenschaft is expressed in Sanskrit not by admasadya or its equivalents but by the word sahabhojana or its equivalents.

It thus becomes evident that neither the explanation of Yāska nor those of the above-mentioned exegetists, based on it, are correct and that the meaning of the word admasād is still a riddle. As it happens, the four passages in which the word occurs, as well as other connected passages of the RV, furnish enough clues to enable one to solve this riddle.

It is shown by 1, 124, 4c: admasān nā sasatō bodhāyantī that the awakening of others is a characteristic of the admasādaḥ; and it is similarly made clear by 6, 30, 3c: nī pārvalā admasādo nā seduḥ that sitting down is another characteristic of the admasādaḥ. A comparison therefore of the upamānas in the RV passages in which sitting is the sāmānya-dharma with the words that are used as subjects of verbs meaning 'to awaken' in other RV passages¹ will show us what persons or things are described by the RV poets as both awakening others and sitting down and will thus enable us to determine the meaning of admásad.

The passages containing similes with 'sitting' as *sāmānya-dharma*², in addition to 6, 30, 3: ní párvatā admasádo ná seduḥ, are:

- 9, 38, 4: śyenó ná vikṣú sīdati;
 8, 21, 5: sīdan!as te váyo yathā;
 9, 57, 3: śyenó ná vámsu sīdati;

 4, 35, 8: śyenā ivéd ádhi diví niṣedá;
 10, 43, 2: rājeva dasma ní ṣadódhi barhīṣi; and 7, 32, 2: mádhan ná mákṣa āsate;

and the upamānas used in such similes are accordingly śyenāḥ, váyāḥ, sómāḥ, mákṣaḥ, ārvā, mṛgó mahiṣāḥ,

śakunáh, haṁśáh, rājā, hótā and also admasád. The words used as subjects of the verb jāgr 'to awaken' are uśáh, sómah, agníh and dūtáh, and of the verb budh (caus.) 'to awaken' are śvā, jāráh, jāriṇī?, agníh, índrah, uśáh, śruṣṭivā, jaritā, yajña-hotā,³ and also admasád.

It will be seen from the above that, excluding the admasád, the only person or thing to which the RV poets attribute the characteristic of 'sitting' and which they at the same time describe as awakening others, is the priest who is called hotṛ in 7, 30, 3 and 9, 92, 2 cited above, and jaritṛ and yajña-hotṛ in 10, 42, 2: prá bodhaya jaritar jārám índram and 8, 9, 17: prá bodhayoṣo aśvinā prá devi sūnyte mahi | prá yajñahotar ānuśák prá mādāya śrávo bṛhát. And it follows hence that the word admasád denotes in all probability the hotṛ or the priest who chants the prayers addressed to the gods.⁴

This conclusion is confirmed by 7, 83, 7: satyā nṛṇām admasádām úpastutiḥ from which we learn that admasadana is an attribute of human beings and 8, 43, 19: agním dhībhír manīṣīno médhirāso vípaścítaḥ | admasá-dyāya hinvíre in which it is said that the priests urged Agni to become, or assume the function of, an admasad. It becomes evident from these passages that admasadana is in all probability equivalent to hotṛtva. For, as

³ The jaritṛ and yajña-hotṛ are explicitly mentioned as subjects of the verb bodhay in 10, 42, 2 and 8, 9, 17. In addition, there is no doubt that the verses 5, 14, 1; 1, 22, 1 and 8, 44, 1 (which according to Sāyaṇa are addressed to the stotṛ, adhvaryu and ṛtviḣaḥ respectively) are addressed to the priest and that we have to understand jaritṛ or similar word as the subject. In 7, 44, 2 too, the subject vayám refers without doubt to the priests or singers.

⁴ I may perhaps observe here that the position is in no way altered if, instead of the upamānas in the above-cited similes, we include in our purview all the words that are found used in the RV passages as subjects of verbs meaning 'to sit.' A great majority of such words (e.g., agníh, índrah, marútaḥ, etc.) refer to divinities or to quasi-divinities (venáh, gnáh, apsarásah, pitáraḥ, spásah). Since it is clear from 7, 83, 7: satyā nṛṇām admasádām observed by Prof. Macdonell (Ved. Myth., p. 96): "In consequence of his main function in the Veda of officiating at the sacrifice, Agni comes to be celebrated as the divine counterpart of the earthly priesthood. He is therefore often called generically the 'priest' (ṛtvij, vipra) or specifically the 'domestic priest' (purohita), and constantly, more frequently in fact than by any other name, the 'offerer' (hotṛ), or chief priest, who is poet and spokesman in one. He is a Hotṛ appointed by men (8, 49, 1; 10, 7, 5) and by gods (6, 16, 1). He is the most adorable, the most eminent of Hotṛs (10, 2, 1; 91, 8)."

The word úpastuti too in 7, 83, 7c cited above can, by its very nature be associated only with priests and is in fact so associated with them in the RV, as likewise are its synonyms gīṛ, stuti, stoma, etc. And this fact too indicates that the expression admasádo náraḥ in the above pāda signifies priests that praise, that it is a synonym of hótāraḥ or jaritāraḥ.

The above-mentioned considerations thus place it beyond doubt that admasád means hótṛ or the priest who chants hymns of praise. And that being so, the question arises in our mind, "What is the literal meaning of the word admasád, and why does it denote the hótṛ?" The clue to the answer of this question is contained in Sāyaṇa's úpastutiḥ that admasád denotes human beings, we have to pass over all such words as also over all the words that denote inanimate things (párvatāḥ, mayúkhāḥ, gávyūtiḥ, cakráṃ, rājaḥ) or birds, insects and beasts (syenāḥ, vāyaḥ, hamsāḥ, śakunāḥ, sakúniḥ, gāvaḥ, mṛgō mahiṣāḥ, makṣāḥ) and also admasád whose meaning we are investigating, and include in our comparison such words only as refer to human beings. These are—narāḥ, manuṣyāḥ, kanyā, dāsyuh, īṣayaḥ, rājā, virāḥ; and hótā, pótā, brahmā, stotāraḥ, sūrāyaḥ, brahmakṛtāḥ, sákhāyaḥ. The last-mentioned four or five words are synonyms of hótṛ.

hótṛ, referring to the priest, is found as subject in about ten of the passages in question, and referring to or in apposition with Agni, in about fifteen passages.

words : yad vā admeti gr̥ha-nāma | varūtham admeti tan-nāmasu pāṭhāt | tatra sīdatīty admasaj janani cited on p. 212 above. The reference here is presumably to Nighaṇṭu 3, 4, which enumerates twenty-two synonyms of gr̥ha ; but, curiously enough, the word varūtha only is found amongst these twenty-two names and not adman which is mentioned by Sāyaṇa.⁵ The dictionaries of Monier-Williams and Apte, however, mention in connection with this word the meaning of house also ; and there is thus no doubt that adman is a synonym of gr̥ha.

admasād therefore means literally 'one who sits in the house', and through rūḍhi, it denotes the hotṛ who sits, and sings, in his 'abode'. This abode or seat is called by the name of sādma (this is one of the twenty-two gr̥ha-nāmāni enumerated in Nighaṇṭu 3, 4) in 1, 73, 1 : (agniḥ) hóteva sādma vidható ví tāvīt ; 1, 73, 3 : nákṣad dhótā pári sādma mítā yán ; 7, 18, 22 : hóteva sādma páry emi rébhan ; 9, 92 6 : pári sádmeva paśumānti hótā ; 9, 97, 1 : páry eti rébhan mitéva sádma paśumānti hótā ; and by the name of sádana in 9, 92, 2 : sīdan hóteva sádane camúṣu. It is also called hotṛśadana in 2, 9, 1 : ní hótā hotṛśádane vídānas tveśó dīdivāñ asadat sudákṣaḥ.

The hotṛ and his 'abode'⁶ were, as is natural, very familiar to the RV poets ; and he was, in their minds, so

⁵ All the editions of the Nighaṇṭu mention as the twenty-second word of this section the word ajma, of the use of which in the sense of gr̥ha not one instance has so far been met with. It is not therefore improbable that the original text of the Nighaṇṭu read adma and not ajma in 3, 4. It is in any case very likely that the text which was known to Sāyaṇa included the word adma in 3, 4 amongst gr̥ha-nāmāni.

For the rest, it is my belief that adman is mentioned in some of the Sanskrit lexicons as having the meaning gr̥ha, though I have not, so far, come across any such passage in the lexicons that I have examined.

⁶ This abode seems to be identical with the hotṛ-śadana or hotṛ-dhiṣṇya (hotṛ-khava) of the later ritual books or with the sadas closely associated with his abode that his going to it, singing, and his sitting in it, became, as is evidenced by the above-cited passages, common figures of comparison. It is no wonder therefore that, in the circumstances, the word admasád became an appellative of the hotṛ 'who sits in the abode.'

In any case, there is no doubt that admasád signifies 'hotṛ' and I shall now show that this meaning fits well into the context in all the passages where this word and the allied words admasadya and admasadvan occur.

rivers when thou didst cut out a path for them. The mountains sat down, like hotṛs (at thy behest). The worlds, O wise one, have been made firm by thee". nū cit=in the time to come; see Geldner, Glossar (s.v.). Yāska (Nirukta, 4, 17), and following him, Sāyaṇa, however interpret it as purā. The words 'at thy behest' have to be understood here; compare Sāyaṇa: tvad-ājñayā parvatā girayo niṣeduh. The tertium comparationis in pāda c is, according to Sāyaṇa, and Geldner (Ved., St., 2, 179), naiścalyena upaveśanam. But the simile sīdan hótva occurs in 9, 92, 2: ácchā nṛcákṣā asarat pavítre nāma dádhanah kavír asya yónau | sīdan hótva sádane camūṣūpem agmann iṣayah sapṭá víprāh which says that the Soma juice settled in the bowls like the hotṛ in his abode. Now, the Soma juice setting in bowls, vats or jars is, in 9, 38, 4; 9, 57, 3 and other passages cited on p. 215 above, compared with the falcon sitting (i.e., going to sit) in his nest; and the tertium comparationis in these verses is, as I have already pointed out, not 'sitting' but 'swift movement.' This is the case in 9, 92, 2 and also in 9, 92, 6: pári sádmeva paśumānti hótā rājā ná satyāh sámītir iyānāh | sómah punānāh kalāsāñ ayāsīt sīdan mṛgó ná mahiṣó váneṣu and 9, 97, 1: sutāh pavítram páry eti rébhan mitéva sádma paśumānti hótā. Compare also 1, 180, 9: prá syandrā yātho mánuṣo ná hótā "O ye swift ones (sc. Aśvins), you go (as swiftly) as the human hotṛ, i.e., as the hotṛ priest," and 1, 73, 1: hótva sádma vidható ví tārīt "(Agni) went to the worshippers (as swiftly) as the hotṛ does to his abode" where too the sāmānya-dharma is swift-going.

The simile admasádo ná seduh in pāda c of the above verse is but a paraphrase of the simile sīdan hótva; and hence the tertium comparationis in this pāda too is swift movement. The meaning of the pāda is, "At thy behest, the mountains sat down (i.e., began to sit down) as quickly as hotṛs." Compare 2, 11, 8: ní párvatah sādya áprayucchan "The mountain, taking heed, sat (at thy behest); that is, the mountain, heeded thy behest and sat"; and 2, 11, 7: áramsta párvataś cit sariṣyán, "Even the mountain that was moving stopped (and settled on the earth at thy behest)." The reference here is to the well-known story of Indra cutting off the wings of the flying mountains and making them settle permanently on the earth; see Pischel, Ved. St., 1, 174.

7, 83, 7: dāśa rājānaḥ sámitā áyajyavaḥ

"The ten impious kings, O Indra and Varuṇa, did not fight (i.e., did not gain a victory over) Sudās in battle. The praising of the hotṛ priests bore fruit; the gods stood by them when they were invoked." The battle of Sudās with the ten kings is described more fully in the hymn VII, 18; see Sāyaṇa's commentary thereon and Geldner's Kommentar.

8, 44, 29: dhīro hy ásy admasád
vípro ná jāgrvíḥ sádā |
agne dīdáyasi dyávi ||

"Thou, O Agni, art a wise hotṛ, watchful always like a priest. Thou shinest in the heavens." The expression dhīraḥ admasád is equivalent to hótā kaví-kratuḥ (1, 1, 5), hótā vidúṣṭaraḥ (1, 105, 13-14), vípro hótā (1, 14, 9) and other similar expressions. The epithet jāgrví is frequently applied to Agni; see Grassmann, s.v., and the víprāḥ or priests are described as jāgrvāmsaḥ in 1, 22, 21 and 3, 10, 9.

It is possible to construe the words vípro ná with the preceding word admasád; and this is what Geldner has in fact done in Ved. St., 2, 180. The meaning of the first two pádas would then be, "Thou, O Agni, art wise, a chanter sitting in the abode like a priest, and always watchful." The word admasád has both the yaugika and rūḍhi meanings here and denotes the ‘hotṛ who sits in the abode.’ Regarding the simile, compare 10, 78, 1 : víprāso ná mánmabhiḥ svādhyāḥ “like priests with hymns, singing songs”; compare also 7, 30, 3 : *ny àgníḥ sīdad ásuṛo ná hótā huvānó átra subhágāya devān*⁷ “The mighty Agni sat (in the abode) like the hotṛ, calling the gods here for good fortune.”

cakré agnír januṣājmānam | sá tvám na ūrjasana ūrjam dhā
rājeva jē avṛké kṣeṣy antāḥ ||*

“Thou, O son (of strength), art (our) speaker, (our) hotṛ. Agni, from his birth (i.e., as soon as he was born), made his way to food. Bestow on us vigour, O thou vigour-bestower; thou conquerest like a king and dwellest in a secure place.” sūno in pāda a stands without doubt for sūno sahasaḥ; compare 6, 13, 6 : vadmā sūno sahaso no víhāyāḥ and Oldenberg, ZDMG, 55, 291. Pāda b is somewhat obscure; Roth (ZDMG, 48, 679), regards januṣā in januṣājmānam as standing for januṣām, while Grassmann is inclined to substitute ájman for ájma. Ludwig, without proposing any alteration translates pāda b as “Von jeher hat Agni sich seine ban und seine speise gemacht.” This does not seem to be very satisfactory; and I therefore construe ánnam as depending on ájma (annam prati ajma) and translate it as above. Compare 4, 7, 10 : sadyó jātāsya dādṛśānam ójo yád asya vāto anuvāti śocíḥ | vṛnākti tigmām atasēsu jihvām sthirā cid

⁷ The description of the hotṛ as the ‘sitter in the abode,’ the allusion in the verses cited above (on p. 220) to him and his sadman, to his going to the sadman singing, and to his awakening of sleeping men and deities with his chants, as also the juxtaposition of the words hotṛ and huvāna in this verse, all indicate that his function, in the time of the RV as in that of the Śrauta-sūtras, was to chant hymns of prayer. Hence Yāska (comp. Nirukta, 7, 15 : hotāram hvātāram) seems to be right in deriving the word from hu ‘to call,’ and Aurnavābha wrong in deriving it from hu ‘to offer oblations.’

ānnā dayate vi jāmbhaiḥ "His might is seen as soon as he is born. When the wind blows behind his flame, he winds his sharp tongue round the brushwood. He cuts with his jaws even the firm food."

8, 43, 19 : agnīm dhībhīr manīṣīno

"The wise, intelligent and inspired priests urged Agni with hymns (i.e., prayers) to become hotṛ." Compare 3, 29, 8 : śīda hotaḥ svā u loké cikitvān; 1, 76, 2 : éhy agna ihá hótā ní śīda; and 2, 36, 4 : úsan hotar ní śadā yóniṣu triṣú in which Agni is exhorted to assume the office of hotṛ; compare also 6, 4, 1 ; 6, 11, 1 ; 6, 11, 4 ; 6, 15, 16 ; 3, 4, 3 ; 3, 62, 12 ; 7, 39, 1, etc., in which verses too Agni is prayed to to become hotṛ.

This word occurs in eight passages of the RV and in no independent passage elsewhere. It is not mentioned in the Nighaṇṭu, and since, moreover, it does not occur in any of the passages cited in the Nirukta, Yāska and Durga have had no occasion of explaining it. Sāyaṇa derives the word from ni+ric 'to empty' or nir+i 'to go' (comm. on 8, 96, 3 : ni-ṣūrvād ricyater vā niḥ-ṣūrvād eter veti samdehād anavagrahaḥ) and explains it differently as nairdhanya, durgati or dāridrya (1, 51, 14 ; 7, 18, 23 ; 7, 90, 3), dāna (7, 20, 8), dhana (8, 24, 4) and nirgamana (8, 24, 3 ; 8, 33, 2 ; 8, 96, 3) in his commentary on the RV and as reko riktatvam | tadrahitam karma nirekam tādyṣe sarvasāadhanasampūrṇe karmaṇi in his commentary on TB. 2, 8, 1, 1 (=RV. 7, 90, 3). Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara, on the other hand, in their commentaries on the same verse (VS. 27, 24=RV. 7, 90, 3) interpret the word as janair ākīrṇa-pradeśe and nirgataḥ rekah recanam rekah śūnyatā yasmāt tādrśe bahu-janākīrṇa-sthāne respectively.

Roth, too, in the PW, derives the word from ni+ric and explains nirekam (acc.) as 'etwa bleibender Besitz; Eigenthum' and nireke (loc.) as '(eigenthümlich) bleibend; auf die Dauer; für immer.' This interpretation was considered unsatisfactory by Geldner (Ved. St., 1, 155) who therefore proposed (ibid., p. 157) the meanings '1. Subst. bevorzugter-, Ehren-platz, Vorrang, Vortritt 7, 20, 8; 1, 51, 14; 8, 33, 2; 7, 18, 23; 8, 24, 3; 8, 96, 3; (2) Adj. eine bevorzugte Stellung einnehmend, bevorzugt 8, 24, 4; 7, 90, 3 dunkel.' In his Glossar however he has, following Roth, interpreted nireka as "alleiniger Besitz 8, 24, 4; Ausschliesslichkeit; loc. in alleinigem Besitz 1, 51, 14; 7, 18, 23; 7, 90, 3; 8, 96, 3; ausschliesslich, ganz allein 7, 20, 8; 8, 24, 3; 8, 33, 2". Similarly Oldenberg too writes (RV. Noten. I, 49): "Wie prarekā Hinausreichen, Ueberschiessen ist nirekā m. E. wörtlich etwa Hineinreichen d. h. das Stehen in engsten Zusammenhang mit Jemand, Zugehören zum intimsten Besitz Jemandes; vgl. nitya".

The above interpretations are all based on the supposed derivation of the word from the root ric with ni, and are mere guesses. None of them fits into the context in, for instance, 1, 51, 14: īndro aśrāyi sudhyò nireké and 7, 90, 3: ādha vāyūm niyútaḥ saścata svā utá śvetām vāsudhitim nireké; and a comparison of the passages in which this word occurs with other connected passages shows that the real meaning of the word is something quite different from those mentioned above.

In 8, 24, 4: ā nirekām utá priyām īndra darṣi jānānām, we find nirekā used as the object of ādarṣi while in the preceding verse (8, 24, 3): sá na stāvāna ā bhava rayīm citrá-śravastamam | nireké cid yó harivo vāsura dadīḥ, it is said of Indra that he gives wealth in nireka.

A comparison therefore of the words that are used in RV passages as objects of the root dy or dar 'to burst open' with the words used in the locative case in connection with the word dadi in the passages in which that word occurs¹ will show what is common to both groups of words and will thus guide one to the meaning of nireka.

Now, the words used as objects of the verb dy or dar are, besides nirekā, the following, namely, útkā, ádri, áp, ápihita, amitra, ásuya, is, útsa, (diváh) kāvandha, kóśa, gó, gotrá, gódhāyas, dāsyu, dānu, dṛlhá, púr, bhúvana, rādhah, valá, vāja, vrajá, śalá, śátru, sámbara, sahásra, suḡráthita and sūkará.

The word dadi is used in twelve verses in nine of which it is not connected with any word in the locative case. In the remaining verses, it is connected with the locative nireka in 8, 24, 3 as we have seen above; and in 1, 81, 7: māde-made hí no dadír yūthā gāvām rjukrátuḥ | sám gṛbhāya purú śatóbhayahastyā vásu śisīhī rāyá ā bhara and 8, 46, 15: dadi rékṇas tanvè dadír vásu dadír vājeṣu puruhūta vājínam | nūnám átha, it is connected with the locatives māde-made and vājeṣu respectively.

It will be seen that, beside nirekā whose meaning we are now endeavouring to determine, the word vāja is the only one that is common to both groups; and this indicates that nirekā is probably equivalent to vāja.

¹ As a matter of fact, it is necessary that one should, if one desires one's survey to be comprehensive, include in the comparison (1) not only the words used as objects of the verb dy or dar 'to burst open,' but also those used as objects of tṛh, bhid and similar verbs, and (2) not only the words used in the locative case in connection with the word dadi, but also those used in that case in connection with the verbs dā, rā, etc., meaning 'to give.' It will however become manifest from the sequel that such a comprehensive comparison is unnecessary and that the limited comparison indicated above is enough to lead one to the correct meaning.

The comparison of 7, 20, 8 : yās ta indra priyó jáno dúdāśad āsan nireké adrivaḥ sákhā te with its parallel passages and of 7, 90, 3 : ádha vāyúm niyútah saścata svā utá śvetám vásudhitim nireké with its parallel passages points likewise to such equivalence and hence makes it certain that nireká = vāja. In 7, 20, 8, Indra is exhorted to regard, in nireká, the offerer (of oblations) as his friend, that is, to befriend the offerer (of oblations) in nireká. The only other verses in the RV in which a similar prayer or exhortation is addressed to Indra, and words in the locative case are used in connection with sakhi, are 8, 13, 3 : tám ahve vājasātaya índram bhārāya śuśmīnam | bhāvā naḥ sumné ántamaḥ sákhā vṛdhé ; 6, 33, 4 : sá tvám na indrákavābhir ūti sákhā viśvāyur avitā vṛdhé bhūḥ | svārṣātā yád dhvāyāmasi tvā yúdhhyanto nemádhitā pṛtsú sūra ; and 1, 129, 4 : asmākam va índram uśmasīṣṭāye sákhāyam viśvāyum prāsāham yujām vājeṣu prāsāham yujām | asmākam bráhmotáyé 'vā pṛtúṣu kāsu cit | nahí tvā śátruḥ stárate strṇóṣi yám viśvam śátrum strṇóṣi yám. In the first of these verses, Indra is exhorted to befriend the suppliant in sumná, in the second, in svārṣāti and pṛt (note that these are synonyms of vāja), and in the third, in vāja. Compare also in this connection 4, 24, 6 : kṛṇóty asmai vārivo yá itthéndrāya sómam uśaté sunóti | sadhrīcīnena mánasāvivenan tám ít sákhāyam kṛṇute samātsu ; 8, 21, 8 : vidmā sakhivám utá sūra bhojyām ā te tā vajrinn īmahe | utó samasminn ā śiśihi no vaso vāje suśipra gómati ; 3, 51, 9 : aptūrye maruta āpīr eṣó 'mandann índram ánu dātivārāḥ | tébhiḥ sākām pibatu vṛtrakhādāḥ sutám sómam dāśūṣaḥ své sadhásthe ; and 6, 21, 8 : sá tú śrudhíndra nūtanasya brahmaṇyató vira kārudhāyaḥ | tvám hy āpīḥ pradīvi pitṛṇām śáśvad babhūtha suháva éṣtau and the locatives vāje, samātsu, aptūrye and éṣtau, (these three are synonyms of vāja), used therein.

In 7, 90, 3 : ádha vāyúm . . . nireké, it is said that the team (of horses) accompany Vāyu in nireka. Compare with this verse 7, 91, 6: yā vām śatām niyúto yāḥ sahasram indravāyū viśvāvārāḥ śacante | ābhir yātaṁ suvidātrābhir arvāk pātām narā prátibhṛtasya mādhvah in which the word niyútaḥ and the verb sac occur, and in which Indra and Vāyu are exhorted to come to the sacrifice (this, be it noted, is one of the meanings of vāja), accompanied by the team (of horses). Compare also 7, 91, 5: ā no niyúdbhiḥ śatinībhir adhvarām sahasrīṇībhir ūpa yāhi yajñām | vāyo asmīn sāvane mādayasva; 7, 92, 3: prā yābhir yāsi dāśvāmsam ācchā niyúdbhir vāyav iṣṭāye duroṇé; and 1, 135, 7: āti vāyo sasatō yāhi śāśvato yātra grāvā vādati tātra gacchatam gṛhām indraś ca gacchatam | vī sūnṛtā dādrṣe rīyate ghṛtām ā pūrṇāyā niyūtā yātho adhvarām indraś ca yātho adhvarām in which Vāyu is prayed to come with his team to the yajñā or adhvarā (which also is a synonym of vāja).

All this makes it certain and places it beyond doubt that nirekā is equivalent to vāja. And hence it becomes evident that this word is derived, not from ni+ric, but from ni+ri or rī 'to run' (ri gatau; rī gati-reṣaṇayoh) by the addition of the suffix *ka*²; compare ślóka (from

² This verb, ri or rī with ni, is used in the sense of running in 5, 86, 4: nī yé riṇānty ōjasā vṛthā gāvo nā durdhūrah "Who (sc. Maruts) run impetuously with force like bulls difficult to restrain". Grassmann in his Wörterbuch explains durdhūrah as 'schlechtes Joch habend,' and this explanation is adopted by Ludwig who translates, (no. 690) durdhuro gāvah as 'wie schwer an die stange zu gewönende rinder.' There seems to me no doubt however that durdhur is, like durdhara and durdhartu, derived from the root dhr or dhar 'to hold' and means, like those words, 'difficult to hold back or check.' Compare 5, 87, 9: yūyām tāsya pracetasah syāta durdhārtavo nidāḥ in which the epithet durdhartavaḥ is applied to the Maruts and 5, 56, 3: dudhrō gaūr iva bhīmayūḥ where the rush of the Maruts is compared to that of an impetuous bull. Compare also Grassmann's translation, 'Die niederstürmen mit Gewalt wie ungezähmte Stiere wild.'

According to Hemacandra's Anekārthamālā and the Medinī (see the PW s. v.), durdhara is a synonym of ṛṣabha. The

śru) and (su) méka (from mi). nirekú thus denotes, like its equivalent vāja which is derived from vaj 'to go' (vaja gatau), strength, quickness, race, booty, prize, battle, sacrifice, etc. (see PW and Grassmann s. v. vāja); and I shall now show that these meanings fit well into the context in all the verses in which the word occurs.

dhṛṣatā dhṛṣṇo stāvamāna ā bhara ||

"Thou, O Indra, also cuttest open (the receptacle of, and makest accessible) for people, the dear wealth. O thou valiant one, bring (us wealth) boldly, being praised." Regarding the expression nirekām ādarṣi, compare 2, 12, 15: yāḥ sunvaté pácate dudhrá ā cid vājam dārdarṣi sá kílāsi satyāḥ; 4, 16, 8: sá no netā vājam ā darṣi bhūvim gotrā rujānn āngirobhir grṇānāḥ; and specially, 8, 33, 3: kāṇvebhir dhṛṣṇav ā dhṛṣád vājam darṣi sahasrīnam; and 8, 45, 40-41: bhindhí víśvā āpa dvīṣaḥ pári bādho jahí mṛdhah | vásu spārhām tát ā bhara || yád vīlāv indra yát sthiré yát pársāne párābhṛtam | vásu spārhām tát ā bhara all addressed to Indra, and also 9, 68, 7: áyvo vārebhir utā deváhūtibhir nṛbhir yató vājam ā darṣi sātúye addressed to Soma, and 10, 69, 3: sá revác choca sá gíro juṣasva sá vājam darṣi sá ihá śrávo dhāḥ addressed to Agni. And regarding the phrase priyām nirekām, compare the expressions priyām vásu, spārhām vásu, kāmyam vásu, vāmām vásu, etc. (for references, see Grassmann under these vocables).

expression durdhuro gāvah is accordingly equivalent to rṣabhāḥ. Compare 5, 56, 3 cited above and also 10, 103, 1: āśúḥ śísāno vṛṣabhó ná bhīmāḥ in which the bull is mentioned as upamāna in respect of impetuous rush.

The verb ri or rī, without the prefix nī, is used with the sense of running in 5, 58, 6: kṣódanta āpo rīnaté vānāni; 1, 85, 3: vārtmāny eṣām ānu rīyate ghyām and other verses; see Grassmann s. v.

“Indra has been raised high (i.e., highly praised or glorified) in the sacrifice of the pious (sacrificer), and the hymn that longs for horses, cows, chariots, and wealth, has been raised high among the Pajras, like the door post. Indra alone rules over wealth and is (its) bestower.” In pāda a, aśrāyi has been translated by Geldner (RV. Ueber., I, 58) as ‘gegeben’, which seems to me to be incorrect. Compare 6, 11, 5: áśrāyi yajñāḥ sūrye ná cákṣuḥ ‘the sacrifice has been raised high as the eye to the sun’; 5, 1, 12: gāviṣṭhiro námasā stómam agnau . . aśret ‘Gaviṣṭhira, has, with adoration, raised high the hymn for Agni’; 5, 28, 1: sāmiddho agnir divi śocir aśret ‘Agni, kindled, has raised high his light in the sky’; 4, 6, 2: ūrdhvām bhāmum savitā devó aśret ‘God Savitr has raised high his ray’; and 1, 10, 1: gāyanti tvā gāyatrīṇó ’rcanty arkām arkīnaḥ | brahmāṇas tvā śatakrata úd vaṁśām iva yemire ‘The singers besing thee, the chanters chant chants; the priests, O thou that art hundred-fold wise, have raised thee high like a pole.’ The last-cited verse, it may be observed, indicates that the comparison dūryo ná yūpaḥ in pāda b is to be understood of indrah also in pāda a.

Pāda b is somewhat cryptic. It is translated by Geldner (RV. Ueber.) as ‘wie ein Türpfosten ist das Preislied bei den Pajra’s’; and this is explained by him as “Das Loblied hält so fest wie der Türpfosten. Dasselbe Bild in 8, 23, 24: stómebhiḥ sthūrayūpavát”. But there seems to be no doubt that in this verse, the word sthūrayūpa is, like the word vyaśva in the preceding verse, jyēsthābhir vyaśvavát, a proper name (see Grassmann s. v., PW s.v., and Sāyaṇa) and that it has nothing to do with a ‘stout post.’ The meaning of 8, 23, 24 is, “Jetzt singe dem gewaltigen mit Lied nach Sthūrayūpa's Art " as given by Grassmann (RV. Ueber.). I believe therefore that the verb āsrāyi in pāda a is the predicate of stóma and yūpa also in pāda b (this is the opinion of Oldenberg also; see RV. Noten, I) and that the tertium comparationis is 'raising high' or (uc) chrayaṇa. Compare 3, 8, 2-3: úc chrayasva mahatē saúbhagāya || úc chrayasva vanaspate vārṣman pṛthivyā ādhi addressed to the sacrificial post (yūpa); compare likewise the expressions ūrdhvās tiṣṭhāḥ, tasthivāmsaḥ, ún nayanti, unnīyāmānāḥ, śráyamāṇaḥ, etc., used of this post in that hymn and also the other verses referred to on p. 102 of Oldenberg's Vedaforschung and sthūnārājam ucchrayati in Śāṅkh. GS. 3, 2, 8 (Sāyaṇa, it may be observed explains duryo yūpaḥ in 1, 51, 14 as dvāri nikhātā sthūnā). Regarding the expression stómo āsrāyi, compare 3, 14, 2: áyāmi te náma-uktim juṣasva; 1, 153, 2: prástutir vām dhāma ná práyuktir áyāmi mitravaruṇā suvrktīḥ; 10, 50, 6: yajñó mántro bráhmódyatam vācaḥ; 1, 80, 9: indrāya bráhmódyatam; and 1, 190, 3: úpastutim námasa údyatim ca ślókam yamsat savitéva prá bāhú which all refer to hymns 'being raised high'; compare also 7, 83, 3: indrāvaruṇā divi ghóṣa āruhat.

The words āsvayúḥ, etc., are, according to Sāyaṇa, Grassmann and Ludwig, attributes of Indra. This opinion seems to me to be untenable; for it is difficult to conceive of Indra that he is 'longing for horses, cows, chariots and wealth.' I therefore agree with Geldner (op. cit.) in thinking that they are the attributes of stómaḥ in pāda b. Compare 7, 67, 5: prācīm u devāśvinā dhīyam mé mṛdhrām sātáyc kṛtam vasūyúm and 1, 62, 11: vasūyávo matáyo dasma dadruḥ in which the epithet vasūyu is applied to mati or hymn; compare also 8, 78, 9: tvām íd yavayúr máma kámo gavyúr hiraṇyayúḥ | tvām āsvayúr éṣate.

indrasya bāhvór bhūyiṣṭham ájah |

*śirṣānn indrasya krátavo niréká
āśānn eṣanta śrútyā upāké ||*

“ In Indra is attached the iron Vajra (thunderbolt); in Indra's two arms is the greatest strength; in Indra's head are insights. In the sacrifice, there run remarkable (praises or offerings) into (his) near mouth ” With regard to padas a, b, c compare 1, 55, 8: áprakṣitam vāsu bibharṣi hástayor áśālham sáhas tanvì śrutó dadhe | ávṛtāso 'vatāso ná kartṛbhis tanúṣu te krátava indra bhūrayaḥ “ In thy hands, thou carriest inexhaustible wealth. The famed one bore invincible strength in his body. In thy body, O Indra, are many insights, concealed, like wells hidden by the makers ”, and 2, 16, 2: yásmād indrād bṛhatāḥ kíṁ caném ṛté víśvāny asmin sámbhṛtādhi víryā | jaṭhāre sómam tanvì sáho máho háste vājram bháratī śirṣāṇi krátum “ Without whom, the great Indra, nothing (happens), in him all mights are gathered. In his belly, he bears Soma, in his body, great strength, in his hand, the thunderbolt, in his head, insight.”

The sense of pāda d is obscure. The Padapāṭha reads śrutyai here (as it does in 2, 2, 7: duró ná vājam śrútyā ápā vṛdhi and 10, 111, 3: indraḥ kila śrútyā asyá veda) for which Grassmann (s. v. śrútya) proposes śrútyāḥ, a suggestion which I have adopted in my above translation. Sāyaṇa explains the pāda as: āsan āsyē ca yāni karmāṇi yuddhārtham vājino gajān sannāhayatetyādīni bhavanti | kiṁ ca śrutyai saṁgrāmāya nirgacchato' nuśāsata indrasya vākya-śravaṇārtham sarva upajīvino bhṛtyā upāke 'ntika eṣanta ayam indro 'smān kutra kutra kārye niyokṣyatīty etena manasā tadantike samantād āgacchanti; and Oldenberg observes (RV. Noten, II): “ śrútyā: man erwartet zunächst Nom.; in der Tat śrútyāḥ nicht unwahrscheinlich (vgl. Gr. WB; zu II, 2, 7; X, 111, 3): “ zu seinem Mund (Lok. des Ziels) streben śr° (Hören); d. h. an seinem Mund hängt Hören und Gehorchen des Andern. Doch kann auch śrútyai (Pp) richtig sein; die krātu in seinem Haupt (c) strebt auf seinem Munde fort um Gehör zu finden (so Ludw.), oder: 'nach seinem Munde drängen sich (alle) um . . zu Hören' (Geldner Rel. Lesebuch, 79)." These explanations seem to me to be unsatisfactory, and the more so, as there is nothing parallel to the ideas contained in them in any other verse of the RV. The word śrutya is used as an epithet of brahman, hymn, in 1, 165, 11: ámandan mā marutaḥ stómo átra yán me naraḥ śrútyam bráhma cakra; and the verb is found used with matí, hymn, in 5, 67, 5: tát sú vām éṣate matíḥ. Compare with this 6, 47, 14: áva tvé indra praváto nórmír gíro bráhmāṇi niyúto dhavante 'in thee, O Indra, run hymns and praises in teams (i.e., many hymns of praise) as (swiftly as) the current down an incline,' and also 6, 36, 3: samudrām ná síndhava uktháśuṣmā uruvyácasam gíra á viśanti; 1, 176, 2: tásminn á veśayā gíro yá ékaś carṣaṇīnām which refer to hymns running into or 'entering into' Indra. This, presumably, is through the mouth; and hence it is probable that śrutyāḥ refers to giraḥ and that the meaning of the pāda is, as given above, 'the remarkable praises run into (his) near mouth.' Regarding the expression upāká āsán, compare the analogous expression upākáyor hástayoḥ in 1, 81, 4: śriyá ṛṣvā upākáyor ní śiprī hárivān dadhe hástayor vājram āyasám.

At the same time, it must be observed that Grassmann's suggestion (l. c.), too, that śrútyāḥ refers to sómāḥ, is not improbable. Compare 3, 46, 4: índram sómāsaḥ pradīvi sutāsaḥ samudrām ná sraváta á viśanti 'into Indra enter at all times the Soma juices that have been expressed as rivers into the ocean'; 9, 85, 7: éndram viśanti madirāsa índavaḥ; 9, 97, 36: índram á viśa brhatā rávṇa; 9, 2, 1: índram indo vṛṣá viśa; 9, 108, 16: índrasya hárdi somadhānam á viśa samudrām iva síndhavaḥ; and 9, 66, 15: éndrasya jathāre viśa in which the Soma juice is said to enter into Indra, presumably through the mouth. Compare also 7, 15, 1: upasádyaya mīlhuṣa āsyē juhutā havíḥ; 7, 102, 3: tásmā id āsyē havír juhóta mādhumattamam; 10, 91, 3: āhavy agne havír āsyè te; and 4, 49, 1: idám vam āsyè havíḥ priyám indra-bṛhaspati in which the word havíḥ is used in connection with asyè, 'in the mouth.' Hence it is not improbable that śrútyaḥ denotes 'remarkable offerings (of Soma or oblations).'

The sense of the pāda remains unchanged even if one agrees with the Padapāṭha that the word used in it is śrútyai and not śrútyāḥ. The meaning of śrútyai is 'so that it is heard of; i.e., as is well-known'; and we have still to supply as the subject of éṣanta the word gíraḥ or sómāḥ or havīm̐si. The meaning of the pāda would thus be, the 'hymns (or offerings) run, as is well-known, into (his) near mouth in the sacrifice.'

smāddiṣṭayaḥ kṛṣanínō nireké | ṛjṛāso mā pṛthiviṣṭhāḥ sudāsas
tokām tokāya śrāvase vahanti ||*

This will be explained in the next article on smāddiṣṭi. Regarding nireké, compare 8, 4, 19: sthūrám rádhah śatāśvam kuraṅgásya díviṣṭiṣu 'great is the gift, comprising hundred horses, of Kuraṅga in the sacrifices.'

7, 20, 8: *yás ta indra priyó jáno dádāśad

"The dear one, O Indra, who makes offerings to thee, may he, O thou with the thunderbolt, be thy friend in battle (i.e., when he is fighting, be thou his friend and aid him). May we be most acceptable in this thy favour, in the shelter, in the protection, of thee that art gracious." With regard to pāda b, compare 6, 33, 4; 4, 24, 6; 1, 129, 4; 3, 51, 9; and 6, 21, 8 cited above (p. 226).

7, 90, 3: *rāyé nú yám jajñátū ródasīmē
rāyé devī dhiṣāṇā dhāti devám |
ádha vāyúm̐ niyútaḥ saścata svā

“Whom these bright Heaven and Earth bore for prosperity, him, the god, the goddess Dhīṣaṇā raises high (i.e., glorifies) for prosperity. And then the own teams of Vāyu accompanied the white one, who bestows wealth, to the sacrifice.” Compare 7, 91, 6; 7, 91, 5; 7, 92, 3; and 1, 135, 7 cited above (p. 227).

8, 24, 3: sá na stávāna ā bhara
rayīm citráśravastamam |
nireké cid yó harivo vásur dadíḥ ||

“Bring to us, being praised, wealth that is most wonderful and renowned, O thou with bay horses, that bestowest wealth even in sacrifice.” Compare 1, 81, 7 and 8, 46, 15 cited above (p. 225).

vásuḥ here, I conceive, stands for vásu; see p. 107 above.

8, 33, 2: sváranti tvā suté náro
váso nireká ukthínah |
kadā sūtām tṛṣṇā́ óka ā gama

“O thou bright one, when (the Soma juice) is expressed, the men that are reciting praises, call to thee in the sacrifice. When wilt thou, O Indra, thirsting for the Soma juice, come to the house (i.e., the sacrificial place), as (swiftly as) a roaring bull (to a pool of water)” ? Regarding the simile in pāda d, compare 1, 130, 2: píbā sómam indra sucānām ádribhiḥ kóścna siktām avatām ná vámsagas tātṛṣṇā́ ná vámsagah; 5, 36, 1: sá ā gamad índro yó vásūnām cíketad dātum dāmano rayīnām | dhanvacaró ná vámsagas tṛṣṇā́ś cakamānāḥ pibatu dugdhām amśum and also 8, 4, 3: yáthā gauró apá kṛtām tṛṣyann éty ávériṇam | āpitvé nah prapitvé tūyam ā gahi kánveṣu sú sácā píba.

This is a word that occurs in four passages of the RV only ; it is neither mentioned nor explained in the Nighaṇṭu and Nirukta. Sāyaṇa gives four different explanations of it,—bhadravākya, praśastadarśana, praśastātīsarjanaśraddhādidānāṅgayukta, and kalyāṇādeśin. Roth explains it as ‘ geschult, dressiert, eingeübt ’ in the PW, and Grassmann as ‘ mit Lenkung versehen, 1) gut lenkend ; 2) gut zu lenken ’. Ludwig, in his RV. Ueber., has interpreted it differently as ‘ die glück herbringen ’ ; ‘ deine weisung geht hieher (=du selbst unabhängig mit herrschaft über uns)’ ; ‘ mir hier bestimmte ’ and ‘ hieher die weisung habende.’ Geldner, in his Glossar, gives the meanings “ 1) dessen Weisungen gleich sind, gerecht 3, 45, 52 ; 2) gleichmässig geschult,—eingelernt 6, 63, 9 ; 7, 18, 23 ; 10, 62, 10.” In his RV. Ueber., however, he translates the word in 3, 45, 5 as ‘ gleichmässig zuteilend ’ and gives the following note : “ smáddiṣṭi sonst ein technischer Ausdruck der Dānastuti’s (6, 63, 9 ; 7, 18, 23 ; 10, 62, 10). Hier wohl in etwas anderem Sinn. diṣṭi ist im RV unbelegt und smád auch sicher nicht bestimmt Sāy. : bhadravākyaḥ in dem er smát im Sinn von sumát nimmt.” Oldenberg, on the other hand, observes ‘ (RV. Noten, I, 251) : “ smáddiṣṭi mir dunkel. Es findet sich sonst (6, 63, 9 ; 7, 18, 23 ; 10, 62, 10) von geschenkten Sklaven, Rossen, Stieren (?) in Dānastutis. In Bezug auf eine Schenkung heisst es V, 36, 6 : yó rōhitau vājīnan vājīnīvān tribhīḥ śataīḥ śacamānāv ādiṣṭa : gibt dies ādiṣṭa, wenn es von diś kommt, den Schlüssel zu smáddiṣṭi? diś wäre offenbar “ zuweisen ” ; smáddiṣṭi hiesse etwa “ begleitet von (einem Akt der) Zuweisung.”

¹ He also urges against Geldner’s explanations (in Glossar) the criticisms (1) that they are not in accord with the meaning of smat, and (2) that the two proposed meanings are separated by too wide a gulf.

Ein solches Wort lässt sich von Geschenke brauchen, aber auch—und das müsste hier angenommen werden—vom Schenken, der, wo er auftritt, von Taten der Freigebigkeit begleitet ist."

It is plain from the above that Geldner and Oldenberg, Sāyaṇa and Ludwig, are at sea regarding the meaning of the word ; and as for the meanings proposed by Roth and Grassmann, it can be readily seen that they do not fit well into the context in all the four passages and that they are therefore incorrect.

The word smāddiṣṭi is a bahuvrihi compound composed of smat (or smad) and diṣṭi. This latter word diṣṭi, though it does not (as observed by Geldner) occur elsewhere in the RV, is used frequently in later literature where it has the sense of 'fate, fortune, good fortune' ; see Apte. The former word smāt is found used in the RV only ; it occurs, uncompounded, in thirteen passages, and compounded with abhīśu, ibha, iṣṭa, ūdhas, puramdhi and rātiṣāc in one passage each, and with diṣṭi, in four passages. In these four passages, Sāyaṇa, as we have already seen, explains smat as praśasta, bhadra, or kalyāṇa. Likewise, in ten of the remaining passages too, (1, 51, 15 ; 5, 41, 15 ; 5, 41, 19 ; 5, 87, 8 ; 7, 3, 8 ; 8, 18, 4 ; 8, 20, 18 ; 8, 25, 24 ; 8, 26, 19 ; 8, 28, 2) he declares it to be a synonym of, or explains it as, su-, praśasta or śobhana. In explaining 1, 186, 6, he writes : smat sahārthe prāśastye vā vartate | atra praśamsāyām ; and he regards it as the equivalent of saha in 8, 186, 8 and 8, 34, 6 and of saha or praśasta in 7, 87, 3. In 1, 100, 13, he explains it as bhṛśam, in 2, 4, 9 as ati-prabhūtam, in 10, 61, 8, as asmattah, and in 1, 73, 6 as nitya (smac-chabdo nitya-śabda-samānārthaḥ) ; in 10, 42, 4 he regards smadibha as a proper name.

The meanings atiprabhūta, bhṛśa, nitya and asmattah seem to have been invented by Sāyaṇa for the occasion and need not be considered seriously. The meanings śobhana (praśasta, su-) and saha, on the other hand, belong to a different category; and in fact, it is the opinion of Roth (PW), Grassmann, Wackernagel (Alt. Gr. II. 1.p.287), Macdonell (Ind. Gr. p. 424), Oldenberg (RV. Noten II, p. 7) and other European exegetists that smāt is a synonym of saha, while, for my part, I am inclined to prefer the meaning śobhana. See below.

As far as the compound word smāddiṣṭi is concerned, its meaning remains the same whether one regards smāt as the equivalent of saha or of śobhana. In the former case, the word means 'accompanied by good luck,' and in the latter case, 'having good luck.' In either case, therefore, the word smāddiṣṭi means 'with good luck; having good luck.'

The good luck that is referred to here is that caused, or brought, by auspicious marks; for it is the belief of the Indian Aryans that certain marks on the body, borne by men, women, horses, dogs, cocks, etc., bring good or bad luck to the possessor. Such belief, for instance, is alluded to in Āśvalāyana's words (GS. 1, 5, 3): buddhi-rūpa-śīla-lakṣaṇa-saṃpannām arogām upa-yaccheta which enjoin that the girl one marries must have lakṣaṇāni or auspicious marks on her body. A similar injunction is contained in Yājñavalkyasmṛti 1, 52 : avipluta-brahmacaryo lakṣaṇyām striyam udvahet; while Śāṅkh. GS. 1, 5 : kumāryai pāṇim grhṇīyāt | yā lakṣaṇa-saṃpannā syāt | yasyā abhyātmam aṅgāni syuḥ samāḥ keśāntāḥ | āvartāṇv api yasyai syātām pradakṣiṇau grīvāyām | ṣaḍ vīrāṇ janayiṣyati vidyāt specifies some of the auspicious marks and Manu (3, 8-10): nālomikāṃ nātīo-mām . . na piṅgalām haṃsa-vārāṇa-gāminiṃ tanuloma-keśa-daśaṇām mṛdvaṅgīm describes some of the inauspicious as also auspicious marks of a girl.

is a charm against unlucky marks : the gods Savitṛ, Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryaman and Anumati are implored to remove, i.e., to render innocuous, the evil marks (in a woman's body according to Kauśika-sūtra 42, 19 : nir lakṣmyam iti pāpa-lakṣaṇāyā mukham ukṣaty anvṛcam dakṣiṇāt keśa-stukāt) and to confer bhadrāṇi and saubhagam (i.e., auspicious marks) on her. Similarly, Ap.MB. 1, 1, 3 : ābhrātrghnīm varuṇāpatighnīm bṛhaspate | indrāputraghnīm lakṣmyām tām asyaī savitah suva refers to marks that presage good to brothers, husband and sons, and ibid. 1, 10, 3 : yā 'syām patighnī tanūḥ prajā-

² This hymn is translated thus by Whitney (AV. Translation, p. 19):—

“Out we drive the pallid sign, out the niggard ; then whatever things are excellent, those we lead together for our progeny. Savitar has driven out the trouble in her feet ; out have Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryaman [driven] [that] in her hands ; out hath Anumati, bestowing upon us ; the gods have driven this woman forward unto good fortune. Whatever in thy self, in thy body, is frightful, or what in hair or in mien - all that do we smite away with [our] words ; let god Savitar advance thee. The antelope-footed, the bull-toothed, the kine-repelling, the out-blowing, the licked-out, the pallid - these we make disappear from us.”

Geldner's view (Ved. St., 1, 314 ff.) that the whole hymn is concerned with the domestic cat seems to me untenable.

ghnī paśughnī lakṣmighnī jaraghnīm asyai tām kṛṇomi refers to the body, i.e., without doubt, to the bodymarks, that forebode destruction and death of husband, children, cattle and wealth. Similarly, there is no doubt that the expressions āpatighnī and śivā paśúbhyaḥ in RV. 10, 85, 14: ághoracakṣur āpatighny edhi śivā paśúbhyaḥ sumánāḥ suvárcaḥ have the same meaning as the words āpatighnī, etc., have in Ap. MB. 1, 1, 3 cited above and refer to bodily marks that presage good to husband and cattle.

A detailed description of such bodily marks and of their effects is given in Agnipurāṇa, Garuḍapurāṇa, Bṛhat-saṁhitā and other such works. In the last-mentioned book, ch. 69 deals with kanyālakṣaṇa, and Varāhamihira observes in verse 1, after enumerating some auspicious marks, that the person who marries the girl with such marks would become king (tām udvahed yadi bhuvo 'dhipatitvam icchet), and in verse 3, that the marks described therein bring the possessor much wealth (vipulām śriyam ādadhāti). The commentator Bhaṭṭotpala too cites in the course of his commentary on the 3rd and 4th verses, the following observations of Samudra: nābhi-deśaḥ suguptaś ca yasyāḥ sā dhana-bhāginī ; jaghanam vipulam yasyāḥ susparśam romavarjitam | suvarṇā-bharaṇair yuktā sā bhaved rājya-bhāginī. Similarly, Varāhamihira observes in ibid, 61.1-2, with reference to some auspicious marks of the dog and the bitch: yasya syāt sa karoti poṣṭur acirāt puṣṭām śriyam śvā gṛhe and yā sā rāṣṭram kukkurī pāti puṣṭā (i.e., the owner of such bitch becomes the ruler of a kingdom), and in 62.3, with reference to a hen having auspicious marks: sā dadāti suciram mahīkṣitam śrī-yaśo-vijaya-vīrya-saṁpadaḥ. In ibid. 63.2, he describes some auspicious marks of tortoises and remarks of a tortoise having such, that it causes the expansion of the kingdom (so 'pi urpanam raṣṭra-viśuddhyai) and Bhaṭṭotpala cites, in his commentary on 63.3, the verse: strī-putra-matidam vidyāt

kūrman rāṣṭra-vivardhanam. In ibid. 64.9, Varāhamihira, after describing four kinds of well-favoured goats, writes, te catvāraḥ śriyaḥ putrā nālakṣmīke vasanti te; and in 60.18 observes of a bull with auspicious marks that he brings wealth to his owner (svāminam acirāt kurute patim lakṣmyāḥ).

smāddiṣṭi thus primarily signifies 'possessing auspicious marks that bring to the possessor good luck (i.e., śrī, yaśaḥ, viśaya, vīrya, rāja, strī, putra, buddhi, etc., as described above).' Since however the possession of auspicious marks makes for beauty also, the word has the secondary sense of 'handsome, beautiful.' It is a synonym of the words bhadra, kalyāṇa, maṅgala, śobhana, (cf. Amara-kośa 133: bhadram kalyāṇam maṅgalam śubham), subhaga and *subhāga*³ all which mean 'having good luck; handsome, beautiful.'

I shall now show that the above-mentioned two meanings fit well into the context in all the passages in which smāddiṣṭi occurs.

3, 45, 5: svayúr indra svarāḥ asi
smāddiṣṭih svāyaśastarah | sá vāvṛdhāná ójasā puruṣtuta
bhāvā naḥ suśrávastamah ||

"Thou, O Indra, goest wherever thou listest; thou art sovereign, handsome and very famous. O thou that art much praised, be our best hearer, growing in strength." The word svayúḥ in pāda a is obscure. If one interprets it in the manner of aśvayú, vasūyú, rathayú, etc., the meaning would be, 'eager for one's own self,' which is not very intelligible. The word occurs again in

³ bhāga means also 'luck, fortune'; see Apte and compare the words bhāgya and bhāgadheya. There is thus no doubt that subhāga signifies 'having good luck; handsome' in the RV verses in which it is used and that Grassmann is wrong in explaining it as 'schönem Antheil, schönes Gut besitzend' in his Wörterbuch.

2, 4, 7 : sá yó ty ásthad abhi dáksad urvīm paśúr naíti svayúr ágopah where it is said of Agni that he spreads himself on the earth, burning, and that he is svayú, like a cow without a cowherd. svayú seems to denote here, 'one who goes wherever one lists' and I have hence so explained it in 3, 45, 5 also.

sváyaśastara = súyaśastara (see p. 44) and not 'selbstbewusst' as Geldner translates in his RV. Ueber. smāddiṣṭi = having auspicious marks, handsome ; compare the epithets bhadrá and susamḍýś that are applied to Indra in 1, 82, 3 : susamḍýśam tvā vayám mághavan vandiṣīmáhi and 1, 132, 2 : áhann índro yáthā vidé śīrṣṇā-śīrṣṇopavācyah | asmatrá te sadhryàk santu rātáyo bhadrá bhadrásya rātáyah.

6, 63, 9 : *utá ma rjré púrayasya raghvī
sumīlhé śatám peruké ca pákvā | śāṇḍó dād dhiraṇīnah smāddiṣṭīn
dāśa vāsāso abhiṣāca rṣvān ||*

"And [were given] to me two swift mares by Puraya, a hundred by Sumīḍha, and cooked foods by Peruka. Śāṇḍa gave ten oxen, big, obedient (?), having auspicious marks, and adorned with gold ornaments." Regarding the auspicious marks of oxen, see ch. 60 of Bṛhat-samhitā ; and regarding the gift of oxen decked with golden ornaments, compare Mahābhārata 1, 216, 7 : [Pāṇḍubhyah prāhiṇod dhariḥ] dāntān sauvarṇaiḥ śubhraiḥ paṭṭair alamkṛtān.

7, 18, 23 : *catvāro mā paijavanásya dānāḥ
smāddiṣṭayah kṛṣanīno nireké | rjráso mā pṛthiviṣṭhāḥ sudāśas
tokām tokāya śrávase vahanti ||*

"The four fleet horses, decked with golden ornaments and having auspicious marks, given to me by Sudas, son of Pijavana, in the sacrifice, being on the earth, carry me (and my) offspring to offspring and renown." Regarding the auspicious marks of horses, see ch. 65 of Br̥hat-saṁhitā. nircké=vāje, in the sacrifice.

The import of the second hemistich is not clear and the word pr̥thiviṣṭhāḥ in pāda c is perplexing. Geldner, in his Glossar, gives the word as pr̥thiviṣṭhā (though the Saṁhitā and Padapāṭha both have °thāḥ) 'auf der Erde stehend' but does not indicate with what word it is to be construed. Ludwig regards it as an irregular genitive singular referring to Sudās, who, according to him, stays on the earth 'ausz hochachtung' ! It seems plain that the word is an epithet of r̥jvāsah or horses, and I have so explained it in my above translation. I cannot see, however, any force in the word, and I am inclined to believe that the opposite of pr̥thiviṣṭhāḥ, namely, diviṣṭhāḥ, would be much more appropriate here ; compare the expression divi dhāvamānam used of a horse in Kaurayāṇa's Dānastuti of Medhyātithi Kāṇva in 8, 3, 21: yám me dur índro marútaḥ pākasthāmā kaurayāṇaḥ | víśveṣāṁ tmánā sóbhiṣṭham úpeva divi dhāvamānam.

Regarding the words mā . . . tokam in this hemistich, I have followed Geldner (Kommentar) in understanding it as 'me (and my) offspring' ; Sāyaṇa, however, regards tokam as an attribute of mā (tokam putrat pālaniyam mām vasiṣṭham) ; and similarly Oldenberg too (RI. Noten, II, p. 23) suggests the explanation, "(mich) der ich (selbst) das kind (eines berühmten, ähnlich erfolgreichen Vaters) bin."

* * * * *

With reference to the word smāt, I have already observed on p. 237 above that it is the opinion of Sāyaṇa (on 1, 186, 6-8 ; 7, 87, 3), Roth, Grassmann, Oldenberg and other exegetists that it is the equivalent of saha, a meaning, which, it must be acknowledged, fits fairly satisfactorily into the context in all the verses in which the word occurs. I have also observed that Sāyaṇa (on 1, 51, 15 ; 5, 41, 15 ; etc.) has explained the word as the equivalent of su-, praśasta, śobhana, kalyāṇa or bhadra and that, for my part, I am inclined to believe that this is the real meaning of the word. The reasons for such belief are as follow :

1. It is the opinion of Sāyaṇa, given expression to in the course of his commentary on 2, 4, 9 (smat sumad ati-prabhūtam), 8, 26, 19 (smat sumat śobhanam), 8, 25, 24 (smat sumad ukāra-lopaś chāndasaḥ) and 8, 28, 2 (smat sumat śobhanā) that smat is identical with sumat. A like opinion is expressed by Roth, too, who writes (PW ; s.v. sumat) “ Wir halten es für eine andere Aussprache von smat ” ; and similarly Oldenberg, too, observes (RV. Noten, I, p. 76) : “ Dass Identität von sumat und smat aufzugeben ist (Geldner, 1^{ed.} Stud. 2, 190 ; Bartholomae BB. 17, 115), bezweifle ich. Der Gebrauch beider Worte zeigt zu auffallende Gleichartigkeit,” and draws attention to the similar formation of the compounds sumādratha and smād-abhiśu, and of the sentences śidatām sumat and smat sadantu, smac caranti ye. This opinion seems to me to be justified and I agree with the above-named savants that smát is identical with sumát.

This word sumát, too, it is true, is explained by Roth, Grassmann, Oldenberg, and other exegetists as the equivalent of saha.⁴ But Geldner has, in his short article on this word in Ved. St. 2, p. 190, pointed out that Sāyaṇa interprets it as śobhana or kalyāṇa in his commentary on 2, 36, 3; 3, 3, 9; 8, 45, 39; 87, 4; and 10, 32, 3, and expressed the opinion that sumat can be best explained as śobhana. It is his belief that this word is derived from su with the suffix mat and means 'schön;' and in support of such conclusion, he points to the parallelism of sumádratha, used in 3, 3, 9 and 8, 45, 39 of Agni and harī with surátha used likewise of Agni and harī in 4, 2, 4 and 7, 36, 4.

This parallelism is by itself significant enough; but in addition we find the word bhadrá-jānayaḥ in 5, 61, 4 is parallel to sumáj-jāni that occurs in 1, 156, 2 and bhadrá-vrāta in 10, 47, 5 to sumád-gaṇa which occurs in 2, 36, 3; and the word sumád-amśu too, applied to a mare in 1, 100, 6 seems to be parallel to sutúka and sváñc that are applied to horses in 10, 3, 7 and 7, 56, 16. Hence there does not seem to be any doubt that sumat is, as said by Geldner, equivalent to śobhana, kalyāṇa or bhadra; and I shall show presently that this meaning fits well into the context in all the passages in which the word occurs. Since however smat is identical with sumat, it follows that smat too signifies kalyāṇa, śobhana or bhadra.

2. A like conclusion is pointed to by the parallelism of some compounds beginning with smát also. To the ⁴ The other explanations proposed for this word which is enumerated in the Nighaṇṭu (4,3) are:—svayam (Yāska in Nirukta 6, 22, 3; Durga and Devarāja); svayam or svataḥ (Sāyaṇa on RV. 1, 142, 7; 162, 7; 5, 2, 4; 1, 100, 16) and suṣṭhu mādyanti hr̥ṣyanti (Sāyaṇa on TS. 4, 6, 8, 3; Mahidhara on VS. 26, 24). See Geldner, l. c.

word smād-abhiṣu, used of a horse in 8, 25, 24 corresponds the word svabhiṣu used likewise of horses in 8, 68, 16-18; to the word smād-diṣṭi correspond, as already pointed out above, the words subhāga and subhāgá; and to the word smād-rātiṣācaḥ 'conferring splendid gifts' in 8, 28, 2: váruṇo mitró aryamā smādrātiṣāco agnáyaḥ corresponds surātáyaḥ in 9, 81, 4: ā naḥ pūṣā pávamā-naḥ surātáyo mitró gacchantu váruṇaḥ sajóṣasaḥ.

It is therefore my belief that sumát or smát is the equivalent of śobhana, kalyāṇa or bhadra; and I shall now show that this meaning fits well into the context in all passages. I shall begin with those in which the form sumat occurs.

1, 100, 16: rohīc chyāvā sumād-amśur lalāmīr

"The red brown (mare) of fine speed, bright (i.e., glossy), pleasing, having a spot on the forehead, that has been given to Rjṛāśva and draws the chariot yoked with a steer has attracted notice among the Nahus clans." sumād-amśu in pāda a is somewhat ambiguous. Geldner, in his RV. Ueber., translates it as 'schöngezeichnet (?)' and observes: "sumād-amśu; mit schönen oder gleichmässigen amśú versehen, amśú unbekannt, ob von der Zeichnung oder sonstigen Zieraten des Tiers?" Apte, in his Dictionary, assigns to this word the meanings, among others, of (1) lustre, brilliance; (2) speed; and (3) garment, decoration; and I have in the above translation, preferred the meaning 'speed.' Compare the epithets sutuka, and svāñc, both meaning 'fine-going, i.e., swift' that are applied to horses in 10, 3, 7: agnīḥ sutúkaḥ sutúkebhir āśvaiḥ and 7, 56, 16: átyāso ná yé marútaḥ svāñcaḥ. It is however possible that the poet may have used the word amśu here in the sense of 'lustre, brilliance' (cp. the epithet śobhiṣṭham applied to a horse in 8, 3, 21 : vīśveṣām tmānā śóbhiṣṭham ūpeva divi dhāvamānam ; compare also the epithet candrāmśu-sama-varcasām in the Mahābhārata passage, 1, 247, 40 cited below) or of 'garment, decoration' ; compare the epithets hiraṇīnaḥ and kṛṣaṇīnaḥ in 6, 63, 2 and 7, 18, 23 cited above. Compare also 8, 68, 16 : surāthāñ ātithigvé svabhīśūñr ārkṣé | āśvamedhé supéśasaḥ and Māhabhārata 1, 216, 17 : [Pāṇḍubhyaḥ prāhiṇod dhariḥ] gajān vinītān bhadraṁś ca sad-aśvāṁś ca svalaṁkṛtān | rathāṁś ca dāntān sauvarṇaiḥ subhraiḥ paṭṭair alaṁkṛtān ; ibid. 1, 247, 40 : vāḍavānāṁ ca śuddhānāṁ candrāmśu-sama-varcasām | dadau Janārdanaḥ prītyā sahasraṁ hema-bhūṣitam ॥

"He who makes offerings to Viṣṇu, the old, very young, wise one, that has a beautiful wife; he who announces the great birth of this great one, he will surpass even his friend in renown." As observed above, sumājjāni is the synonym of bhadra-jāni that occurs in 5, 61, 4 : pārā vīrāsa etana máryāso bhádra-jānayaḥ, and means 'he who has a beautiful wife.' It is very probable that, in both verses, the beautiful wives are thought of as accompanying their husbands. Geldner's translation of the word as 'dem die Frauen lieb sind' (RV. Ueber., p. 193) seems to me to be incorrect : so far as we know, -jāni denotes 'wife' and not 'woman' and smát does not mean 'lieb.'

Compare the expressions syonām barhīḥ in 10, 110, 4 ; surabhī bhūtv asmé . . barhiḥ in 10, 70, 4 and the epithet su- in the term subarhis which occurs in 1, 74, 5 and 8, 20, 25. The meaning of yahvā is not quite certain and my translation, 'always moving,' is merely tentative.

" He [sc. the sacrificial horse] has gone—a fine hymn has been made and offered by me—to the region of the gods, he who has a comfortable back. The inspired seers glorify him. Regarding sumat mānma, compare the expressions cārur matiḥ and śundhyūr matiḥ in 9, 91, 14 : hṛdā matīm janaye cārum agnáye ; 6, 8, 1 : vaiśvānarāya matīr návyasī śuciḥ sóma iva pavate cārur agnáye ; 7, 88, 1 : prā śundhyūtām vāruṇāya prēsthām matīm vasiṣṭha mīlhuṣe bharaśva and the terms sūktā, suṣṭutī and sumatī (for references see Grassmann s.v.) meaning 'beautiful hymn.'

8, 87, 4 : píbatam sómam mádhumantam aśvinā

“Drink, O ye two Aśvins, the sweet Soma juice. Sit on the beautiful barhis. Making our hymn glorious, come ye here from heaven (as swift) as two buffaloes go to the hole (filled with water; to slake their thirst).” ivériṇam=hole (filled with water); see Pischel, Ved. St. 2, 224. The tertium comparationis in the simile here is swiftness; compare 8, 4, 3 : yáthā gauró apā kṛtām tṛṣyann éty ávériṇam | āpitvé naḥ prāpitvé tūyám ā gahi kánveṣu sú sácā piba. And hence it also becomes plain that it is not to the hymn, suṣṭuti (as Sāyaṇa, Ludwig and Pischel l.c. opine) that the Aśvins are exhorted to come quickly, but to the Soma juice mentioned in pāda a; compare also in this connection 7, 69, 6 : nārā gauréva vidyútam tṛṣāṇā 'smākam adyá savanópa yātam and 8, 35, 7-9 : sómam sutām mahiṣé-ṛāva gacchathah. The word suṣṭutīm is to be construed with vāvṛdhānā which is used in the causative sense (and upa with gantam); compare 10, 25, 10 : matīm víprasya vardhayat and 8, 36, 7 : índra bráhmāṇi vardháyan. The meaning of the expression suṣṭutīm vāvṛdhānā is ‘making glorious the hymn’; that is, ‘making known that the hymn is potent and has achieved its object by bestowing favours upon us.’

“I saw him very splendid-looking like a noble herd moving away from the field. They (fem.) did not seize him, for he was born; the grey-haired women became young.” Hymn 5.2, in which this verse occurs, is obscure and very diverse views have been expressed about its import; see Sieg's Sagenstoffe des RV., p. 66 ff.;

Oldenberg, SBE. 46, 368; and RV. Noten, I, 311, and the literature cited therein. I am not therefore at all certain that the translation given above is in conformity with the idea which the poet had in his mind when he composed the above verse. I do not know who are meant by tāḥ in pāda c, nor what connection they have with the 'grey-haired women that became young' (or 'the youthful women that became grey-haired') mentioned in pāda d. The comparison in the first hemistich, too, is obscure; and in fact, Oldenberg, RV. Noten, l.c. doubts whether there is a comparison there. Compare, however, Kirātārjunīya, 4, 10: upāratāḥ paścima-rātri-gocarād apārayantaḥ patitum javena gām | tam utsukāś cakrur avekṣaṇotsukam gavām gaṇāḥ prasruta-pīvaraudhasaḥ in which the herds of kine moving away from the fields in which they had grazed (towards home) are described as making Arjuna 'desirous of seeing them,' i.e., as having been 'worthy of being seen' or 'beautiful.'⁵

⁵One particular beauty that is referred to by the above verse as being worthy of admiration in the herds of cows, is their large udders that were oozing milk. The large udder of the cow is mentioned in Raghuvamśa 2, 18: āpīna-bhārodvahana-prayatnād grṣṭir gurutvād vapuṣo narendraḥ | ubhāv alaṁcakratur aṅcitābhyām tapo-vanāvṛtti-patham gatābhyām also. In ibid, 1, 82-84:

*anindyā Nandinī nāma dhenur āvavṛte vanāt ||
lalāṭodayam ābhugnam pallava-snigdha-pāṭalā |
bibhratī śveta-romāṅkam sandhyeva śaśinam navam ||
bhuvam koṣṇena kuṇḍodhnī medhyenāvabhṛthād api |
prasravenābhivarṣantī vatsāloka-pravartinā ||*

not only the large udder overflowing with milk, but the white crescent-like mark on the forehead are mentioned as points of beauty.

The large udder, it may be observed, is associated with the moving away (towards home) from the grazing pasture, because it is only after the cow has grazed its fill that its udder becomes filled with milk and large in size. Hence the express mention of 'moving away from the field' in RV. 5, 2, 4 and in the verses cited above from the Kirātārjunīya and Raghuvamśa.

With sumat in 5, 2, 4, should be compared the word anindyā (Mallinatha: anindyā praśastā) in Raghu. 1, 82 cited above, and puṇya-darśanā in ibid, 1, 86.

“That the son should remember the birth of his parents,—this has seemed to me more remarkable than what is remarkable. The beautiful wife marries the husband with a shout; a splendid wedding has been made ready for the man.” The sense of this verse is not very clear; see Oldenberg, RV. Noten, II, 237. vapuṣo vāpuṣṭaram = citrāc citrataram or most remarkable. vagnu, shout, in pāda c, denotes perhaps a ‘shout of joy’ and sumat, in the same pāda, refers, I conceive, to jāyā rather than to vagnu as Sāyaṇa and Geldner (Ved. St. 2, 190) opine. It corresponds to bhadrá vadhūḥ in 10, 27, 12 : bhadrá vadhūr bhavati yāt supésāḥ and sumaṅgalīr vadhūḥ in 10, 85, 33 : sumaṅgalīr iyám vadhūr imām saméta páśyata.

The verse is addressed to Agni and refers to the milch-cow and the waters that are necessary for the offering of oblations. vāvaśānāḥ in pāda a is ambiguous; it may mean ‘lowing’ (as translated above) or ‘longing for: eager.’ See pp. 85 ff. above.

Compare the epithets bhūrṇayaḥ, iṣirāsaḥ and svāñcaḥ that are applied to spāsaḥ in 9, 73, 4: ásya spáso ná ní miṣanti bhūrṇayaḥ and 9, 73, 7: rudrāsa eṣām iṣirāso adrúhaḥ spāsaḥ svāñcaḥ sudṛśo nṛcákṣasaḥ.

The word vīprā in pāda b has caused some difficulty to the exegetists. Sāyaṇa regards it as accusative dual and explains it as—vīprā viprau medhāvinau | medhāvi stotā yathā stutyam devam stutibhiḥ prīṇayati tadvat samtoṣakau. So also does Ludwig who however translates the verse as, ‘zugleich gewann ich die beiden [göttlichen] Brāhmaṇa mit hieher gewandtem zügel mit der geizsel in der hand und die beiden groszen kraftvollen renner’ and thus makes out that the vīprā or two Brāhmaṇas formed part of the gift which the poet received! Grassman (s.v. vīprā) and Oldenberg (RI. Notcn, I, 83), on the other hand, regard it as feminine instrumental singular (and attribute of matī). It seems to me however that the most natural course by far is to regard it as vocative dual, referring to Mitra and Varuṇa to whom the hymn is addressed; compare for instance 8, 68, 15:

rjṛāṇ indrotá ā dade hārī īkṣasya sūnāvi | āśvamedhāsya rōhitā and 6, 47, 22: prastoká in nú rādhasas ta indra dāśa kōśayir dāśa vajino dāt in which the vocative indra is used in Dānastutis. Compare also 1, 2, 9: kavi no mitrāvāruṇā tuzijātā urukṣāyā and 5, 71, 2: viśvasya hī pracetasā vāruṇa mitra rājathah in which the epithets kavi and pracetasā, meaning viprā, are applied to Mitra and Varuṇa and also 6, 68, 3: tā gr̥ṇīhi namasyēbhiḥ sūśaiḥ sumnébhir indrāvāruṇā cakānā | vājrenānyāḥ sāvasā hānti vrtrām śisakty anyo vṛjāneṣu viprah and 7, 88, 4-6: stotāram viprah sudinatvé áhnām . . yandhī śmā vipra stuvaté vārūtham in which the epithet vipra is applied to Varuṇa.

smādrātiṣāco agnāyah |
pātnīvanto vāṣatḥkṛtāḥ ||*

“Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryamā, the Agnis, with their splendid gifts, and their wives,—to them is vaṣat called (i.e., to them are oblations offered).” As already observed, smādrātiṣācaḥ is equivalent to surātāyah occurring in 9, 81, 4 cited above; and hence it is very probable that the word is here an attribute, not only of the Agnis, but of Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman also.

8, 34, 6: *smāt-puraṁdhir na ā gahi

“Come to our help, thou with glorious blessings that hast thoughts on all sides; the rulers of this heaven have gone to heaven, O Divavasu.” Or, should we interpret smāt-puraṁdhiḥ as ‘he whose wife is handsome’? Compare in this connection 3, 53, 6: kalyāṇīr jāyā surāṇam gr̥hé te ‘A handsome wife is (thy) joy in thy house’; 10, 86, 11: indrāṇīm āsú nāriṣu subhāgām ahām aśravam ‘Among these women, I have heard that Indra’s wife is (the most) handsome’; and TB. 2, 4, 2, 7:

indrāṇī devī subhāgā supātñī. As in 1, 156, 2 and 5, 61, 4 (see p. 246 above), it is possible that the prayer addressed to Indra to attend the sacrifice includes his wife also. Compare 1, 82, 6 : pūṣaṇvān vajrin sám u pātñyāmadah 'Accompanied by Pūṣan, hast thou, O Vajra-bearer, revelled with thy wife.'

The meaning of the second hemistich which forms the refrain of the first fifteen verses of this hymn, is obscure. Sāyaṇa explains it as, amuṣya amuṣminn indre śāsataḥ śāsati | vibhaktivyatyayah | tatra vyaṁ sukham āsmahe he divāvaso dīptahaviṣkcndra divaṁ svargaṁ yaya yūyaṁ gacchatha | bahuvacanaṁ pūjārtham | yad vā | he divāvaso dyu-nāmakam amuṣya amuṁ lokam śāsanam kurvanto yūyaṁ divaṁ svargaṁ yaya gacchatha | atra bahu-vacanaṁ pūjārtham. Grassmann translates it as: "Von jenes Herrschers Himmel kamt ihr (i.e., Indra and his horses) zu dem Feste Tageshell", and Ludwig as, "auf jenes Dyaus befel seid ihr auch [o falben], o Divāvasu, zum himel gegangen." These interpretations are all unsatisfactory and that given by me above is scarcely better though I have adopted in it Oldenberg's suggestion (RV. Noten, II, 105) that śāsataḥ is nominative plural and not genitive singular.

"This adoration (hymn) has been recited for the strong bull, sovereign, whose courage is strong; in this distress, O Indra, may we with all our men and with our noble patrons be in thy protection." smāt sūribhiḥ = bhadraiḥ sūribhiḥ, fortunate patrons; i.e., noble and rich patrons; compare the epithet suajāta, noble, applied to sūri in 2, 2, 11 : sā no bodhi sahasya praśāmsyo yāsmiṁ sujātā iṣāyanta sūri āyah and 5, 6, 2 : sām ārvanto raghu- drūvaḥ sām sujatāsaḥ sūrāyaḥ ; compare also 10, 81, 6 : mūhyante anyé abhīto jānāsa ihāsmākaṁ maghāvā sūrīr astu. It must be observed however that though I have followed the current practice of Vedic exegetists (Roth, Grassmann, Oldenberg, etc.) in translating the word sūrī here as 'patron,' I am not satisfied that this is the real meaning of the word. Compare also Geldner (RV. Ueber., p. 419): "Die eigentliche Bedeutung von sūrī ist noch unsicher."

1, 100, 13 : tāsya vājraḥ krandati smāt svarṣā

"His beautiful thunderbolt, that wins light, roars ; the sound is terrible and overpowering like that of Dyaus. Him follow successes and prizes. May Indra with the Maruts come to our help." smat vajraḥ = śobhano vajraḥ ; compare 8, 70, 2 : hástāya vājraḥ prāti dhāyi darśatāḥ and 9, 97, 1 : eṣá prá kóṣe mādhumān acikradad índrasya vājro vápuṣo vápuṣṭaraḥ. Regarding the simile in pāda b, compare 1, 58, 2 : divó ná sānu stanāyann acikradat ; 4, 10, 4 : prá te divó ná stanayanti śúṣmāḥ ; 7, 3, 6 : divó ná te tanyatúr eti śúṣmaḥ and other similar verses in which the sound of Dyaus, i.e., thunder, is mentioned as upamāna.

"And may Tvaṣṭṛ also come to us gladly in the evening with the glorious and gracious gods and goddesses. May Indra, the killer of Vṛtra, the strongest of heroes, who fulfils (the expectations of) men, come here." The meaning of sūrī is, as observed above, uncertain. We know however that it is used to denote the gods (see Grassmann, s.v.) ; and since gods and their wives are mentioned in 2, 36, 3 explained above and also in 6, 50, 13 : tváṣṭā devébhīr jānibhiḥ sajóṣāḥ and 10, 64, 10 : tváṣṭā devébhīr jānibhiḥ pitā vācaḥ in connection with Tvaṣṭr, I regard the word here as an ekāśeṣa referring to gods and their wives.

“ And may the Maruts also, with a great army (i.e., who are many in number and form a great army by themselves),—the beautiful Rodasī (also)—sit, unanimous, on our (barhis), the gods with spotted horses, whose chariots (move as swiftly) as rivers, who are as difficult to check as those joined with their allies.” The translation of pāda d is tentative as the meaning of riśādasah is not certain. I am however inclined to believe that it means ‘swift; wild; impetuous; difficult to check’ (compare Pischel in Ved. St. 3, 190 ff.) and that the comparison concerns kings on the offensive who have effected a junction with their allies. Compare 1, 190, 6 : durniyántuḥ páriprīto ná mitráḥ ‘difficult to check like an ally who is well-pleased.’ smád ródasī = bhadrá rodasī; compare the epithet bhadraajānayaḥ that is applied to the Maruts in 5, 61, 4 : pārā vīrāsa etana máryāso bhádraajānayaḥ with reference (presumably) to Rodasī.

‘That the Gr̥tsamadas, O Agni, attacking secretly, may, through thee, overcome (their) neighbours (and become) possessed of fine sons (and) conquerors of enemies—bestow such strength on the noble patrons and on the praiser (i.e., priest).’ The sense of pada b is obscure. The epithet guhā vanvantaḥ ‘attacking or winning secretly' is one that is more suited to the enemies of Agni's worshippers rather than to such worshippers themselves. The verb as with abhi, too, in the sense of 'overcome' takes generally in the RV objects like ṛtanāyūn (3, 1, 16: abhi śyāma ṛtanāyūñr ádevān), śatrūn (1, 178, 5: tváyā vayám maghavann indra śatrūn abhi śyāma), rakṣasaḥ (10, 132, 2: yuvóḥ krāñāya sakhyaír abhi śyāma rakṣásaḥ), and similar words; and it is strange to meet with the word uparān here as its object. Geldner therefore translates (RV. Ueber.) the pāda as, 'die Nebenbuhler (?) heimlich überwinden' and observes, "úpara scheint hier und 6, 2, 11 eine von der sonstigen abweichende Bedeutung zu haben. In 7, 48, 3 (wo uparátāti, vgl. av. uparatāt—) spricht ihm aryáḥ, also entweder rivalis, Nebenbuhler oder (mehr in Anlehnung an den avest. Sinn von upara) überlegen."

"At every step has old age been placed. May the great mother Rasā, mighty, bestowing beneficent gifts, with beneficent things in her hands, who protects us with protections, help us (and) our noble patrons." jarimā in pāda a means perhaps 'long life'; compare 10, 59, 4: dyúbhir hitó jarimā sū no astu and Oldenberg's observation thereon (RV. Noten, II, p. 197), 'jarimān wohl in günstigem Sinn als "langes Leben" zu verstehen, vgl. 10, 87, 21 [sákhe sakhāyam ajáro jarimñé 'gne mártāñ ámarthyas tvám naḥ].' It has no connection with the other words of the verses, and seems to be used as a sort of interjection. See PW and Grassmann. smád rathyàḥ = praśastā rathyaḥ as explained by Sāyaṇa, that is, clever charioteers who know how to drive.

The word purah, 'citadels,' has to be understood here after adhr̥ṣṭāḥ; compare 7, 15, 14: ādihā mahi na āyasy ānādhṛṣṭo nṛpitaye | pūr bhavā śatābhujih and 10, 101, 8: pūrah kṛnudhvam āyasir ādhr̥ṣṭāḥ and also pāda d of the preceding verse: śatām pūrbhir āyasibhir nī pāhi. Regarding the expression pūrbhir uruṣyāḥ, compare 1, 58, 8: āgne gr̥nāntam āmhasa uruṣyórjo napāt pūrbhir āyasibhiḥ; and regarding gira uruṣyāḥ, compare 10, 177, 2: tām dyótamānām svaryām manīṣām ṛtāsya padé kaváyo nī pānti; 10, 93, 11: etām sámśam indra . . . sádā pāhi; and 7, 56, 19: imé [sc. marutaḥ] sámśam vanuṣyató nī pānti. smát sūrīn= bhadrān sūrīn.

smān mīl̥húṣas cāranti yé |

"The liberal ones (i.e., worshippers) who adore the Maruts, who serve (i.e., worship) the gracious ones that rain blessings,—turn, O ye youths, even from thence (i.e., from heaven) towards us with very gracious mind." sudānavah is an epithet of worshippers; compare 8, 103, 7: áśvam ná gīrbhī rathyām sudānavo marmṛjyānte devayāvaḥ and 9, 74, 4: samicīnāḥ sudānavah prīṇanti tām nárah. smát= bhadrān; compare the epithet subhaga applied to the Maruts in 5, 60, 6: yád uttamé maruto madhyamé vā yád vāvamé subhagāso diví ṣṭhā. The epithet mīlhuṣaḥ is applied to the Maruts in 1, 173, 12 also: mahás cid yásya mīlhuṣo yavyā havīṣmato marúto vandate gīḥ. ye in the first hemistich seems to have as antecedent naḥ in the third pāda.

The words arhanti and caranti in the first hemistich are perplexing and I follow Sāyaṇa in interpreting them as pūjayanti (cp. 10, 77, 1: sumārutaṁ ná brahmāṇam arháse) and saparyanti (cp. the verb paricar) respectively. Grassmann (no. 640) translates the hemistich as, "Die reich an Gaben selbst den Maruts kommen gleich, und zu den gnäd'gen gehn im Chor," and Ludwig (no. 702) as, "die Marut, die trefflich begabten, die hieher regnend gehn, sie die anspruch haben."

"And this Śvetayāvarī with a golden path, that among rivers, flows the best for ye, by this beautiful, well-famed Śvetā, drive with my prayer, O ye Aśvins with a splendid team." śvetā=Śvetayāvarī, and śvetayā, 'by Śvetā,' means probably 'to the bank of Śvetā,' where, according to Sāyaṇa, the ṛṣi was invoking the Aśvins.

10, 61, 8: *sá īm vīṣā ná phénam asyad ājaú
smād ā páraid āpa dabhráacetāḥ | sárat padā ná dáksīṇā parāvṛṇ
ná tā nú me pṛsanyò jagṛbhre ||*

This verse, as in fact, the whole hymn in which the verse occurs, is obscure. I translate tentatively, "Like a bull in a race, he threw forth froth; the handsome one went away weak in mind. He walked with the right foot turned away, as it were, thinking 'The Pṛsanis have not got hold of me.'"

The word smat occurs further in 10, 49, 4 (túgram kútsāya smādibham ca randhayam) in the compound smādibha ('having a fine elephant') which is generally regarded as a proper name (PW, Grassmann, Sayana, Pischel and Geldner in Ved. St., 1, p. xvi.).

The word sumat too occurs, further, in the compound sumādgu in AV. 5, 1, 7 and in the compound sumāt-kṣara in three Praiṣa formulæ (VS. 21, 43-45; TB. 3, 6, 11, 1; MS. 4, 13, 7; KS. 18, 21). AV. 5, 1, 7, as in fact, the whole of the hymn 5, 1, is very obscure (Whitney, in his AV. Translation, remarks of it that it is 'intentionally and most successfully obscure'). Whitney has translated sumādgu there as 'with kine'; but there seems to be no doubt that it means 'having fine cows,' and that it is the equivalent of sugú in RV. 1, 125, 2: sugúr asat suhiranyás sváśvah. sumāt-kṣara (which is an epithet applied to the offering of fat and cooked flesh made to the gods) is explained by Roth (PW) as 'träufelnd, vollsaftig.' This explanation is unsatisfactory, and the word really signifies 'beautifully melting', that is, 'melting delightfully in the mouth' or 'delicious.'⁶

In conclusion, I would observe that, in the verses in which the words smāt and sumāt are used by themselves uncompounded, it is difficult to determine with what word they are to be construed. Thus in 10, 32, 3, I have construed sumāt with jāyā while Geldner (Ved. St. 2, l. c.) and Sāyana construe it with vagnínā. In 2, 4, 9, Sāyana construes smāi with váyah, and in 1, 100, 13, with krandati while I have construed them with sūrībhyah and vájrah. Similarly, it is possible to construe it with śárman in 1, 51, 15 (compare the words su-śárman and su-śáraṇa) and with nipāhi in 7, 3, 8 (compare su-gopāh; su-ūti). I have therefore in the translations given above construed it in what seemed to me to be the best way.

paḍbhīḥ

There has been much dispute about the interpretation of this word which occurs in six verses of the RV and in two passages of other texts; for literature in connection with it, see Oldenberg in ZDMG. 63, 300.

paḍbhīḥ is mentioned in the Nighaṇṭu in 4, 2, along with other difficult words; and Yāska, in his Nirukta (5, 3), explains it as pānair iti vā spāśanair iti vā.¹ Sāyaṇa explains it uniformly as pādaiḥ in his RV commentary; and so apparently do Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara in their commentaries on VS. 23, 13.

These facts, namely, Sāyaṇa's unvarying explanation of paḍbhīḥ as pādaiḥ and the similar explanations of Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara, lead me to conjecture that this explanation was borrowed by these commentators from Yāska, that Yāska, in fact, explained the word as pādair iti vā spāśanair iti vā, and that the word pānaiḥ found in the MSS is a corruption of the original reading pādaiḥ.

In other words, I am inclined to believe that Yāska looked upon paḍbhīḥ (1) as equivalent to pādaiḥ, or (2) as derived from the root spāś. According to Devarāja (l.c.), this root spāś signifies 'to bind' and paḍbhīḥ is equivalent to bandhanaiḥ. According to Wackernagel (Ai. Gr., I, 172), Macdonell (Ved. Gr., 34) and other

Durga's commentary on the Nirukta shows that he did not know of this explanation. On the other hand, Devarāja's explanation of paḍbhīḥ in his scholium on the Nighaṇṭu (p. 408 of Satyavrata Sāmaśramin's ed.) shows that the words spāśanair iti vā formed part of the Nirukta in his time. For the rest, the explanations of both these writers show that the Nirukta codex which they had before them had the reading pānaiḥ.

exegetists however, paḍbhīḥ is derived not only from paś 'to bind' but also from spāś 'to see.' And thus there are altogether three meanings proposed for the word paḍbhīḥ.

The European exegetists differ from one another by preferring or rejecting one or more of these three meanings. Thus, Roth, in the PW, says that paḍbhīḥ denotes pādaiḥ generally, but that the word used in RV. 4, 2, 12 is derived from spāś 'to see' and signifies 'glances' or 'eyes' ². Ludwig, in his RV. Ueber., 4, 309, questions both these derivations and says that paḍbhīḥ is derived from paś=pāśa or rope; later however, in 5, 626, he is inclined to admit the derivation from spāś 'to see' in connection with 4, 2, 12; 14. Bartholomae too, in Bez. Beitr. XV, 3 ff., similarly rejects the meaning paḍbhīḥ or pādaiḥ and derives the word from paś 'glance' and from paś 'rope.' Pischel, Ved. St. 1, 228 ff. admits all the three meanings, while Bloomfield, in AJPh. 11, 350 ff., opines that paḍbhīḥ signifies pādaiḥ everywhere and that it is not the instrumental plural of paś 'glance (eye)' or paś 'rope.' This is the opinion of Oldenberg also (ZDMG. 63, 300 ff.) who however interprets some of the verses in which paḍbhīḥ occurs differently from Bloomfield. Similarly Geldner ³ too, in his RV. Ueber. (I, 376), has translated paḍbhīḥ as 'with feet.'

Now, it cannot be disputed that paḍbhīḥ means 'with feet' in Kauś. Sūtra 44, 17: yaḍ vaśā māyuma akrata uro vā paḍbhīḥ āhata | agnir mā tasmād enaso viśvān muñcatv amhasaḥ which is to be recited when the vaśā is being slain. Not only does the meaning 'with feet' fit well here in the context, but the parallel versions of this mantra in TS. 3, 1, 4, 3; Sāma-mantra-brāh.

³ Geldner, in his RV. Glossar, had, like Pischel, admitted all the three meanings.

2, 2, 11; Kāt. ŚS. 25, 9, 12; Śāṅkh. ŚS. 4, 17, 12; Mānava-ŚS. 1, 8, 3, 34 and Gobh. GS. 3, 10, 28 actually read paḍbhiḥ here without cerebralization; so also do in fact many MSS of the Kauśika-sūtra itself. The meaning of the mantra therefore is: "If the vaśā has cried or beat (its) breast with (its) feet,—may Agni free me from that sin and all (other) sins." Similarly, there can be no doubt that paḍbhiḥ = pādaiḥ in VS. 23, 13 (= Śata. Br. 13, 2, 7, 6): eṣā sya rāthyo vṛṣā paḍbhiś catúrbhir éd agan. The expression catúrbhiḥ paḍbhiḥ here is, as already pointed out by Pischel (l.c. 352), parallel to the expression catúrbhiḥ paḍbhiḥ in AV. 3, 7, 2: ānu tvā hariṇó vṛṣā paḍbhiś catúrbhir akramīt and AV. 4, 14, 9: paḍbhiś catúrbhiḥ prāti tiṣṭha dikṣú; and the passage therefore means: "This excellent chariot-horse has indeed come with four feet."

The meaning pādaiḥ however does not suit the context in RV. 10, 79, 2: átrāṇy asmai paḍbhiḥ sám bharanty uttānáhastā námasā 'dhi vikṣú; for, it is difficult to imagine food being carried to Agni with feet by his worshippers. Bloomfield proposes therefore to interpret paḍbhiḥ as 'nimbly' here and explains (l. c. 352-3) thus how the word comes to have this meaning: "The phrase paḍbhiś catúrbhiḥ expresses the simple notion that the speed of animals is due to their character as quadrupeds. Animals run swiftly with their four feet, and because of their four feet. If the notion is generalized, paḍbhiś, when used of human beings, may have been felt in contrast to paḍbhyām to mean 'with (four) feet' and thus 'quickly, nimbly, briskly,' etc. RV. v. 64. 7 cd ā paḍbhír dhāvataṁ narā bíbhratāv arcanānasam 'run hither nimbly, O ye two heroes, to preserve Arcanānas.' RV. x. 99. 12, cvā mahó asura vakṣáthāya vamrakáh paḍbhír úpa sarpaḍ indram 'thus, O Asura, did great Vamraka quickly come to Indra for prosperity.' It seems difficult to imagine another meaning of paḍbhiś in these two passages, especially the last. Pischel has left it untranslated, though admitting that paḍbhīḥ comes from pād 'foot;' it seems simply inane to translate 'Vamraka went to Indra with his feet (plural!).' We venture the same exegesis for paḍbhīḥ in RV. x. 79. 2: ātrāṇy asmāi paḍbhīḥ sām bharanty, uttanāhastā nāmasā 'dhi vikṣú 'nimbly do they carry together fuel for him,' etc. Bartholomae and Pischel follow Ludwig in regarding paḍbhīḥ as a ritual expression, equivalent to idhma-samnahana, and translate 'they bring together his fuel with ropes,' etc. But the hymn is mystical, and it seems unlikely that a dry technical detail of the ritual should appear singly in such connection."

This explanation is more ingenious than convincing; for, even granting that paḍbhīḥ 'with feet,' when used with verbs of motion in connection with human beings, means 'briskly,' 'nimbly,' one fails to see why it should have this meaning in 10, 79, 2 where there is no verb of motion. Similarly, the explanations of Ludwig and Pischel (l. c. 237) that paḍbhīḥ means 'with rope' here and refers to the idhma-samnahana-rajju (or string with which the samidhs are tied together) are unconvincing. Likewise, it is also evident that the meaning 'eyes' or 'glances' does not fit the context here at all. Hence it is clear that paḍbhīḥ in 10, 79, 2 must have a signification different from the three mentioned above.

Now, Amarasimha, in his lexicon, mentions (1, 4, 1) among synonyms of mati the words buddhi, manīṣā, dhiṣanā, dhī, prajñā, śemuṣī and prekṣā, of which the last-mentioned word prekṣā is derived from pra+īkṣ 'to see'; similarly, he mentions in 2, 7, 5f., the words dūradarśin, dīrgha-darśin, and vicakṣaṇa, all derived from roots meaning 'to see,' among synonyms of dhīra and manīṣin 'weise, verständig, nachdenkend'; and most of the verbs meaning 'to see' in Sanskrit, as for instance, ā+lok, ā+loc, īkṣ, drś, lok, signify 'to understand, to comprehend' also; ⁴ see Apte; see also Grassmann s. v. īkṣ, ci 2, drś, vi+cakṣ, vicakṣaṇa, etc.

⁴ Similarly, verbs meaning 'to see' have the sense of 'to understand, to comprehend' in many European languages also.

It is my opinion that the word paś, derived from spas 'to see', is, like the above-mentioned word prekṣā, a synonym of mati, dhī, manīṣā, dhīti, etc. paḍbhīḥ thus is equivalent to matibhiḥ, dhībhiḥ, dhītibhiḥ or manīṣābhiḥ; and I shall now show that this meaning fits well into the context in all the six RV verses in which the word occurs.

“ Thus, O great one, did Vamraka, for the strengthening of (thee) that art strong, approach with hymns, (thee) Indra. He, being approached, makes happiness for this (Vamraka); (he) has brought food, vigour, fine dwelling and all.”

It is the opinion of Roth (in the PW) that vamraka in pāda b means ‘ant.’ This view is justly criticised by Pischel who writes thus on p. 238, l. c. : “ Dass Vamraká nicht, wie Roth meint, “ Ameischen ” bedeutet, geht klar aus dem Beiworte mahá hervor. “ Ein grosses Ameischen ” wäre doch gar zu sonderbar und nicht weniger seltsam wäre es, mahás als Genetiv sing. zu fassen, zu vakṣáthāya zu ziehen und auf Indra zu deuten.
Dass ein Ameischen dem Indra zum gedeihen verhelfen sollte, ist schwer zu glauben und wird direkt widerlegt durch den folgenden Vers sá iyānáḥ karati svastīm asmā iṣam ūrjam sukṣitīm víśvam ābhāḥ. sá kann nur Indra, asmā nur Vamraka sein. Vamraká ist Eigenname and wohl identisch mit Vamra 1, 112, 15 (10, 99, 5?).”
Similarly, vamraká is regarded as a proper name by Bloomfield (l.c.), Grassmann and Ludwig. Śaṅkara too regards it as a proper name, and identifies, as I think, quite correctly, this Vamraka, with the Vamra Vaikhanasa who, according to the Sarvānukramanī, is the seer of this verse.

In pāda a, the vocative asura refers naturally to Indra who is the deity of this stanza and is mentioned in pāda b ; compare in this connection 1, 154, 3 ; 1, 174, 1

and other verses (see Grassmann s. v.) in which this epithet is applied to Indra. The word maháh is apparently regarded as a dative by Ludwig who translates mahó vakṣáthāya as 'zu grossem wachsthum,' while Grassmann opines that it is a genitive and refers to Indra. It is, as we have seen, looked upon as nominative singular by Pischel and also by Bloomfield (l. c.) and interpreted as 'great.' This view seems to me to be incorrect; for, nowhere else in the RV do we see a priest or singer characterised as 'great'; on the other hand, some of the seers call themselves nāḍhamāna 'distressed' (see Grassmann s.v.). I believe therefore with Grassmann that maháh is a genitive and refers to Indra, and I hence supply after it the word te; compare 4, 24, 7: vṛddhásya cid vardhatām asya tanúḥ stómebhir uktháís ca śasyámānā 'May the body of this (Indra), though he is strong, become strong (er), being praised with hymns of praise.' After índram, too, I supply, following Sāyaṇa, the word tvām.

That the hymns recited by priests or singers put strength into the deities that are praised, is an idea that is commonplace in the RV. The phrase paḍbhíḥ vakṣáthāya upasṛp 'to approach with hymns for strengthening' in pāda b gives expression to such an idea; it is equivalent to the phrases matibhiḥ, (gīrbhiḥ, stomaiḥ, manasā, brahmaṇā, etc.) vardhay, vājay, or mahay that are used in many verses. Compare for instance 5, 14, 6: agnīm ghr̥tēna vāvṛdhuḥ stómebhir viśvācarṣaṇim | svādhībhir vacasyúbhiḥ; 7, 12, 3: tvām vāruṇa utá mitró agne tvām vardhanti matíbhīr vāsiṣṭhāḥ; 7, 77, 6: yām tvā divo duhitar vardháyanty úṣaḥ sujāte matíbhīr vāsiṣṭhāḥ; 8, 44, 2: ágne stómaṁ juṣasva me vārdhasvānena mánmanā; 1, 91, 11: sóma gīrbhís tvā vayám vardhá-yāmo vacovídaḥ; 10, 73, 2: purú śám̐sena vāvṛdhuḥ tá índram; 8, 100, 3: prá sú stómaṁ bharata vājayánta índrāya satyám yádi satyám ásti; 6, 19, 4: tām va índram catánam asya sākaír ihá nūnám vājayánte hucema;

The word paḍbhīh is equivalent to stómebhiḥ, gīrbhīh, cītibhiḥ, matibhiḥ, mánmanā, prásastibhiḥ, and arkaíh in the above verses. The expression paḍbhír úpa sarpat in b is parallel to gīrbhír īmahe, gīrbhir āyan, etc., in 8, 68, 10 : tám tvā yajñébhír īmahe tám gīrbhír gírvaṇastama ; 10, 98, 9 : tvám pūrva ṛṣayo gīrbhír āyan tvám adhvaréṣu puruhūta viśve ; 2, 2, 5 : tám u havyaír mánusa ṛñjate girā ; 1, 36, 1 : agnīm sūktébhír vácobhir īmahe ; 8, 43, 31 : agnīm mandráṁ purupriyám . . hṛdbhír mandrébhír īmahe and other similar verses. “When (the Dawn) with bright cows dawns for me in the sky, come with thoughts, running, O ye (two) heroes that are worshipful, to Arcanānas as to the (Soma juice) pressed by dexterous (priests), protecting.”

yajatā in a is nominative dual and qualifies [yuvām] that is the subject of ādhāvatam in d and refers to Mitra and Varuṇa who are the deities of this verse. rúśadgavi ‘having bright cows’ denotes the goddess Uṣas ; cp. 5, 75, 9 : ābhūd uṣā rúśatpaśur āgnír adhāyy ṛtvīyah “The Dawn who has bright cows has appeared ; Agni has been set up (i.e., kindled) at the proper time” and Nighaṇṭu 1, 15 : arunyo gāva uṣasaḥ.

devākṣatre in pāda b is obscure. Diverse suggestions have been made that it should be interpreted as (1) yajña (Sāyaṇa: devānām kṣatram balam yasmin yajñe tad devakṣatram); (2) 'Himmel' (Pischel in p. 238, l. c.); (3) 'unter göttlichen Herrschaft stehend' (Roth in PW), that is, presumably, 'the Dawn' or 'sky'; ⁵ (4) 'Herrschaft der Götter, Götterreich' (Grassmann); (5) 'reich der götter' (Ludwig); (6) deva-kṣetra (Böhtlingk in PW); (7) accusative dual, attribute of haviṣi (the dual is used because two portions are offered, one each to Mitra and Varuṇa who are entreated to come to such food as gods go to the Soma juice), and meaning 'eine die Herrschaft über die Götter verbürgende Opfer-speise' (Oldenberg in RV. Noten, I, p. 348, n. 1); and (8) locative, attribute of 'rite' and denoting 'in the rite which portrays the dominion (of Mitra and Varuṇa) over the gods' (Oldenberg, l.c.). Further, after expressing his dissatisfaction with all the above explanations, Oldenberg (9) points out (l. c.) that kṣatra is preeminently the possession of Mitra and Varuṇa (who are the very deities of this verse) in the RV and that they are described as having kṣatra over the gods in 5, 68, 3: mahī vām kṣatráṁ devéṣu and 6, 67, 5: vísve yád vām . . . kṣatráṁ devāso ádadhuḥ sajóṣāḥ, and opines that devākṣatre is a corruption of devākṣatrā, nominative dual (the corruption is caused by the attraction of the locative case of the word rūśadgac that follows immediately after), and that it is an attribute of Mitra and Varuṇa and signifies 'who have dominion over the gods.'

⁵ It is explicitly said of the Dawn in 1, 92, 12: áminatī daívyāni vratāni and 7, 76, 5: té devānām nā minanti vratāni that she does not infringe the laws of the gods, that is, that she obeys the laws of the gods and is under their dominion.

A similar explicit statement is not made of the sky. But the sky is said to have been established in its place or to be supported or upheld by Mitra and Varuṇa (5, 62, 3; 5, 69, 1; 4; etc.); Savitr (4, 53, 2; 10, 129, 1; 4; etc.), Indra (2, 12, 1; 3, 30, 9; 2, 17, 5; etc.) Viṣṇu (7, 99, 2; 3), Agni (6, 8, 3; 1, 67, 5), Bṛhaspati (4, 50, 1), Soma (9, 101, 15), Prajāpati (10, 121, 5), Sūrya (10, 85, 1) and perhaps by other gods; and one can therefore deduce from this that the sky is under the dominion of the gods and obeys the laws laid down by them.

The word devakṣatra occurs in two passages of the Kath. Sam. in 21, 11 (p. 52, 9): devakṣatram vai stomaś ca yajus cātata eva devakṣatram pravasyati and 33, 8 (p. 34, 5): devakṣatram vā ayuṣas stoma devakṣatram eva tad abhyarohanto yanti. Not much light is thrown on the meaning of the word by the first,⁶ but the second indicates that devakṣatra is a place to which people 'mount.' Since the word div and its synonym nāka occur more than once as objects of the verb āruh in the KS (see 8, 16; 18, 4 etc.) and also in the RV (see Grassmann s. v. ruh), I believe that Pischel is right in interpreting devákṣatra as 'Himmel.' As we have seen above, the sky is under the dominion of the gods, and the epithet devákṣatra 'under the dominion of the gods' is not therefore an inappropriate one. Compare in this connection 1, 92, 1: etā u tyā uṣásah ketúm akrata pūrve árdhe rájaso bhānúm añjate; 7, 79, 2: vy añjate divó ánteryo aktún . . uṣásah; and 1, 113, 14: vy añjibhir divá ātāśv adyaut in which Uṣas is said to have illumined the sky with her rays.

The expression paḍbhīr ādhāvatam in d is equivalent to dhībhīr ādhāvatam; compare 8, 8, 5: ā no yātam ūpaśruty áśvinā sómapīlaye | svāhā stómasya varidhanā prā kavī dhībībhīr narā; 8, 8, 7: divás cid rocanād ádhy ā no gantaṁ svarcidā | dhībhīr vatsa-pracetasā stómebhīr havanaśrutā; 8, 24, 7: vīśvāni vīśvámanaso dhiyā no

vṛtrahantama | úgra praṇetar údhi śú vaso gahi; 8, 27, 5: ā no adyā samanaso gántā víśve sajóśasaḥ | ṛcā girā māruto dévy áaite sádane pástye mahi; 8, 27, 8: ā prá yāta māruto víṣṇo áśvinā púṣan mākīnayā dhiyā; and also 6, 50, 10: utá me hávam ā jagmyātam nāsatyā dhībhīh.

The meaning of this expression padbhír ādhāvatam 'come running with thoughts' is somewhat ambiguous. The thoughts referred to may be 'benevolent' thoughts, sumatayah, i.e., favours or blessings (what Sāyaṇa calls anugraha-buddhi and Grassmann 'wohlwollendes Aufmerken) of the deities; compare 8, 26, 9: sumatíbhír úpa viprāv ihā gatam; "Come, O ye two inspired ones, with favours here"; 8, 3, 1: asmāñ avantu te dhīyah 'May thy (Indra's) favours help us'; 7, 67, 7: áheḷatā mánasā yātam arvāk "Come hitherward with favourable thought"; 7, 37, 2: ví no rādhāmsi matíbhír dayadhvam "Bestow gifts on us with favours"; and 2, 10, 5: arakṣāsā mánasā táj juṣeta "May he (Agni) enjoy it with favourably-inclined mind"; or they may be the promptings or volitions of such deities; compare 1, 3, 5: indrā yāhi dhiyéṣitāḥ . . úpa bráhmāṇi vāghátaḥ 'Come, O Indra, impelled by thy thought, (that is, with eagerness), to the hymns of the priest'; 3, 11, 1: indrāgnī ā gatam sutām gīrbhír nábho váreṇyam | asyā pātām dhiyéṣitā 'O Indra and Agni, prompted by your thoughts (i.e., eagerly) come to this excellent [Soma] juice that has been expressed with hymns and drink of it'; 1, 3, 2: nārā sāvīrayā dhiyā | dhiṣṇyā vānatām gīraḥ 'Cherish (our) hymns with strong thought (i.e., most eagerly), O ye two heroes that are liberal (?)'. They may also be the 'pious' thoughts, i.e., hymns or praises, of the priests, which are conceived of as impelling the deities to come to the sacrifices, etc.; compare 1, 135, 6: ā vām dhiyó vavṛtyur adhvarāñ úpa "May our hymns turn you two to our sacrifices"; 1, 139, 6: gīrbhír gīrvāhas stāvamāna ā gahi; 1, 144, 5: tām im hinvanti dhītāyah; 8, 44, 9: tvām agne manīṣyas tvām hinvanti cītibhīḥ; and 10, 88, 5: tām teahema matibhir girbhir ukthaiḥ. Lastly, though this is less probable, padbhīḥ may denote hymns that are conceived of as being the praises of the bards (vandinah, sūtāḥ or maga-dhah) attending on kings, and mentioned on p. 210 above.⁷ It must be noted in this connection that the epithet rājan 'king' is, in the RV, most often applied to Mitra and Varuṇa who are the deities addressed in this verse.

It is very probable that the ná in pāda c, sutām sómam ná hastibhīḥ has really the force of ca 'and'; compare the instances given on pp. 25, 145 above. Similarly, it is also very probable that the simile in pāda c refers to swiftness. Compare, for instance, 1, 2, 5: vāyav indraś ca cetuthaḥ sutānām vājinīvasū | tāv ā yātam ūpa dravāt; 1, 3, 8: viśve devāso aptúraḥ sutām ā ganta tūrnayah | usrā iva svāsarāṇi; 10, 112, 2: yās te rātho mānaso jāvīyān éndra téna somapéyāya yāhi | tūyam ā te hārayaḥ prá dravantu; 7, 59, 4: tūyam yāta pipīṣavaḥ and other similar verses in which Indra, Vāyu and other gods are exhorted to come quickly to the Soma juice. Pādas c d e therefore mean, 'Come running swiftly, with thoughts, O ye two heroes, protecting, to Arcanānas and to the Soma juice pressed by clever priests.' hastibhīḥ=by clever (priests); see Pischel, p. 238 l. c.

⁷ We read in 3, 58, 1: uśāsas stōmo aśvínāv ajīgaḥ; 7, 67, 1: yó vām dutó ná dhiṣṇyāv ājīgaḥ; 10, 29, 1: śúcīr vām stōmo bhuraṇāv ajīgaḥ and other similar verses that the hymn or chant awakened the gods. Is it possible that in such verses too the hymns are conceived of as the praises sung by the bards in the early morning? As we know from Raghuvamśa 5, 65: tām karṇa-bhūṣaṇa-nipīḍita-pīvarāmsam śayyottaracchada vimarda-kṛśāṅgarāgam | sutātmajāḥ savayasah prathita-prabodham prābodhayann uśasi vāgbhir udāra-vācaḥ; Magha 11, 1: śruti-samadhikam uccaiḥ pañcamam pīdayantah satatam ṛṣabha-hīnam bhinnakikṛtya śaḍjam | prañijagadur akāku-śrāvaka-snigdha-kanthāḥ parīṇatim iti rātrir māgadha Mādhavāya and other similar passages, it was the duty of the sūtas and māgadhas to awaken kings in the morning with songs.

It is the opinion of both Pischel and Oldenberg that ādhāv in pāda d is used in a twofold sense (śleṣa); but the two savants differ in their interpretation of pādas cde. Pischel writes: (p. 238 l. c.) "Varuṇa und Mitra sollen zu den gepressten Soma herbeieilen, wie die Adhvaryus zum Spülen des Somas eilen. Der Vergleich ist passivisch gewendet = yáthā hastíbhir ā dhāvvyáte táthā ā dhāvataṁ narā" and translates the verse as, "Wenn am Himmel die Morgenröte aufleuchtet, dann kommt ihr Heilige zu meinem gepressten Soma, wie die Adhvaryus (zum Spülen des Somas), o ihr Männer, Arcanānas hegend." Oldenberg has, on the other hand, observed: "Wie ich GGA. a. a. O. gezeigt habe, steht ā-dhāv zugleich in der Bedeutung "herbeilaufen" und "reinigen", jenes das Werk der Füße, dieses der Hände: "wie (man) den von geschickth ändigen (Priestern) gepressten Soma (mit eben diesen geschickten Händen reinigt, ā-dhāv), so eilt herbei (ā-dhāv; vielleicht auch hier zu verstehen: zum Soma) mit euern Füßen, ihr Männer." ^a Der Vergleich zwischen dem Reinigen und dem Herbeilaufen beruht darauf, dass beides ā-dhāv heisst, vgl. zu I, 64, 2."

These observations do not seem to me to be convincing, and I therefore believe that the verb ādhāv in d has the sense of 'running' only and has no connection with pāda c. It is possible however to construe paḍbhīḥ in d with sutám in c. paḍbhīḥ sutám = dhībhiḥ sutám; 'pressed with (i.e., to the accompaniment of the chanting of) hymns;' compare 3, 12, 1 (cited above): indrāgnī ā

^a The verse is translated by Grassmann as: "Beim Morgenlichte, o ihr beiden ehrwürdigen, im Götterreich, das schimmernde Rinder hat, presst mir den Soma gleichsam mit den Händen [hastebhir zu lesen] und knetet mit den Füßen hin, o Männer, den [Dichter] Artschanānas unterstützend" and by Ludwig as: "wenn sie mir herleuchtet die heiligen, in dem reiche der götter, wo weisse kübe sind, lauft herbei ihr zwei männer, zum gepressten soma wie mit greifenden schlingen, erhaltend den Arcananas."

gatam sutām gīrbhīr nábho vāreṇyam "Come, O Indra and Agni, to (this) excellent (Soma) juice pressed with hymns"; 3, 12, 2: ayā pātam imām sutām "Drink this (Soma juice) pressed with this (hymn)"; 8, 48, 7: iṣirēṇa te mānasā sutāsyā bhakṣīmāhi pītryasyeva rāyāḥ "May we partake of thee, pressed with devoted (or vigourous) hymn, as of paternal wealth." Compare also Caland-Henry, L'Agniṣṭoma, § 127 ff. and the literature cited therein. The meaning of pādas cde in this case would be, 'Come running quickly, O ye two heroes, to Arcanānas and to the Soma juice pressed by dexterous priests to the accompaniment of hymns, protecting.'

Arcanānas is, according to the Sarvānukramaṇī, the seer of this hymn.

4, 38, 3: *yām sīm ānu pravāteva drāvantaṁ viśvaḥ pūrūr madati hārṣamāṇaḥ | paḍbhīr gīdhyantaṁ medhayūm nā śūraṁ
rathatūraṁ vātam iva dhrājantaṁ ||*

When explaining pāda c of this verse on p. 146 above, I have, following Pischel, Bloomfield, and other interpreters, construed paḍbhīḥ with gīdhyantaṁ and interpreted the expression as 'speeding with a will.' Though this is not wrong (paḍbhīḥ has, as we have seen on p. 272 above, the sense of 'eagerly,' 'with a will,' etc., also), I am now inclined to believe that it is much more preferable to construe it with the word (anu) madati (in pāda b) as is done, in the case of gīrbhīḥ, stómbhīḥ and other synonyms of paḍbhīḥ, in many RV verses. Compare for instance, 1, 9, 3: mātsvā suśīpra mandībhiḥ stómbhir viśvacarṣaṇe "Rejoice, O thou (Indra) with beautiful lips, that are honoured by all men, in (these) pleasing hymns"; 1, 51, 1: abhī tyām meṣām puruhūtām ṛgmīyam indraṁ gīrbhīr madata "Cheer with hymns that Indra worthy of praise, invoked by many, the goat"; 8, 6, 39: mātsvā vīvasvato matī "Rejoice in the hymn (sung) from (the abode of) Vivasvat"; 10, 104, 3: indra dhénābhir ihā mādayasva dhībhīr víśvābhīh " Rejoice now, O Indra, in all these hymns and praises " ; 10, 116, 2 : svastidā mānasā mādayasva " Rejoice, O Indra that bestowest well-being, in (this) hymn " ; 3, 53, 10 : mādato gīrbhīr adhvare sūtē sácā " Rejoicing with hymns in the Soma-sacrifice " ; and particularly 5, 36, 2 : ānu tvā rājann ārvato ná hinvān gīrbhīr madema furuhūta víśve " O thou king that art invoked by many, may we all cheer thee with praises as one does who impels race-horses." ⁹

I therefore translate the verse as follows : " Whom, running (swiftly) like (water) down an incline, rushing forward like a valiant soldier in battle, surpassing chariots (in speed), and speeding like the wind, every Pūru (i. e., every one of the Pūru clan) rejoicing, cheers with praises."

This verse, and also the other verses of this hymn, are addressed to Dadhikrā or Dadhikrāvan, the swift horse whom Mitra and Varuṇa presented to the Pūrus (cp. 4, 39, 2 : yām pūrúbhyo didivāmsam nágnīm dadāthur mitrāvaruṇā táturim), that is, to their king Trasadasyu, and whose achievements on the race-ground are described in hymns 4, 38-43.

The expression padbhīr anumadati in the first half-verse is exactly parallel to the expression gīrbhīr anumadema (hinvantaḥ) in 5, 36, 2 cited above ; the meaning of the expression is, '(Every Pūru) cheered with praises and impelled (the horse) to further exertion.' Compare in this connection 7, 7, 1 : prā vo devām cit sahasānām agnīm āśvam ná vājīnam hiṣe nāmobhīh " Like a strong horse, I impel with praises the vigorous god Agni for you " ; and 10, 156, 1 : agnīm hinvantu no dhīyaḥ sāptīm āśūm ivājiṣu " May our praises impel

Agni, like a fleet courser in the races " in which the verb hi, together with words meaning 'praises,' is used in connection with race-horses. A similar usage is observable in 9, 68, 7; 9, 64, 16; 9, 8, 4; 8, 44, 19; 1, 143, 4; 1, 144, 5; 10, 88, 5 and 10, 140, 3 also. Words denoting 'race-horses' however are not used in these verses, but are to be understood.

It thus becomes evident that the expressions girbhīr aratah anumadanti and girbhīr aratah hinvanti are synonymous¹⁰ and signify 'they cheer the race-horses with praises and thereby impel them to further exertion.' The full formula to be employed in this connection is thus girbhīr anumadanti hinvanti ca; but, as we have seen, it is only in one verse (5, 36, 2 cited above) that both the verbs are used; the other verses use one verb only, either anumad or hi, to express this idea.

pravāta in pāda a is construed in connection with the course of Dadhikrā by Grassmann (who translates the expression pravāta drācāntam as 'Dem, wenn er läuft gleichwie im jähen Sturze'), Ludwig ('an dem wie auf abschüssigem pfade laufenden'), and Macdonell (Ved. Myth., p. 148: 'every Pūru praises him as he runs on a precipice as it were'). " This seems to me to be a mistake, and I believe that the simile in pāda a is a luptopamā, the elided word being (the upamāna) āpoh. Compare the simile āpo nā pravātā yatih that is used in 8, 6, 34; 8, 13, 8 and 9, 24, 2 in all which verses the sāmānya-dharma is swift going; cp. also 9, 6, 4 : ānu drapsāsa indava āpo ná pravātāsaran ; 7, 18, 15 : indreṇaitē tṛtsavo véviṣāṇā āpo ná sṛṣṭā adhavanta nīcīḥ ; 9, 17, 1 : prā nimnēneva sīndhavaḥ . . sōmā asṛgram āśávaḥ ; 9, 69, 7 : sīndhor iva pravaṇé nimná āśávaḥ ; 1, 57, 1-2 ; 10, 148, 5, etc.

There can be no doubt that, like the other epithets pravateva dravantam, rathaturam and vātam iva dhra-jantam, the epithet medhayum na sūram grdhyantam too describes the swiftness of Dadhikrā. The meaning of the expression is, 'speeding like a valiant soldier in battle'; and it is my belief that the root grdh does not signify 'to be greedy' here and that the translations of Geldner (RV. Ueber. : 'mit den Füßen (kampf) begierig wie ein Held nach der Meisterschaft begierig'), Grassmann ('Im Laufe strebt er, wie ein Held nach Beute'), Bloomfield (p. 353 l.c. : 'impatient with his feet, as a hero (is impatient) when eager for strife'); and Ludwig ('der wie mit schlingen bestrebt zu erfassen, als lanzenkundiger held') as also Pischel's explanation (l.c., p. 232 : dass Dadhikrāvan im Laufe ungeduldig die Riemen erfasst und sie schüttelt wie ein streitlustiger Held die Zügel) are all wide of the mark. Regarding the simile, compare 1, 85, 8 : śūrā ivéd yúyudhayo ná jágmayah 'Going swiftly like valiant men ready for the battle' and 1, 158, 3 : úpa vām ávaḥ śaraṇām gameyam śūro nājma patáyadbhir évaiḥ 'May I go to your shelter as a hero goes to battle with flying feet (?)' in which verses too the upamāna is śūra and the sāmānyadharma swift going.

nidhāráyanto dúryāsv āyóḥ !
átas tvám dṛśyāñ agna etān
paḍbhíḥ paśyer ádbhutāñ aryá évaiḥ ||

The first half of this verse is unambiguous and may be translated as, "The undeceived wise ones instructed the wise one, establishing him in the dwellings of Ayu."

ādaladhāḥ kavārah in a refers to the gods (devaḥ) who brought Agni down to the earth and established him in the dwellings of men so that he may guard these dwellings and also carry the offerings made by men to the gods; the word śaśāsuḥ refers apparently to these injunctions (that Agni should be the gṛhapati and havyavāḥ) and also perhaps to his officiating as hotṛ on behalf of men. Compare Sāyaṇa: śaśāsuḥ hotā bhaveti śaśāmsuḥ.

The second half-verse is ambiguous and can be interpreted in two ways:

(1) We may regard it as a paraphrase of the first half of the preceding verse, cittim ācittim cinavad vī vidvān prsthéva vītā vṛjinā ca mártān | rāyé ca naḥ svapatyāya deva ditiṁ ca rāsvāditim uruṣya. The words citti and acitti here are explained by Sāyaṇa and Geldner as punya and pāpa (Recht und Unrecht) or jñāna and ajñāna (Verstand und Unverstand) while Grassmann, Ludwig and Oldenberg (SBE. 46, 317) give the latter explanation only. citti denotes 'pious thought, i.e., piety,' here and acitti, 'impious thought, impiety;' and the meaning of the verse is, "May he, the knowing one, distinguish piety and impiety, (and) the (pious and impious) mortals like straight and crooked backs (of horses). (Help us) to wealth and good offspring, O god; grant us Diti and keep off Aditi." ¹²

As a paraphrase of the first half of this verse, we may translate the second half of 4, 2, 12 as: "From there, O Agni, mayest thou look at these rich people that are visible by their thoughts and (those also) that are invisible by their thoughts." paḍbhiḥ = dhībhiḥ; and paḍbhiḥ dṛśyān 'visible by their thoughts' means 'those whose thoughts, i.e., hymns or works of piety, are visible or plain to be seen.' Similarly, evaiḥ adbhutān denotes the rich people 'whose thoughts (hymns or works of piety) are invisible, i.e., can not be seen,' that is, rich people who perform no works of piety. The expressions paḍbhir dṛśya and evair adbhuta in this verse are thus paraphrases of the terms citti and acitti of the preceding verse.

The meaning of evaiḥ is not known exactly and requires to be investigated. For the present however, I look upon it as a synonym of kratu or thought; compare in this connection 7, 62, 2: ebhīḥ stómebhir etaśébhir évaiḥ where evaiḥ is used as an epithet of stomebhiḥ.

(2) Secondly, we may regard the second half-verse as containing a virodhābhāsa; that is, it is possible that the epithets dṛśya and adbhuta refer, not to different men (as in the interpretation given above), but to the same men. The half-verse would then mean, "From there, O Agni, mayest thou look with thoughts on these rich men that are visible (and at the same time) invisible (i.e., unfathomable or wonderful) with their thoughts (hymns)." aryāḥ 'rich people' refers to the sacrificers or 'patrons' (see Geldner, ¹³ RV. Ueber., and the passages referred to by him there) who are visible, dṛśya, to Agni, and are at the same time, invisible, adbhuta, in their thoughts. That is to say, the patrons are visible, while their thoughts are adbhuta.

paḍbhiḥ is synonymous with dhībhiḥ, but should be construed with paśyeh and not with dṛśyān. Compare in this connection 1,139,2: yuvór ilthādhi sádmav ápaśyāma hiranyāyam | dhībhīś caná mānasā svébhir akṣábhiḥ sómasya svébhir akṣábhiḥ "Thus did we see, with thoughts, with mind, with our own senses, with the senses of Soma, your golden (throne) in your abodes." The expression dhībhiḥ paś signifies in all probability 'to look with heed or care;' and paḍbhiḥ paśyeh of this verse is thus a synonym of vi cinavat used in the preceding verse.

adbhuta has two meanings, (1) invisible, and (2) wonderful, marvellous; and either of these meanings fits the context in this verse. In the first case, évair ádbhutān means 'with invisible, i.e., hidden, deep or unfathomable thoughts or hymns.' Compare 5, 85, 1: prá samrāje bṛhád arcā gabhīrām bráhma priyám váruṇāya śrutāya 'Chant loudly the dear deep hymn for the famous sovereign Varuṇa'; 1, 35, 7: gabhīrávepā ásurāḥ sunīthāḥ 'The mighty one of deep inspiration and good guidance'; 10, 62, 5: tá id gambhīrávepasāḥ 'They (the Virūpas) indeed are deeply inspired'; 8, 8, 2: kāvī gāmbhīracetasā 'O ye two wise ones whose thoughts are unfathomable'; 1, 24, 9: urvī gabhīrā sumatīḥ te astu '(O Varuṇa), may thy wide, unfathomable good favour be (for us)'; 7, 87, 6: gāmbhīráśaṁso rájaso vimānaḥ '(Varuṇa) the measurer of space, whose thoughts are unfathomable'; and also 4, 5, 6: idám me agne kīyate pāvakāminate gurúm bhārám ná mánma ! bṛhád dadhātha dhṛṣatā gabhīrām yahvám pṛṣthám práyasā saptádhātu whose meaning is not clear to me. Compare also the epithet ádbhutakratu that is applied to Agni in 8, 23, 8: yajñébhīr ádbhutakratum yám kṛpā sūdáyanta ít and to Mitra and Varuṇa in 5, 70, 4: mā kásyādbhutakratū yakṣám bhujemā tanúbhīḥ. I have interpreted this term on p. 184 above as 'having wonderful strength'; but it seems preferable to interpret it (as Roth and Grassmann have done) as 'having wonderful thoughts', i.e., as the equivalent of évair ádbhutān in 4, 2, 12d and of gāmbhīracetas and gāmbhīráśaṁsa in the verses cited above.

According to this interpretation, évair adbhutān is, so to say, equivalent to kavitamān or vipratamān and can be used (like these words) to describe gods as well as priests and patrons (yajamāna).

If we regard adbhutān as equivalent to citrān, évair adbhutān means 'with wonderful thoughts (hymns)'; compare, 6, 66, 9: prá citrām arkám . . mārutāya svátavase óharadhvam "Offer the wonderful hymn to the very strong host of the Maruts" ; and 5, 18, 4 : rātā rā rēṣa śādhātīh "in whom (sc. yajamanas) is brilliant thought." ¹⁴

According to this interpretation, padas cd of 4, 2, 12 contain cirodhābhāsa combined with śleṣa.

Thus, whether we understand adbhūta as 'unfathomable' or as 'wonderful,' padas cd according to the second interpretation refer to the patron who worships Agni with excellent hymns and are to be read together with the following verse (4, 2, 13) : tvām agne rāglātē suprāptīh sutasomaya rāhātē yatiṣṭha | rātvam śvara śasamānāya ghrīṣve pīthū śaudrām dāse tarṣayiptāh. The meaning of this verse is, "Bring, O Agni, youngest, that delightest in giving, whose guidance is good, to the worshipper who has pressed the Soma, who has made ready the sacrifice, broad brilliant treasure in order to help him, thou that fillest (the expectations of) people" ; and the worshippers that are referred to here as rāhāt, sutasoma and śasamāna are the same as the evair adbhūta aryaḥ of the preceding verse.

Concerning the use of the instrumental in evair adbhūtan and paḍbhīr ārsyan, compare § 92 in Delbrück's Alt. Syntax, and particularly Śata. Br. 1, 8, 1, 9 : bānuh prajāya paśubhir bhacisyasi and ibid. 2, 1, 4, 28 : yathāsan āyaur bahet kakṣatrain evam bahar bhūyāsam cited by him there.

paḍbhīr hāstebhiś cakrmā tanūbhiḥ | rātham nā krānto āpasā bhurījor
ṛtām yemuh sudhyā āśuṣānāḥ ||*

¹⁴ rāta occurs as an epithet of dhī in 8, 66, 8 : śamānā nā śāmānā pūṣanā ā gāhātā pūṣānā dhīrā and 8, 66, 14 : tvām na nī tānā dhīrā dhīrā śikā śaṣṭha gāhātā. But the word dhī in these verses, or at least in the latter, signifies not 'hymn,' but 'benevolent thought' or 'favour' of the deity invoked.

"And (all), O Agni, that we have, with thoughts, hands (and) bodies done for thee, with effort, like those who turn the wheel between the shafts,—[is all this], the pious-minded have held up the Law, applying after it."

In connection with pādas ab. compare TĀ. 2, 3, 1:

The author of the Mukundamālā-stotra is said to be Kāśhīkṛpāśāstrī, and of the Śrīparāthā-kṛpāśāstrī, Śrī Kāśhīkṛpāśāstrī. These hymns are well-known and are printed in Sankarācārya. 15. A ramhalpa is a formula recited before performing ritual, giving gifts, bathing in rivers, etc., in which, after mentioning exact particulars of the time and place, the performer sets forth his 'intention', that is, what he is going to do, with what object and how. In a formula that I have often heard recited in the Kachin country, there occur the following (or similar) words in the place printed on pp. 1300 ff. of the Telugu edition (Mysore, 1914) of Nṛsiṃha's Prayoga-pārijata, Śoḍaśakarmakaṇḍa.

Compare also Manu 1, 104: mano-vāg-dehajaiḥ karma-doṣaiḥ; MBh. 3, 146, 89: karmasu deha-vāk-citta-dūṣiṣu; ibid. 1, 62, 25: śarīreṇa kṛtām pāpām vācā ca manasaiva ca and the other passages cited by Pischel on p. 230, l. c. in which human actions are divided into three groups kāyika, vācika, and mānasika. The words padbhiḥ and tanūbhiḥ of the above verse refer to two of these groups: tanūbhiḥ corresponds to kāya, śarīra and deha in the above-cited passages and padbhiḥ to manas and citta in them.

Regarding bhurījoḥ, the observations of Pischel on p. 239f. l. c. make it very probable that it denotes "Schleif-apparat; Schleifmaschine", i. e., a machine (something like a grinding wheel) which consisted of a wheel that moved freely between two shafts. It is this wheel that is denoted by the word ratha, either by synechdoche, or because ratha itself has that meaning.¹⁷ of those given above: mama iha-janmani purvajanmani janma-janma-ntareṣu bālya-yauvana-kaumara-vārdhakeṣu jagrat-svapna-susupty-avasthāsu tvak-caksuś-śrotra-jihvā-ghrāṇa-vak-pani-pada-payupasthair jñānato' jñānato vā mano-vak-kava-karmabhis sambhavitanām sarveṣām pāpānām. Compare in connection with this AV.6,96,3: yāc cākṣuṣā mānasā yāc ca vācōpārimā jāgrato vāt svapāntah | sōmas tāni svadhāyā nah punātu and RV. 10, 164, 3: vād āśāsā nihśāsā 'bhiśāsopārimā jāgrato vāt svapāntah | agnīr vīśvāny āpa duṣkṛtāny ājuṣṭāny ārē asmād dadhātu.

Compare for instance VS. 34, 5: yāsmiṇ yācāh sāma yājūṇi yāmin prātiṣṭhita rathanābhāc itarāh "in which are firmly established the rks, saman and yajus, as spokes in the nave of the wheel"; 5, 63, 7: sūryam ā dhattho divi citryam rātham "ye have placed in the sky Sūrya, the brilliant wheel";¹⁸ and 9, 71, 5: sām i rātham nā bhuriṣor ahejata dāsa svārah "the ten sisters (i. e., fingers) have set in motion (Soma) like the wheel of a grinding machine." āpasā denotes the effort that one has to make in turning the wheel.

The simile rātham nā krānto . . is to be construed with padas ab; and the meaning of the verse thus is, "O Agni, in all that we have done for thee (i. e., in thy honour and for thy glorification) with thoughts, hands and bodies and with effort comparable to that which one makes when turning the grinding wheel, we have always sought to uphold the law and have aspired after it."

In ṛtām yemuh in pāda d, there is an abrupt transition from the first person (vayām cakrmā) of the other three padas into the third person. There seems to be no doubt however that the sudhyā āsuṣānāh of d are identical with the priests that are referred to as vayām in a. Compare the next verse, ādihā mātūr uśāsah sapṭā viprā jāyemahi prathamā vedhāso nṇu . . in which the first person is again used and the change again into the third person in vv. 16, 17.

ṛtām in d is to be construed with both yemuh and āsuṣānāh, as pointed out by Pischel (p. 230, l.c.); compare 4, 23, 10 and also 4, 1, 13 and 4, 2, 16.

This closes the list of RV passages in which the word paḍbhīh occurs. In all these, as I trust has been made plain by the foregoing, padbhīḥ has the value of dhībhīḥ, manobhīḥ, dhātibhīḥ, etc., and is a derivative of the root spas 'to see.' The word padbhīḥ that is found used in VS. 23, 13, on the other hand, is the equivalent of padbhīḥ and is clearly derived, as said by Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara, from pad 'foot.' The cerebralization of the letter d is anomalous and perhaps due to false analogy (cp. Lanman, Noun Inflection p. 475).

¹⁸ Compare in this connection Macdonell, Ved. Myth. p. 31: "He [i. e., the sun] is the belly of Mitra-Varuna (5, 62, 2). . . . The sun is also called a wheel (1, 175, 4; 4, 30, 4) or the 'wheel of the sun' is spoken of (4, 28, 2; 5, 29, 19)" and also Bergaigne, I, 7.
